Telecommunications Policy-making in the European Union Joseph W. Goodman, 2006-01-01 This book offers a good study of the development of telecommunications policy by the EU Great value to those interested in understanding both European telecommunications policy and more generally in how policy making operates in the EU Mark Thatcher West European Politics the book provides an interesting perspective on the evolution of nature of telecommunications policy making within the EU As a consequence the book should be of interest to telecommunications and politics government researchers alike Jason Whalley Communications Booknotes Quarterly This well written book deals with the emergence and shaping of telecommunications policy in Europe with a particular focus on the time period of 1987 1998 This book fills an important gap reviewing the initial formative years of European telecommunications policy development and liberalization in detail The book captures the complicated and interdependent policy formation process in Europe in a credible and thoughtful way without falling into the trap of admiring critical personalities and key actors The author has written an important and useful book which invites the research community to further explore the evolution of European telecommunications policy Erik Bohlin Communications Strategies Examining the emergence of a European Union telecommunications policy Joseph Goodman explains how and why the policy developed as it did and why certain reforms in the sector were easier to achieve than others He provides a history of the key actors in the policy making process from the first attempts by the national postal telegraph and telecommunication administrations to coordinate their telecommunications policies in the 1950s to the implementation of a comprehensive EU telecommunications regulatory structure in 1998 and the development of a new regulatory structure in 2003 The analytical framework employed by the author draws upon new institutionalism and actor based approaches providing an opportunity to evaluate the utility of a synthetic approach for examining and explaining EU policy making The focus of his analysis is on the European Commission's two pronged strategy of liberalisation and harmonisation which began in the late 1980s and culminated in an important milestone on January 1st 1998 when the EU Member States fully opened their telecommunications markets to competition He concludes that a synthetic approach which enables the researcher to apply a number of approaches to multiple settings and various levels of analysis is useful even necessary in understanding and explaining the many dimensions of EU policy making This authoritative study will be of interest to all those in the telecommunications industry including attorneys consultants and lobbyists who would like to know how the EU's policy developed It will appeal more generally to political scientists and scholars of European history and politics

Constructing European Union Trade Policy

Gabriel Siles-Brügge, 2014-02-18. With the stagnation of the Doha Round of multilateral talks, trade liberalisation is increasingly undertaken through free trade agreements. Gabriel Siles Brügge examines the EU's decision following the 2006 Global Europe strategy to negotiate such agreements with emerging economies. Eschewing the purely materialist explanations prominent in the field, he develops a novel constructivist argument to highlight the role of language and ideas in shaping EU trade policy. Drawing on extensive interviews and documentary analysis, Siles Brügge shows how EU trade policymakers have privileged the interests of exporters to the detriment of import-competing groups, creating an ideational imperative for market opening. Even during the ongoing economic crisis, the overriding mantra has been that the EU's future well-being depends on its ability to compete in global markets. The increasingly neoliberal orientation of EU trade policy has also had important consequences for its economic diplomacy with the developing economies of the African Caribbean and Pacific group of states
