Looking To Learn Visual Pedagogy At The University Of Chicago:

Looking to Learn Linda Seidel, Katherine Fischer Taylor, 1998 Looking to Learn an exhibition at the Smart Museum of Art at the University of Chicago challenges the decontextualized approach to images and learning by setting ritual functional and intentionally aesthetic objects side by side together with inventories technical viewing devices photographs of ceremonial practices deploying the objects printed materials representing them and records and fragments of some of the environments to which they have belonged The resulting installations probed the ways in which objects artifacts and images have been collected deployed and exhibited in teaching research and self representation from the earliest days at the University

Looking and Learning: Visual Literacy across the Disciplines Deandra Little, Peter Felten, Chad Berry, 2015-03-13 In this volume the authors focus on the importance of inclusive teaching and the role faculty can play in helping students achieve though not necessarily in the same way To teach with a focus on inclusion means to believe that every person has the ability to learn It means that most individuals want to learn to improve their ability to better understand the world in which they live and to be able to navigate their pathways of life This volume includes the following topics best practices for teaching students with social economic gender or ethnic differences adjustments to the teaching and learning process to focus on inclusion strategies for teaching that help learners connect what they know with the information presented environments that maximize learners academic and social growth The premise of inclusive teaching works to demonstrate that all people can and do learn Educators and administrators can incorporate the techniques of inclusive learning and help learners retain more information This is the 141st volume of the quarterly Jossey Bass higher education series New Directions for Teaching and Learning It offers a comprehensive range of ideas and techniques for improving college teaching based on the experience of seasoned instructors and the latest findings of educational and psychological researchers The Practice of

Persuasion Keith Moxey, 2018-08-06 This sequel to The Practice of Theory stresses the continued need for self reflective awareness in art historical writing Offering a series of meditations on the discipline of art history in the context of contemporary critical theory Moxey addresses such central issues as the status of the canon the nature of aesthetic value and the character of historical knowledge The chapters are linked by a common interest in even fascination with the paradoxical power of narrative and the identity of the authorial voice Moxey maintains that art history is a rhetoric of persuasion rather than a discourse of truth Each chapter in The Practice of Persuasion attempts to demonstrate the paradoxes inherent in a genre that while committed to representing the past must inevitably bear the imprint of the present In Moxey's view art history as a discipline is often unable to recognize its status as a regime of truth that produces historically determined meanings and so continues to act as if based on a universal aesthetic foundation His new book should enable art historians to engage with the past in a manner less determined by tradition and more responsive to contemporary values and aspirations

Visual Processes in Reading and Reading Disabilities Dale M. Willows, Richard Kruk, Evelyne Corcos, 2012-12-06 Over the last 25 years reading processes have been the focus of an enormous amount of research in experimental psychology as well as in other disciplines The theories and models emerging from this research have greatly advanced understanding of both normal acquisition and of reading disabilities Although great progress has been made there are certain aspects that have been relatively neglected in the current understanding Specifically the role of visual factors has received less attention than that of other component processes This is particularly surprising since reading and writing are distinct from the other language processes of speaking and listening in large part by virtue of the fact that a visual dimension is involved Relevant research is broadly scattered both geographically and in terms of disciplines and there have been no major reviews or books concerned with the visual dimension of reading and reading disabilities The purpose of this book is to bring together a broad range of evidence that concerns the role of visual information in reading and reading disabilities Because reading processes are of central interest to cognitive scientists neuropsychologists psycholinguists clinicians and educators this book should draw a very broad readership

Exploring Aesthetic Approaches to Arts Integration Marina Sotiropoulou-Zormpala, 2025-05-30 This book re examines the role of arts integration in the preschool and primary school curricula arguing for the creation of an educational environment where children can process every taught subject as an aesthetic stimulus Deriving from the author's earlier work this scholarly volume attempts to develop novel criteria for arts integration curricula through examining the effects of different indicative arts integration activities implemented in preschool and primary classrooms Taking a pedagogical approach chapters enable readers to connect theoretical insights implementation strategies and corresponding methodological guidelines Ultimately this book argues that the aesthetic integration of the arts into the curricula of preschool and primary schools has three distinct important effects on the educational process fostering a more creative and productive education through a multilevel approach creating opportunities for holistic education by enhancing children's multifaceted learning involvement and promoting multimodal and inclusive education by providing diverse resources of meaning making This book will be of interest to researchers postgraduate students and academics in the fields of primary education curriculum studies teacher education and arts education Educational policymakers and teacher trainers may also

Moral Panic in Physical Education and Coaching Heather Piper, Dean Garratt, Bill Taylor, 2017-10-02 This book focuses on sports coaching and sports teaching and how touching young sports participants has been redefined as dubious and dangerous Coaches are constrained by a framework of regulations and guidelines which create anxiety and many coaches now question the risks and benefits of their continuing involvement The book includes some data from a recently completed ESRC project Hands off sports coaching the politics of touch and builds on previous ESRC research Touchlines the problematic of touching between children and professionals which illuminated tensions in touching behaviours between professionals and children in education and care settings It considers the negative effects of particular understandings of risk and moral panic around touching and related behaviours where adults children and young people interact and makes a significant contribution to critical discussions around related practice pedagogy politics and policy While focussed on sports coaching and teaching it is germane to the situation of all those acting in loco parentis This book was originally published as a special issue of Sport Education and Society

Visual Communication for Social Work Practice Sonia M. Tascón, 2018-09-03 How are we to understand how the dominance of visual images and representations in late modernity affects Social Work practice research and education Social workers are increasingly using still and moving images to illustrate their work to create new knowledge and to further specific groups interests As a profession in which communication is central visual practices are becoming ever more significant as they seek to carry out their work with and for the marginalised and disenfranchised It is time for the profession to gain more critical analytical and practical knowledge of visual culture and communication in order to use and create images in accordance with its central principle of social justice That requires an understanding of them beyond representation As important as this is it is also where the profession s scholarly work in this area has remained and halted and thus understanding of the work of images in our practices is limited In order to more fully understand images and their effects both ideologically and experientially social workers need to bring to bear other areas of study such as reception studies visual phenomenology and the gaze These other analytical frames enable a consideration not only of images per se but also of their effect on the viewer the human spectators and the subjects at the heart of Social Work By bringing understandings and experiences in Film Media and Communications Visual Communication for Social Work Practice provides the reader with a wide range of critically analytical frames for practitioners activists educators and researchers as they use and create images This invites a deeper knowledge and familiarity with the power dimensions of the image thus aligning with the social justice dimension of Social Work Examples are provided from cinema popular media but more importantly from Social Work practitioners themselves to demonstrate what has already been made possible as they create and use images to further the interpersonal communal and justice dimensions of their work This book will be of interest to scholars students and social workers particularly those with an interest in critical and creative methodologies
