literacytooluses pbworks com Sense-Making and Shared Meaning in Language and Literacy Education Sharon Murphy, 2020-07-15 This textbook provides a framework for teaching children's language and literacy and introduces research-based tactics for teachers to use in designing their literacy programs for children. Exploring how sense-making occurs in contemporary literacy practice, Murphy comprehensively covers major topics in literacy including contemporary multimodal literacy practices, classroom discourse, literacy assessment, language and culture, and teacher knowledge. Organized around themes of talk, reading, and composing, representation, this book comprehensively invites educators to make sense of their own teaching practices while demonstrating the complexities of how children make sense of and represent meaning in today's world. Grounded in research, this text features a wealth of real-world multimodal examples, effective strategies, and teaching tactics to apply to any classroom context. Ideal for literacy courses, preservice teachers, teacher educators, and literacy scholars, this book illustrates how children become literate in contemporary society and how teachers can create the conditions for children to broaden and deepen their sense-making and expressive efforts.

Writing Every Day Kellie Buis, Kat Mototsune, 2004 Many of today's schools struggle with large class sizes, a continually evolving curriculum, and a wide diversity in the ability and background of their students. How best to build an effective literacy community in this constantly changing environment is an increasingly difficult challenge for teachers new and experienced alike. In Writing Every Day, Kellie Buis demonstrates that sharing stories is a fun and engaging way to motivate children and encourage cooperative learning in K-8 classrooms. It proposes students writing letters every day as an efficient, effective, engaging, and fun teaching strategy for organizing language instruction. Children's personal stories become the catalyst for language experiences that involve reading, writing, and all forms of communication. Teachers will find novel ways to bridge the gap between the important principles of sharing stories and practical ideas on how these understandings can be translated into classroom practice. Empower students to deepen and enrich their language skills by sharing their ideas, feelings, and experiences. Show students how to begin to make sense of themselves, each other, and the world. Create a strong partnership between school and home. Give children the ability to express themselves and to be heard by others in their community. Student samples throughout the book illustrate the power of using their own life experiences to engage children in authentic reading and writing. Writing daily letters gives children a stronger voice and engenders feelings of self-worth, self-respect, and competence. This strategy reaps benefits beyond the language arts curriculum and helps students make connections and recognize patterns in everything that they read, write, and learn.

Clausen, Glenda Black, 2020-08-20 While the action research community across Canada is a vibrant one it remains scattered dismissed as rootless and still unproven This book illuminates action research as a vital and long established Canadian perspective taking stock of its use in education by a wide array of scholars and practitioners Reflecting an inclusive range of viewpoints from twenty two scholars across the nation chapters show without question that action research encompassing collaborative iterative and practice based research is a growing field in Canada Authors bring a range of experiences that speak to the many facets of this movement They discuss historical foundations individual and large scale projects dealing with a multitude of subject areas and educational practices and participatory methods that speak to the discipline s capacity to engage with the pressing social issues of our time A timely intervention that threads the field together and serves as both a reference and a guide to further work The Future of Action Research in Education draws clear links between the past and future and maps bold new directions for this approach Storytelling in a Culturally Responsive Classroom Laura A. Mitchell, 2018-11-02 The authentic storytelling process gives students the opportunity to include their heritage language and culture into the learning process at school Often students separate their heritage language and culture from the school culture They do this in order to survive the complexity of living in dual worlds or perspectives Belenky et al 1986 When teachers integrate the heritage language such as storytelling into the authentic literacy processes students find that their heritage language and culture has value They discover that their teachers encourage the traditional storytelling of their own heritage stories in the classrooms among their classmates This brings the dual perspective of living in two distinct worlds together The culturally responsive teachers help to merge both the home and school culture together through authentic literacy This book describes how culturally responsive teachers learn to navigate between the heritage languages of their students and the dominant language of their curriculum and instruction They know to ask questions such as Who are the storytellers in your home and what stories do they tell you This form of questioning opens up the thinking process that shows literacy comes in more forms and processes than just a book As culturally responsive teachers invite different forms of literacy to be shared in the classroom they bring the authentic lives of storytellers into their classroom The students can retell the stories that they were told by their storytellers Through this storytelling process both the culturally responsive teachers and the students inform them about who they are how they are connect with others and how they interdependent on others Students tell stories that inform them about who they are and how they are connected with others so they will know that they are human They can live in a world of possibilities where they are interconnected with literacy and interdependent with each other in order to be human They are describing what Greene 1995 described as looking into each other s eyes in order to encourage them to tell their stories about who they are and who they hope to be Sharing

The Home-School Connection Bonnie J. Pryor, 1996 This paper written by a school administrator to parents discusses parents role in creating a positive educational environment from providing a structured home life to volunteering in their child s classroom The paper begins by asserting that a primary cause of behavior problems in the classroom is parent child relationships in which the child rather than the parent is dominant thereby creating students who believe they should be the center of attention Society s focus on instant gratification and working parents guilt are also mentioned as contributors to behavior problems The paper recommends sure firm and consistent discipline inside the classroom and at home as a way to raise children who are well adjusted members of society and who display respect and concern for others The paper then offers suggestions for supporting children s academic success such as talking to children about their goals and the necessary steps to achieve them teaching children empathy for other people promoting assertiveness rather than aggressiveness and being a good role model Finally the paper discusses parent participation at school recommending ways parents can approach teachers about volunteering and tasks parents can do for schools The paper concludes by noting that teacher parent contact not only promotes good will between the two but in most cases promotes a positive attitude in the child EV
