Sex Drugs And The Continuing Spread Of Aids:

Sex, Drugs, and the Continuing Spread of AIDS Clyde B. McCoy, James A. Inciardi, 1995 The book covers the nature and origins of AIDS its social dimensions and impact on people and institutions and alternatives for reducing the continuing spread of the disease McCoy and Inciardi offer a breadth of perspectives on important issues from a wide array of sources without pitting these viewpoints against each other The chapters largely follow the chronology of the AIDS epidemic Written in plain English the book's direct illustrative style bridges the gap between scholarly literature and the literate lay reader with a tasteful synthesis of information research and themes in popular culture It brings students directly to grips with the AIDS epidemic illustrating that AIDS is not someone else's problem One of the book's strengths is that it not only presents material but actively helps the student make sense of it Sex Drugs and the Continuing Spread of AIDS offers an alternative to existing books many of which are edited collections It covers previously ignored topics and includes original field research In the United States men who have sex with men and injection drug users represent the vast majority of individuals with AIDS while other members of the HIV AIDS caseload reflect relatively small numbers However the heterosexual spread of HIV in the U S is increasing particularly in those cities and communities where rates of injection drug use are high Elsewhere in the world especially in developing nations heterosexual spread is the major route of transmission At issue is the extent to which heterosexual transmission has an impact on the general spread of AIDS During the past decade there have been conflicting arguments in this regard Sex Drugs and the Continuing Spread of AIDS addresses this ongoing debate

The Prevention Pipeline ,1996-03 Preventing HIV Infection Among Injecting Drug Users in High-Risk Countries Institute of Medicine,Board on Global Health,Committee on the Prevention of HIV Infection Among Injecting Drug Users in High-Risk Countries,2006-12-20 Drug dependence is a complex chronic relapsing condition that is often accompanied by severe health psychological economic legal and social consequences Injecting drug users are particularly vulnerable to HIV and other bloodborne infections such as hepatitis C as a result of sharing contaminated injecting equipment All drug dependent individuals including injecting drug users IDUs may be at increased risk of HIV infection because of high risk sexual behaviors There are an estimated 13.2 million injecting drug users IDUs world wide 78 percent of whom live in developing or transitional countries The sharing of contaminated injecting equipment has become a major driving force of the global AIDS epidemic and is the primary mode of HIV transmission in many countries In some cases epidemics initially fueled by the sharing of contaminated injecting equipment are spreading through sexual transmission from IDUs to non injecting populations and through perinatal transmission to newborns Reversing the rise of HIV infections among IDUs has thus become an urgent global public health challenge one that remains largely unmet In response to this challenge the Institute of Medicine convened a public workshop in Geneva in December 2005 to gather information from experts on IDU driven HIV epidemics in the most affected regions of the world with an emphasis on countries throughout Eastern Europe the Commonwealth of Independent States and significant parts of Asia Experts from other regions also provided information on their experiences in preventing HIV infection among IDUs This report provides a summary of the workshop discussions Preventing HIV Infection among Injecting Drug Users in High Risk Countries describes the evidence on the intermediate outcomes of drug related risk and sex related risk prior to examining the impact on HIV transmission This report focuses on programs that are designed to prevent the transmission of HIV among injecting drug users These programs range from efforts to curtail non medical drug use to those that encourage reduction in high risk behavior among drug users Although the report focuses on HIV prevention for IDUs in high risk countries the Committee considered evidence from countries around the world The findings and recommendations of this report are also applicable to countries where injecting drug use is not the primary driver but in which injection drug use is nevertheless associated with significant HIV transmission
