Race and Religion in the Postcolonial British Detective Story Julie H. Kim, 2005-07-15 In 1929 Ronald Knox, a prominent member of the English Detection Club, included in his tongue-in-cheek Ten Commandments for Detective Novelists the rule that No Chinaman must figure in the story. In 1983 Ruth Rendell published Speaker of Mandarin, reflecting not only a change in British detective fiction but also a dramatic change in the British cultural landscape. Like much of the rest of British popular culture, the detective novel became more and more ethnically diverse and populated by characters with increasingly varied religious backgrounds. Ten essays examine the changing nature of British detective fiction, focusing on the shifting view of otherness of such authors as Ruth Rendell, Elizabeth George, Peter Ackroyd, Caroline Graham, Christopher Brookmyer, Denise Mina, and John Mortimer. Unlike their American counterparts, British detective writers have been until recently overwhelmingly white, and the essays here explore how these authors delve into ethnic diversity within a historically homogeneous culture. Religion has also played an important role in the genre, ranging from the moral certainty of the early part of the 20th century to the skepticism and hostility that is part of contemporary fiction. How this transition was made and how it reflects the changing nature of British culture are detailed here.

Making the White Man's West Jason E. Pierce, 2016-01-15 The West, especially the Intermountain states, ranks among the whitest places in America, but this fact obscures the more complicated history of racial diversity in the region. In Making the White Man's West, author Jason E. Pierce argues that since the time of the Louisiana Purchase, the American West has been a racially contested space. Using a nuanced theory of historical whiteness, he examines why and how Anglo-Americans dominated the region for a 120-year period. In the early nineteenth century, critics like Zebulon Pike and Washington Irving viewed the West as a dumping ground for free blacks and Native Americans, a place where they could be segregated from the white communities east of the Mississippi River. But as immigrant populations and industrialization took hold in the East, white Americans began to view the West as a refuge for real whites. The West had the most diverse population in the nation, with substantial numbers of American Indians, Hispanics, and Asians but Anglo Americans could control these mostly disenfranchised peoples and enjoy the privileges of power while celebrating their presence as providing a unique regional character From this came the belief in a White Man's West a place ideally suited for real Americans in the face of changing world The first comprehensive study to examine the construction of white racial identity in the West Making the White Man's West shows how these two visions of the West as a racially diverse holding cell and a white refuge shaped the history of the region and influenced a variety of contemporary social issues in the West today Environmental Problems in America's Garden of Eden Gordon Morris Bakken, Brenda Farrington, 2001 This

The Road to Multiculturalism in South Korea Timothy Lim, 2020-12-13 This book aims to capture the complicated development of Korea from monoethnic to multicultural society challenging the narrative of ethnonational continuity in Korea through a discursive institutional approach At a time when immigration is changing the face of South Korea and an increasingly diverse society becomes empirical fact this doesn't necessarily mean that multiculturalism has been embraced as a normative policy based response to that fact The approach here diverges from existing academic analyses which tend to conclude that core institutions defining Korea's immigration and nationality regimes and which crucially also reflect a basic and hitherto unyielding commitment to racial and ethnic homogeneity will remain largely unaffected by increasing diversity Here this title underscores the critical importance of discursive agency as a necessary corrective to still dominant power and interest-based arguments In addition discursive agents are found to play a central role in communicating promoting and helping to instill the ideas that create a basis for change on the road to remaking Korean society The Road to Multiculturalism in South Korea will be of interest to students and scholars of Asian studies immigration and migration studies race and ethnic studies as well as comparative politics broadly
