The purpose of this manual is to help students of God's Word understand how to interpret the Bible correctly. This manual explains the practical topic of Bible "hermeneutics".

PART 1 Introduction to Biblical Hermeneutics

After finishing this chapter, you should be able to:

- Explain why it is important to study the Bible and interpret it correctly

Why is it important to interpret the Bible correctly?

Hermeneutics is the science of interpretation. To interpret something is to understand its meaning. Correct understanding of meaning is essential for good communication, since communication is the exchange of information, where a transmitter (sender) conveys something to a receptor (recipient), followed by an expected response. This is never easy since it requires the sender to use clear and precise words, and the recipient to have clear and precise understanding! When we correctly understand the sender's meaning, successful communication has taken place. Distorted understanding means the communication was unsuccessful. The objective of hermeneutics is to correctly understand the sender's meaning!

Throughout history, the Church has often been plagued by an incorrect understanding of the Bible – ideas and doctrines that go against the message God gave us in the Bible. How did these distortions arise? From people not interpreting God's Word correctly. Misunderstanding the Bible is a serious and unnecessary mistake because God's Word is both clear and authoritative, and because His Word gives us effective tools to understand it correctly!

Someone said that "the Bible is the book that is most persecuted by its enemies, and most tortured by its friends." When misinterpreted, the Bible has been used against the righteous purposes of God. Take, for example, the devastation brought by the first deceitful interpreter of God's Word, the devil, who distorted what God told Adam in order to deceive Eve (Genesis 3:1-5).

God charges us in 2 Timothy 2:15 to make every effort to win God's approval; to be workers who have no cause to be ashamed because we correctly handle His Word of Truth!! Every Christian has been
