The Banana Tree at the Gate Michael Dove, 2011-01-01 The Hikayat Banjar a seventeenth century native court chronicle from Southeast Borneo characterizes the irresistibility of natural resource wealth to outsiders as the banana tree at the gate Michael R Dove employs this phrase as a root metaphor to frame the history of resource relations between the indigenous peoples of Borneo and the world system standing on its head the prevailing view of resource poor and economically marginal tropical forest dwellers In analyzing production and trade in forest products pepper and especially natural rubber Dove shows that the involvement of Borneo s native peoples in commodity production for global markets is ancient and highly successful This success is based on the development of a dual household economy with distinct subsistence and market oriented sectors which has historically made these smallholders extremely competitive with the large scale heavily capitalized state supported plantation sector Dove sheds new light on the nature of smallholders and in particular their relationship with the global economic system He demonstrates that processes of globalization began millennia ago and that they have been more diverse and less teleological than often thought His analysis replaces the image of the isolated tropical forest community that needs to be helped into the global system with the reality of communities that have been so successful and competitive that they have had to fight political elites to keep from being forced out The ubiquitous but historically inaccurate emphasis on isolation and resource poverty disguises that the overweening characteristic of these communities is their political marginality and that their greatest want is not to be uplifted

Bishop,2013-09-12 Studies of the global political economy have rarely engaged with development in the Caribbean the thought of its indigenous intellectuals or the non sovereign territories of the region Matthew Bishop compares the development of the independent English speaking islands of St Lucia and St Vincent and their non sovereign French neighbours Martinique and Guadeloupe

By explaining how distinctive patterns of British and French colonialism and decolonisation came to bear on them he investigates how very different patterns of development have subsequently ensued often with startling consequences in this era of globalization and crisis By engaging with the empirical reality of the Caribbean his study sheds light on a range of wider debates relating to development indigenous thought post colonial sovereignty small states and the contemporary evolution of the global political economy
