The Challenge of Revolution Vladimir Aleksandrovich Mau,Irina Starodububrovskaya,I. V. Starodubovskai[a],2001 This volume provides an challenging and controversial explanation of the recent events in Russia It examines the causes processes and consequences of Russia s recent political development Drawing on and criticizing the existing literature the book also shows how the recent Russian experience casts light on general theories of revolution and comparative political developments The transformation in Russia is usually compared with transformations in other post communist countries The authors argue that the Russian transformation should be explained in the logic of the great revolutions of the past such as the English Civil War the French Revolution and the Bolshevik Revolution The difficulties and inconsistency of Russian reforms are usually explained as a result of mistakes made by reformers This book argues however that these problems should be considered as a natural consequence of the weak state In revolution the weakness of state power is inevitable resulting from social fragmentation property rights transformation changes in the interests of different social groups Hence the authors argue that most of the transitional problems in Russia were unavoidable The authors go on to argue that revolutions are usually considered as rapid change made through violence However the spontaneous character of change in the situation of a weak state is a much more important feature of any revolution than violence The book contains unique interviews with four leaders of the Russian transformation Mikhail Gorbachev Alexander Yakovlev Yegor Gaidar and Gennadii Burbulis as well as the personal experience of the authors who were deeply involved in the practical process of Russian transformation

Central Asia in World War Two Vicky Davis, 2023-12-14 Central Asia has long been situated at the geographical crossroads of East and West once strategically located on the ancient Silk Road The envy of the expanding Russian empire it was colonized in the 19th century by Cossacks and traders from the north This book examines how Central Asia by then part of the Soviet Union experienced population displacements on an even greater scale during the Second World War Vicky Davis analyses how troops were sent westwards into action only for waves of civilians to travel eastwards into the region evacuees refugees and even internal deportees sent into exile from their homelands in other parts of the vast Soviet Union Central Asia in World War Two is the first book to tackle the subject of minorities fighting for the Soviet Union under Stalin in the Second World War Based on meticulous archival research it considers the interactions of the individual citizen and the Soviet state weaving together the experiences of over three hundred ordinary men and women in Central Asia as they coped with their new roles on the front line or in the rear Suffering incredible economic and physical hardship racism and religious oppression these mainly Muslim citizens were subjected to a forced process of Sovietization under the influence of Stalin's ubiquitous propaganda machine Davis reveals how while conscripts were all too often slaughtered or scapegoated in their regiments the women and children left at home slaved in factories and communal farms to fuel the machinery of a war taking place thousands of kilometres away She convincingly argues that the impact of forced assimilation cultural indoctrination anti-Semitism and re-education on the region were as great as the daily fight for survival in wartime The legacy of the period is almost as complex with struggles over the ownership and revision of history continuing even today
