

A scenic photograph of a coastline at sunset. The sky is a gradient of orange and yellow, transitioning into a dark blue sea. Silhouetted against the bright sky are several jagged rock formations. On the left, a large, steep cliff rises from the water. In the center and right, there are smaller, pointed rock stacks. The overall mood is dramatic and contemplative.

Let her sleep, for when she wakes, she will shake the world.

Joyce's Finnegans Wake John P. Anderson, 2008-07 This non academic author presents his key to opening James Joyce's infamously difficult and endlessly playful novel Finnegans Wake The key was fashioned in Kabbalah an ancient Jewish mystical tradition that as interpreted by Joyce champions independent individualism as the path to the highest spirituality Kabbalah images a universe excreted by the ultimate god a universe that is necessarily finite and limited that came with its own secondary god that is finite and limited the god presented in Genesis that issues blessing and curses designed to make mankind fearful and dependent the curse of Kabbalah Joyce laid this curse in his dream like Book of the Night in the elastic way that the latent or hidden content of a dream distorts the presentation of dream materials Acting like a black hole this curse pressures the main character Harold Chimpden Earwicker to fall to become fearful and dependent just like everyone else that is reduced to the mere initials HCE for Here Comes Everybody Joyce traces this curse from the myths in Genesis to the primal horde the first social organization of humans to the Oedipal Complex and to nation state warfare such as the Battle of Waterloo In a groundbreaking presentation Anderson deciphers word by word the first two chapters and part of the last chapter to show how this key opens the lock He shows for example how the joined ending and beginning of Joyce's wisdom book form the Hebrew word for curse and the ending shows confrontation rather than repression of fear of death as the key to life to your own wake Mother Box and Other Tales Sarah Blackman, 2013-10-04 The eleven stories and one novella of Mother Box and Other Tales bring together everyday reality and something that is dramatically not in compelling narratives of new possibilities In language that is both barb and bauble bitter and unbearably sweet Sarah Blackman spins the threads of stories where everything is probable and nothing is constant The stories in Mother Box and Other Tales occur in an in between world of outlandish possibility that has become irrefutable reality a woman gives birth to seven babies and realizes at one of their weddings that they were foxes all along a girl with irritating social quirks has been raised literally by cardboard boxes a young woman throws a dinner party only to have her elaborate dessert upstaged by one of the guests who as it turns out is the moon Love between mothers and children is a puzzling thrum that sounds at the very edge of hearing a Developing original accounts of the many aspects of belief On Believing puts the believer at the heart of the story Hunter argues that to believe something is to be in position to do think and feel things in light of a possibility whose obtaining would make one right The logical aspect is that being right depends only on whether that possibility obtains The psychological one concerns how that possibility can rationalise what one does thinks and feels But Hunter argues beliefs are not causes capacities or dispositions Rather believing rationalises because possibilities are potential reasons Hunter also denies that believing is a form of representing The objects of belief are possibilities not representations and belief states are not themselves true or false Hunter defends this modal view against familiar objections and explores how objective and subjective limits to belief generate credal illusions and ground credal necessities Developing a novel account of the normativity of belief he argues that voluntary acts of inference make us responsible for our beliefs While denying that believing is intrinsically normative Hunter grounds the ethics of belief in attributive goodness Believing something is to our credit when it shows us to be good in some way and what we ought to believe depends on what we ought to know and not on the evidence we have The ethics of belief Hunter argues concern how a believer ought to be positioned in a world of possibilities Uncanny Magazine Issue 35 Jenn Reese,Tina Connolly,Chinelo Onwualu,Aliette de Bodard,M Evan

At the Edges of Citizenship Kate Hepworth, 2016-04-22 Proposing a new dynamic conception of citizenship this book argues against understandings of citizenship as a collection of rights that can be either possessed or endowed and demonstrates it is an emergent condition that has temporal and spatial dimensions Furthermore citizenship is shown to be continually and contingently reconstituted through the struggles between those considered insiders and outsiders Significantly these struggles do not result in a clear division between citizens and non citizens but in a multiplicity of states that are at once included within and excluded from the political community These liminal states of citizenship are elaborated in relation to three specific forms of non citizenship the respectable illegal the intimate foreigner and the abject citizen Each of these modalities of citizenship corresponds to either the figure of the clandestino a or the nomad as invoked in the 2008 Italian Security Package and a second set of laws commonly referred to as the Nomad Emergency Decree Exploring how this legislation affected and was negotiated by individuals and groups who were constituted as objects of security author Kate Hepworth focuses on the first hand experience of individuals deemed threats to the nation Situated within the field of human geography the book draws on literature from citizenship studies critical security studies and migration studies to show how processes of securitisation and irregularisation work to delimit between citizens and non citizens as well as between legitimate and illegitimate outsiders
