The Publisher Alan Brinkley, 2011-04-05 Acclaimed historian Alan Brinkley gives us a sharply realized portrait of Henry Luce arguably the most important publisher of the twentieth century As the founder of Time Fortune and Life magazines Luce changed the way we consume news and the way we understand our world Born the son of missionaries Henry Luce spent his childhood in rural China yet he glimpsed a milieu of power altogether different at Hotchkiss and later at Yale While working at a Baltimore newspaper he and Brit Hadden conceived the idea of Time a news magazine that would condense the week's events in a format accessible to increasingly busy members of the middle class They launched it in 1923 and young Luce quickly became a publishing titan In 1936 after Time's unexpected success and Hadden's early death Luce published the first issue of Life to which millions soon subscribed Brinkley shows how Luce reinvented the magazine industry in just a decade The appeal of Life seemingly cut across the lines of race class and gender Luce himself wielded influence hitherto unknown among journalists By the early 1940s he had come to see his magazines as vehicles to advocate for America's involvement in the escalating international crisis in the process popularizing the phrase World War II In spite of Luce's great success happiness eluded him His second marriage to the glamorous playwright politician and diplomat Clare Boothe was a shambles Luce spent his later years in isolation consumed at times with conspiracy theories and peculiar vendettas The Publisher tells a great American story of spectacular achievement yet it never loses sight of the public and private costs at which that achievement came

Framing China Ariane Knüsel, 2016-04-15 Framing China sheds new light on Western relations with and perceptions of China in the first half of the twentieth century In this ground breaking book Ariane Knüsel examines how China was portrayed in political debates and the media in Britain the USA and Switzerland between 1900 and 1950 By focusing on the political economic cultural and social context that led to the construction of the particular images of China in each country the author demonstrates that national interests anxieties and issues influenced the way China was framed and resulted in different portrayals of China in each country The author's meticulous analysis of a vast amount of newspaper and magazine articles commentaries editorials cartoons and newsreels that have previously not been studied before also focuses on the transnational circulation of images of China While previous publications have dealt with the occurrence of the Yellow Peril and Red Menace in particular countries Framing China reveals that these images were interpreted differently in every nation because they both reflected and contributed to the discursive construction of nationhood in each country and were influenced by domestic issues cultural values pre-existing stereotypes pressure groups and geopolitical aspirations

Shot on Location R. Barton Palmer, 2016-02-18 In the early days of filmmaking before many of Hollywood's elaborate sets and soundstages had been built it was common for movies to be shot on location Decades later Hollywood filmmakers rediscovered the practice of using real locations and documentary footage in their narrative features Why did this happen What caused this sudden change Renowned film scholar R Barton Palmer answers this question in Shot on Location by exploring the historical ideological economic and technological developments that led Hollywood to head back outside in order to capture footage of real places His groundbreaking research reveals that wartime newsreels had a massive influence on postwar Hollywood film although there are key distinctions to be made between these movies and their closest contemporaries Italian neorealist films Considering how these practices were used in everything from war movies like Twelve O'Clock High to westerns like The Searchers Palmer explores how the blurring of the formal boundaries between cinematic journalism and fiction lent a reality effect to otherwise implausible stories Shot on Location describes how the period's greatest directors from Alfred Hitchcock to Billy Wilder increasingly moved beyond the confines of the studio At the same time the book acknowledges the collaborative nature of moviemaking identifying key roles that screenwriters art designers location scouts and editors played in incorporating actual geographical locales and social milieus within a fictional framework Palmer thus offers a fascinating behind-the-scenes look at how Hollywood transformed the way we view real spaces

Researching Newsreels Ciara Chambers, Mats Jönsson, Roel Vande Winkel, 2018-09-14 This volume addresses the underscrutinised topic of cinema newsreels These short multi-themed newsfilms usually accompanied by explanatory intertitles or voiceovers were a central part of the filmgoing experience around the world from 1910 through the late 1960s and in many cases even later As the only source of moving image news available before the widespread advent of television newsreels are important social documents recording what the general public was told and shown about the events and personalities of the day Often disregarded as quirky or trivial they were heavily utilised as propaganda vehicles offering insights into the socio political norms reflected in cinema during the first half of the twentieth century The book presents a range of current research being undertaken in newsreel studies internationally and makes a case for a reconsideration of the importance of newsreels in the wider landscape of film history
