Fountain, 2021-05-24 Cataloging library materials for children in the internet age has never been as challenging or as important RDA Resource Description and Access is now the descriptive standard there are new ways to find materials using classifications and subject heading access has been greatly enhanced by the keyword capabilities of today's online catalogs. It's the perfect moment to present a completely overhauled edition of this acclaimed bestseller. The new sixth edition guides catalogers, librarians, LIS students, and children's librarians in taking an effective approach towards materials intended for children and young adults. Informed by recent studies of how children search, this handbook's top to bottom revisions address areas such as how RDA applies to a variety of children's materials with examples provided, authority control, bibliographic description, subject access, and linked data, electronic resources, and other non-book materials, and cataloging for non-English speaking and preliterate children.

Organizing Information Gobinda G. Chowdhury, Sudatta Chowdhury, 2007. Tomorrow's LIS professionals will have to be conversant with all the tools and techniques for organizing information in different domains from the library's shelves to the web and digital libraries. This core text covers the organization of the entire spectrum of information and the principles, tools, and techniques needed to do this effectively. The most up-to-date textbook yet available on this subject, this comprehensive book covers everything from traditional cataloging through to metadata, information architecture, and the semantic web. Written by experienced lecturers in the subject who have authored several other successful textbooks, this book provides both an overview of the whole field of information organization as well as an easy-to-understand introduction to each of the individual topics which can be followed up with further study by following the references at the end of each chapter. The chapters cover cataloging, bibliographic format, classification, subject indexing, and vocabulary control, organization of digital information, metadata, mark-up languages, ontology, information architecture, the semantic web, current research issues, and trends. Readership: A key student text for all information and library studies courses; the book is also useful for practising LIS professionals who need an understanding of the various tools and techniques they need to master to effectively organize information.

Introduction to Modern Information Retrieval Gobinda G. Chowdhury, 2010. An information retrieval (IR) system is designed to analyse, process, and store sources of information and retrieve those that match a particular user's requirements. A bewildering range of techniques is now available to the information professional attempting to successfully retrieve information. It is recognized that today's information professionals need to concentrate their efforts on learning the techniques of computerized IR. However, it is this book's contention that it also benefits them to learn the theory, techniques, and tools that constitute the traditional approaches to the organization and processing of information. In fact, much of this knowledge may still be applicable in the storage and retrieval of electronic information in digital library environments. The fully revised third edition of this highly regarded textbook has been thoroughly updated to incorporate major changes in this rapidly expanding field since the second edition in 2004, and a complete new chapter on citation indexing has been added. Unique in its scope, the book covers the whole spectrum of information storage and retrieval, including users of IR and IR options, database technology, bibliographic formats, cataloging, and metadata subject analysis and representation automatic indexing and file organization vocabulary control abstracts and indexing searching and retrieval user centred models of IR and user interfaces evaluation of IR systems and evaluation experiments online and CD ROM IR multimedia IR hypertext and mark up languages web IR intelligent IR natural language processing and its applications in IR citation analysis and IR IR in digital libraries and trends in IR research Illustrated with many examples and comprehensively referenced for an international audience this is an indispensable textbook for students of library and information studies It is also an invaluable aid for information practitioners wishing to brush up on their skills and keep up to date with the latest techniques

XML for Catalogers and Metadata Librarians Timothy W. Cole, Myung-Ja K. Han, 2013-05-23 This book provides a foundation of knowledge for catalogers metadata librarians and library school students on the Extensible Markup Language XML one of the most commonly listed qualifications in today's cataloger and metadata librarian job postings How are today's librarians to manage and describe the ever expanding volumes of resources in both digital and print formats The use of XML in cataloging and metadata workflows can improve metadata quality the consistency of cataloging workflows and adherence to standards This book is intended to enable current and future catalogers and metadata librarians to progress beyond a bare surface level acquaintance with XML thereby enabling them to integrate XML technologies more fully into their cataloging workflows Building on the wealth of work on library descriptive practices cataloging and metadata XML for Catalogers and Metadata Librarians explores the use of XML to serialize process share and manage library catalog and metadata records The authors expert treatment of the topic is written to be accessible to those with little or no prior practical knowledge of or experience with how XML is used Readers will gain an educated appreciation of the nuances of XML and grasp the benefit of more advanced and complex XML techniques as applied to applications relevant to catalogers and metadata librarians

Moving Image Cataloging Martha M. Yee, 2007-10-30 Libraries archives and museums hold a wide variety of moving images all of which require the same level of attention to issues of organization and access as their print counterparts Consequently the people who create collection level records and metadata for these resources need to be equally conversant in the principles of cataloging Martha Yee covers both descriptive AACR2R AMIM and FIAF rules and subject cataloging with a focus on LCSH In the process the reader is encouraged to think critically and to be prepared to make decisions in ambiguous situations where solutions to problems are not always obvious or clearly dictated by specific rules
