Geographical Design Stephen Hirtle, 2022-11-10 With GIS technologies ranging from Google Maps and Google Earth to the use of smart phones and in car navigation systems spatial knowledge is often acquired and communicated through geographic information technologies This monograph describes the interplay between spatial cognition research and use of spatial interfaces It begins by reviewing what is known about how humans process spatial concepts and then moves on to discuss how interfaces can be improved to take advantage of those capabilities Special attention is given to a variety of innovative geographical platforms that provide users with an intuitive understanding and support the further acquisition of spatial knowledge The monograph concludes with a discussion of the number of outstanding issues including the changing nature of maps as the primary spatial interface concerns about privacy for spatial information and a look at the future of user centered spatial information systems Table of Contents Introduction Spatial Cognition Technologies Cognitive Interfaces for Wayfinding Open Issues For More Information A History of the World in 12 Maps Jerry Brotton, 2013-11-14 A New York Times Bestseller Maps allow the armchair traveler to roam the world the diplomat to argue his points the ruler to administer his country the warrior to plan his campaigns and the propagandist to boost his cause rich and beautiful Wall Street Journal Throughout history maps have been fundamental in shaping our view of the world and our place in it But far from being purely scientific objects maps of the world are unavoidably ideological and subjective intimately bound up with the systems of power and authority of particular times and places Mapmakers do not simply represent the world they construct it out of the ideas of their age In this scintillating book Jerry Brotton examines the significance of 12 maps from the almost mystical representations of ancient history to the satellite derived imagery of today He vividly recreates the environments and circumstances in which each of the maps was made showing how each conveys a highly individual view of the world Brotton shows how each of his maps both influenced and reflected contemporary events and how by considering it in all its nuances and omissions we can better understand the world that produced it Although the way we map our surroundings is more precise than ever before Brotton argues that maps today are no more definitive or objective than they have ever been Readers of this beautifully illustrated and masterfully argued book will never look at a map in quite the same way again A fascinating and panoramic new history of the cartographer's art The Guardian The intellectual background to these images is conveyed with beguiling erudition There is nothing more subversive than a map The Spectator A mesmerizing and beautifully illustrated book The Telegraph

In Synchrony with the Heavens, Volume 1 Call of the Muezzin David King,2004-02-01 This is the first investigation of one of the main interests of astronomy in Islamic civilization namely timekeeping by the sun and stars and the regulation of the astronomically defined times of Muslim prayer The study is based on over 500 medieval astronomical manuscripts first identified by the author now preserved in libraries all over the world and originally from the entire Islamic world from the Maghrib to Central Asia and the Yemen The materials presented provide new insights into the early development of the prayer ritual in Islam They also call into question the popular notion that religion could not inspire serious scientific activity Only one of the hundreds of astronomical tables discussed here was known in medieval Europe which is one reason why the entire corpus has remained unknown until the present A second volume also to be published by Brill deals with astronomical instruments for timekeeping and other computing devices

An Empire of Small Places Robert Paulett,2012-09-01 Britain s colonial empire in southeastern North America relied on the cultivation and maintenance of economic and political ties with the numerous powerful Indian confederacies of the region Those ties in turn relied on British traders adapting to Indian ideas of landscape and power In An Empire of Small Places Robert Paulett examines this interaction over the course of the eighteenth century drawing attention to the ways that conceptions of space competed overlapped and changed He encourages us to understand the early American South as a landscape made by interactions among American Indians European Americans and enslaved African American laborers Focusing especially on the Anglo Creek Chickasaw route that ran from the coast through Augusta to present day Mississippi and Tennessee Paulett finds that the deerskin trade produced a sense of spatial and human relationships that did not easily fit into Britain's imperial ideas and thus forced the British to consciously articulate what made for a proper realm He develops this argument in chapters about five specific kinds of places the imagined spaces of British maps and the lived spaces of the Savannah River the town of Augusta traders paths and trading houses In each case the trade's practical demands privileged Indian African and nonelite European attitudes toward place After the Revolution the new United States created a different model for the Southeast that sought to establish a new system of Indian white relationships oriented around individual neighborhoods
