Minor League Baseball and Local Economic Development Arthur T. Johnson, 1995 Sport including minor league baseball is an object of public policy Communities can exploit it to promote economic and social well being but not without risk Drawing on case studies of fifteen locales including Fresno Birmingham Durham Buffalo Indianapolis and Colorado Springs Arthur Johnson systematically analyzes the political process by which communities decide to invest in stadiums for minor league baseball teams He explores such factors as the presence or absence of a development strategy as a guide in decision making and the value to a community of a minor league team and its stadium Johnson also describes the dynamics of minor league baseball franchise relocation the importance of intergovernmental relations to stadium financing and the organization and business of minor league baseball including its formal relationship with major league baseball The Business of Sports Scott Rosner, Kenneth Shropshire, 2011-01-07 The Business of Sports Second Edition is a comprehensive collection of readings that focus on the multibillion dollar sports industry and the dilemmas faced by today s sports business leaders It covers professional Olympic and collegiate sports and highlights the major issues that impact each of these broad areas The Second Edition provides insight from a variety of stakeholders in the industry and covers the major business disciplines of management marketing finance information technology accounting ethics and law Each chapter features concise introductions a broad range of focused readings and targeted discussion questions and graphs and tables to convey relevant financial data and other statistics The Key Issues Confronting Minor League Baseball United States. Congress. House. Committee on Small Business, 1995 Distributed to some depository libraries in microfiche Minor League Baseball Frank Hoffmann, Rebecca S Kraus, Martin J Manning, 2012-10-12 Examine the big league benefits of minor league baseball The Minor League Baseball Community Building Through Hometown Sports examines the role played by minor league baseball in hundreds of cities and towns across the United States Written from the unique perspective of a sociologist who also happens to be an avid baseball fan the book looks at the contributions minor league teams make to the quality of life in their communities creating focal points for spirit and cohesiveness while providing opportunities for interaction and entertainment The book links theory and experience to present a sociology of baseball that explains the symbiotic relationship which brings people together for a common purpose to root root root for the home team From the author Minor league baseball is played across the country in more than 100 very different communities These communities seem to share a special bond with their teams As with all sports teams there is a symbiotic relationship between the team and the city or town that it represents In the case of major league professional sports the relationship is often fueled by economic outcomes On the minor league level the relationship appears to go beyond mere money and prestige Minor league teams occupy a special place in our hearts We are more forgiving when they lose and extremely proud of them when they win Minor League Baseball Community Building Through Hometown Sports is a detailed look at the connection between town and team including economic benefits development strategies community growth intangible benefits ballpark camaraderie hometown pride fan attachment and attendance demographic variables stadium accessibility home court advantage case studies of two Maryland minor league franchises the Class AA Bowie Baysox and the Class A Hagerstown Suns Minor League Baseball Community Building Through Hometown Sports also includes an introduction to the organizational structure of the minor leagues a history of each current league and charts and tables on attendance figures and franchise relocations This book is essential reading for sociologists sport sociologists historians academics and or practitioners in the fields of community sociology and psychology and of course baseball fans

The Economics and Politics of Sports Facilities Wilbur C. Rich, 2000-05-30 Rich and his contributing authors provide a political and economic analysis of sports stadium construction in the United States the impact it has on the sports industry itself and on the host communities in which stadiums and arenas are built The book brings together the research of leading academic analysts of sports in American society and gives a candid assessment of the claims and benefits the sports industry makes in its continuing promotion of new stadium construction Focusing on Baltimore Cleveland Chicago Boston Detroit New Orleans Toledo and Phoenix the authors examine the topic from the perspectives of history politics and economics and in doing so they raise several questions about taxpayer and community protection issues Specifically what do communities really get out of these facilities They point out that even as new and more expensive facilities are being built Congress has not provided taxpayers and cities any real protection from the risks involved in stadium investment Rich and his contributors examine how the pro stadium coalitions mobilize and explain why stadium supporters manage to win most of their construction initiatives In doing so the contributors challenge the conventional wisdom that stadiums stimulate economic development and provide good jobs On the contrary they have not lived up to the promises owners made to their host communities Neither have they generated high paying jobs nor have they met their operating costs The book concludes with ways in which sports franchise owners can be held more accountable to their communities The result is a powerful well reasoned skeptical but fair assessment of a growing phenomenon and an important resource for professionals and academics in all fields of public policy administration and urban development and management
