The Happiness of the British Working Class Jamie L. Bronstein, 2023-01-10 For working class life writers in nineteenth century Britain happiness was a multifaceted emotion a concept that could describe experiences of hedonic pleasure foster and deepen social relationships drive individuals to self improvement and lead them to look back over their lives and evaluate whether they were well lived However not all working class autobiographers shared the same concepts or valorizations of happiness as variables such as geography gender political affiliation and social and economic mobility often influenced the way they defined and experienced their emotional lives The Happiness of the British Working Class employs and analyzes over 350 autobiographies of individuals in England Scotland and Ireland to explore the sources of happiness of British working people born before 1870 Drawing from careful examinations of their personal narratives Jamie L Bronstein investigates the ways in which working people thought about the good life as seen through their experiences with family and friends rewarding work interaction with the natural world science and creativity political causes and religious commitments and physical and economic struggles Informed by the history of emotions and the philosophical and social scientific literature on happiness this book reflects broadly on the industrial era working class experience in an era of immense social and economic change

Spectacle of Deformity Nadja Durbach, 2009-10-13 In 1847 during the great age of the freak show the British periodical Punch bemoaned the public's prevailing taste for deformity This vividly detailed work argues that far from being purely exploitative displays of anomalous bodies served a deeper social purpose as they generated popular and scientific debates over the meanings attached to bodily difference Nadja Durbach examines freaks both well known and obscure including the Elephant Man Lalloo the Double Bodied Hindoo Boy a set of conjoined twins advertised as half male half female Krao a seven year old hairy Laotian girl who was marketed as Darwin's missing link the Last of the Mysterious Aztecs and African Cannibal Kings who were often merely Irishmen in blackface Upending our tendency to read late twentieth century conceptions of disability onto the bodies of freak show performers Durbach shows that these spectacles helped to articulate the cultural meanings invested in otherness and thus clarified what it meant to be British at a key moment in the making of modern and imperial ideologies and identities
