The Political Economy of Forest Use and Management

M.V. NADKARNI with SYED AJMAL PASHA and L.S. PRABHAKAR, New Delhi, Sage Publications, 1989, pp. 182 (Hardback), Rs. 150.00 (Paperback) Rs. 75.00.

This book is a welcome addition to the very scant literature on the political economy of Indian forests. It also symptomises the growing academic interest that social scientists are showing in the forests: too long an exclusive domain of biologists and environmentalists.

Emanating out of a study supported by the Indian Council of Social Science Research, this book deals with questions of political economy at various levels. At one level, it looks at the political economy of forest use and management in Uttara Kannada (North Canara) and Shimoga districts of Karnataka. At another level, it talks about Karnataka and the whole of India.

It studies the problem of "reconciling diverse ends with scarce means" at a historical and regional level, "focusing on the struggle between three interested parties--the locals, the commercial interests of the larger economy and the Government". It also looks at "the class character of the contemporary local economy itself and its forest dependence".

The processes studied in the book have three dimensions "technical change, commercialisation and integration of the local (forest) region into the larger economy". This process is conceptualised in four historical stages which, in chronological order, are: "Pre-commercial-cum-pre-capitalist stage, initial commercial stage, highly commercialised (or in-

pub desc Forests and Tribal Livelihood Lancy Lobo,Jayesh Shah,2017-01-01 This book is about the changing character of forests and of livelihood of the forest dwelling tribal people in India since independence with particular reference to Gujarat It analyses the impact of a number of interventions by the Central and the State Government such as construction of dams setting up of industries and other developmental activities in these areas It reviews in particular various laws adopted by the British colonial government as well as the government of Independent India regarding forests and the tribals and how the tribal customary laws conflict with the laws of the modern state Another focus of the book is the migration of the tribals temporary or permanent from rural to urban areas from one rural area to another or from one town to another It analyses in particular how a number of tribals retain strong links with their original villages for the benefit of household members in both locations and how increased migration has caused cultural disruption The book dwells into the decreasing dependence of the tribals on the forest and its products and the increasing adoption of alternative sources of livelihood such as dairy farming horticulture and modern techniques in agriculture Finally the book critically reviews policies regarding forests and the tribals and suggests amendments Toward a Political Economy of the Commons Cai, Meina,Murtazashvili, Ilia,Brick Murtazashvili, Jennifer,Salahodjaev, Raufhon,2022-01-14 Since Garrett Hardin published The Tragedy of the Commons in 1968 critics have argued that population growth and capitalism contribute to overuse of natural resources and degradation of the global environment They propose coercive state centric solutions This book offers an alternative view Employing insights from new institutional economics the authors argue that property rights competitive markets polycentric political institutions and social institutions such as trust patience and individualism enable society to conserve natural resources and mitigate harms to the global environment The Economics of Biodiversity Conservation K. N. Ninan,2012 Economic valuation of biodiversity and ecosystem services is possibly the most powerful tool for halting the loss of biodiversity while maintaining incomes and livelihoods Yet rarely have such approaches been applied to tropical forest hotspots which house the vast majority of the planets plant and animal species This ground breaking work is the most comprehensive and detailed examination of the economics of environmental valuation and biodiversity conservation to date Focusing on the Western Ghats of India one of the top biodiversity hotspots in the world this volume looks at a cross section of local communities living within or near sanctuaries and reserve forests such as coffee growers indigenous people and farmers cum pastoralists to assess the use and non use values that people derive from tropical forests It also looks at the extent of their dependence on forests for various goods and services and examines their perceptions and attitudes towards biodiversity conservation and wildlife protection The book concludes with an assessment of the institutional alternatives and policies for promoting biodiversity conservation through economic valuation methods Related titles Economics for Collaborative Environmental Management 2005 1 84407 095 6

The Forests Handbook, Volume 2 Julian Evans, 2001-03-05 The future of the world's forests is at the forefront of environmental debate Rising concerns over the effects of deforestation and climate change are highlighting the need both to conserve and manage existing forests and woodland through sustainable forestry practices The Forests Handbook written by an international team of both scientists and practitioners presents an integrated approach to forests and forestry applying our present understanding of forest science to management practices as a basis for achieving sustainability Volume One presents an overview of the world's forests their locations and what they are like the science of how they operate as complex ecosystems and how they interact with their environment Volume Two applies this science to reality it focuses on forestry interventions and their impact the principles governing how to protect forests and on how we can better harness the enormous benefits forests offer Case studies are drawn from several different countries and are used to illustrate the key points Development specialists forest managers and those involved with land and land use will find this handbook a valuable and comprehensive overview of forest science and forestry practice Researchers and students of forestry biology ecology and geography will find it equally accessible and useful

Procurement and Marketing of Minor Forest Produce in Tribal Areas G. Parthasarathy, K. Uma Shankar Patnaik, 2003 The Study Has Been Divided Into Five Broad Chapters So As To Highlight The Main Aspects Of The Probe As Well As Its Related Issues The First Chapter Deals With The Statement Of Problem Its Objectives Scope Of The Study Review Of Literature And Research Methodology The Second Chapter Provides The Various Approaches And Theories Of Inflation Accounting It Deals With Current Purchasing Power Cpp Method Current Cost Accounting Cca Specific And General Price Level Accounting Spla The Third Chapter Presents The Inflation Accounting Practices In Foreign Countries It Deals With General Price Level Changes In The United States Of America The United Kingdom Canada France Belgium Sweden Japan Germany Australia And Italy In The Fourth Chapter An Attempt Is Made To Discuss Inflation Accounting Practices In India's Corporate Sector The Fifth Chapter Is The Concluding Chapter Of Theme Which Gives The Summary Of Conclusions And Provides Suggestions And Recommendations It Also Suggests A Practical Model Of Inflation Accounting For Future Use By Corporates In India

Marginalities in India Asmita Bhattacharyya, Sudeep Basu, 2017-09-20 This volume engages with the renewed focus on various forms of persisting and new marginalities in globalising India The persistence of hunger in pockets of India forcible land acquisitions and their impact on deprived sections of society the effects of urban relocations material deprivation of minority groups and tribes as a result of conflicts continuing caste discrimination reported cases of atrocities against lower castes and tribes regional disparities gendered forms of exclusion and those related to disability and many other conditions suggest the need to rethink notions and practices of marginality and exclusion in India This volume critiques the principal ways of thinking about marginalities which primarily consist of a focus on normative principles and brings into focus the chasm between such principles and subjective notions and experiences of marginality and injustice The uniqueness of this edited volume is that it connects theoretical perspectives with empirical case studies and discussions and cases of exclusion are discussed within an overall inclusive and integrated framework This is a valuable resource for researchers scholars students public policy formulators and for social innovators from private sectors and non government organisations

Livelihood Strategies in Southern India Seema Purushothaman, Rosa Abraham, 2013-12-04 This volume is a compilation of essays that focus on livelihood issues faced by forest communities of the southern Western Ghats region of India Communities living along the fringes of forests are more often than not overlooked in academic and policy discussions However they face considerable pressures being sandwiched between conservation endeavours and the forces of urbanization and commercialization The chapters in this book provide an insight into the kinds of livelihood issues these communities face and the potential means that can be adopted to sustain these livelihoods This volume provides a unique alternative perspective by locating livelihood issues within socio ecological economic narratives of communities living at the intersection of the three southern Indian states of Karnataka Kerala and Tamil Nadu and suggests directions for policies to address these challenges

A Political Ecology of Forest Conservation in India Amrita Sen, 2021-11-25 This book critically explores the political ecology of human marginalization wildlife conservation and the role of the state in politicizing conservation frameworks drawing on examples from forests in India The book specifically demonstrates the nuances within human environmental linkages by showing how environmental concerns are not only ecological in content but also political In India a large part of the forests and their surrounding areas were inhabited far before they were designated as protected areas and inviolate zones with the local population reliant on forests for their survival and livelihoods Thus socioecological conflicts between the forest dependents and official state bodies have been widespread This book uses a political ecology lens to explore the complex interplay between current norms of forest conservation and environmental subjectivities illustrating contemporary articulation of forest rights and the complex mediations between forest dependents and different state and non state bodies in designing and implementing regulatory standards for wildlife and forest protection It foregrounds the issues of identity migration and cultural politics while discussing the politics of conservation Through a political ecology approach the book not only is human centric but also makes significant use of the role of non humans in foregrounding the conservation discourse with a particular focus on tigers The book will be of great interest to students and academics studying forest conservation human wildlife interactions and political ecology

The Practice of Sociology

Maitrayee Chaudhuri, 2003 This book grew out of a need to examine the practice the teaching and research of sociology in India This need was in turn prompted by the experience of the contributors as students and teachers of the problems of understanding communicating the connections between sociology and the society in which one lives and between sociological theory and empirical studies

Gender and Green Governance Bina Agarwal, 2010-07-29 Economists studying environmental collective action and green governance have paid little attention to gender Research on gender and green governance in other disciplines has focused mainly on women s near absence from forestry institutions This interdisciplinary book turns that focus on its head to ask what if women were present in these institutions What difference would that make Would women s inclusion in forest governance undeniably important for equity also affect decisions on forest use and outcomes for conservation and subsistence Are women s interests in forests different from men s Would women s presence lead to better forests and more equitable access Does it matter which class of women governs And how large a presence of women would make an impact Answers to these questions can prove foundational for effective environmental governance Yet they have hardly been empirically investigated In an analysis that is conceptually sophisticated and statistically rigorous using primary data on community forestry institutions in India and Nepal this book is the first major study to comprehensively address these wide ranging issues It traces women s history of exclusion from public institutions the factors which constrain their effective participation and how those constraints can be overcome It outlines how strategic partnerships between forestry and other civil society institutions could strengthen rural women s bargaining power with community and government And it examines the complexities of eliciting government accountability in addressing poor rural women s needs such as for clean domestic fuel and access to the commons Located in the interface of environmental studies political economy and gender analysis the volume makes significant original contributions to current debates on gender and governance forest conservation clean energy policy critical mass and social inclusion Traversing uncharted territory with rare analytical rigor this lucidly written book will be of interest to scholars and students as well as policy makers and practitioners
