Ocampo,1981 Rural Transport In Developing Countries I. Barwell,G. A. Edmonds,J.D.G.F. Howe,J. De Veen,2019-06-21 For more than three decades investment in the transport sector has been a priority for developing country governments With a few exceptions roads have accounted for the major part of these investments The explicit and often articulated assumption upon which the decision to allocate such large sums of money to road transport has been made is that road transport and development are inextricably linked The implicit and rarely articulated assumption is that the provision of suitable roads will lead to the operation of an adequate level of road transport services If roads do not actually produce economic development it has been argued they certainly play a major role This belief in the beneficial effects of roads is not wholly unsubstantiated Clearly the provision of some form of access is vital for the development of the rural economy Nevertheless the studies carried out over the last 10 15 years on the impact of highway investment have sounded a cautionary note George W Wilson writing in the concluding chapter of the Brookings Institution studies on transport and development suggested that A much more sceptical attitude towards transport appears essential and far more attention needs to be devoted to the set of circumstances surrounding expansion of transport capacity 1 The suggestion of a more restrained attitude reflected a growing concern that transport and in particular roads was only one factor amongst a large number that needed to be integrated for effective development The concern to see road transport in a wider context partly explains the move towards the evaluation of the social as well as strictly economic benefits of road construction Urban Transportation Abstracts ,1985 Strengthening Urban Management Thomas L. Blair,2013-03-08 Managing cities and providing housing essential infrastructure and public services in an era of great pressures on municipal resources are challenging domestic issues in all parts of the world Increasingly city administrators and local government authorities in developing countries and western industrial nations are seeking to share experiences and exchange information in a search for solutions This highly informative volume attempts to meet this critical need and to aid development cooperation among municipalities Strengthening Urban Management presents the practical problems and approaches to the provision of housing transportation and the mobilization of the requisite finance and manpower for local government in contrasting urban situations It draws upon selected papers contributed to international meetings and world congresses sponsored by the International Union of Local Authorities The Hague Netherlands Subject areas are illustrated in city examples given by mayors administrators and planners from Lusaka Harare Nairobi Osaka Jakarta Bandung Vienna Stockholm Caracas and Rio de Janeiro Theme introductions and contributions from leading international and national agencies highlight the important role and grave difficulties facing local government in urban management and planning
