by dapple the geometry of our embodied lives is curviform meandering bi pedal Our personal worlds are timed interpositional and contingent But nowhere in the language of cartography and design do these ordinary experiences appear This Dark Writing argues is a serious omission because they are designs on the world architects and colonizers use their lines to construct the places where we will live But the rectilinear streets squares and public spaces produced in this way leave out people and the entire environmental history of their coming together How this book asks can we explain the omission of bodies from maps and plans And how can we redraw the lines maps and plans use so that the qualitative world of shadows footprints comings and goings and occasions all essential qualities of places that incubate sociality can be registered In short Dark Writing asks why we represent the world as static when our experience of it is mobile It traces this bias in Enlightenment cartography in inductive logic and in contemporary place design This is the negative critique Its positive argument is that when we look closely at these designs on the world we find traces of a repressed movement form Even the ideal lines of geometrical figures turn out to contain traces of earlier passages and there are many forms of graphic design that do engage with the dark environment that surrounds the light of reason How can this dark writing so important to reconfiguring our world as a place of meeting of co existence and sustaining diversity be represented And how therefore can our representations of the world embody more sensuously the mobile histories that have produced it Dark Writing answers these questions using case studies the exemplary case of the beginnings of the now world famous Papunya Tula Painting Movement Central Australia and three high profile public place making initiatives in which the author was involved as artist and thinker These case studies are nested inside historical chapters and philosophical discussions of the line and linear thinking that make Dark Writing both a highly personal book and a narrative with wide general appeal

Seeing Children, Seeing God Pamela D. Couture, 2000 In Seeing Children Seeing God Pamela Couture explores the actual and potential relation of the church and the theological school to economically and socially relationally poor children She argues that the solution to the problem of child poverty requires the shared responsibility of individuals families neighborhoods congregations governments businesses and international organizations because children develop within these multiple systems With their unique access to these multiple systems churches and theological schools are in a wonderful position to transform the social ecology within which children develop and to assist in children s flourishing Concretely what would it mean for the caring ministries of the church and those who teach and learn about them in seminary to make the issue of children and poverty central to what we do How would this change the way we live Pamela Couture argues from a Wesleyan perspective that caring for poor children is a means of grace a grace that deepens our experience as the adopted children of God She draws explicitly on recent writings that have updated the Wesleyan theological tradition Seeing Children Seeing God will be of particular interest to everyone who is concerned about children and poverty especially from a Wesleyan perspective
