Barnosky,2010-04-16 In 2006 one of the hottest years on record a pizzly was discovered near the top of the world Half polar bear half grizzly this never before seen animal might be dismissed as a fluke of nature Anthony Barnosky instead sees it as a harbinger of things to come In Heatstroke the renowned paleoecologist shows how global warming is fundamentally changing the natural world and its creatures While melting ice may have helped produce the pizzly climate change is more likely to wipe out species than to create them. Plants and animals that have followed the same rhythms for millennia are suddenly being confronted with a world they're unprepared for and adaptation usually isn't an option. This is not the first time climate change has dramatically transformed Earth. Barnosky draws connections between the coming centuries and the end of the last ice age when mass extinctions swept the planet. The differences now are that climate change is faster and hotter than past changes and for the first time humanity is driving it. Which means this time we can work to stop it. No one knows exactly what nature will come to look like in this new age of global warming. But Heatstroke gives us a haunting portrait of what we stand to lose and the vitality of what can be saved.

Reference Tools & Study Skills

(eBook) Sylvia J. Duncan, 1989-09-01. This book promotes the use of reference materials by offering simple guidance to the often baffling subject of how to use reference tools. The worksheets can be completed with minimal assistance from the teacher, but students will require access to the reference books presented. The intriguing subjects on the worksheets were chosen to challenge the imagination and lead to further independent study. The study skills presented here will also help students proceed toward more efficient and productive work habits.
