The Baptism of Early Virginia Rebecca Anne Goetz, 2016-02-15 In The Baptism of Early Virginia Rebecca Anne Goetz examines the construction of race through the religious beliefs and practices of English Virginians She finds the seventeenth century a critical time in the development and articulation of racial ideologies ultimately in the idea of hereditary heathenism the notion that Africans and Indians were incapable of genuine Christian conversion In Virginia in particular English settlers initially believed that native people would quickly become Christian and would form a vibrant partnership with English people After vicious Anglo Indian violence dashed those hopes English Virginians used Christian rituals like marriage and baptism to exclude first Indians and then Africans from the privileges enjoyed by English Christians including freedom Resistance to hereditary heathenism was not uncommon however Enslaved people and many Anglican ministers fought against planters racial ideologies setting the stage for Christian abolitionism in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries Using court records letters and pamphlets Goetz suggests new ways of approaching and understanding the deeply entwined relationship between Christianity and race in early America Goetz has done an impressive job bringing religion to the center of the historiography on race and her study is a must read for all scholars interested in the development of race and the role of Protestantism in the Atlantic world Register of the Kentucky Historical Society In a compact 173 pages Goetz links race and religion in colonial Virginia in ways that few other scholars have even attempted Journal of American History This is impressive scholarship grounded in letters pamphlets court records colonial statutes and a wide array of additional archival and secondary sources It is a book that will find ready readership in graduate seminars seminaries and undergraduate classrooms Virginia Magazine of History and Biography Professor Goetz is to be warmly applauded for having produced a work of such methodological scope and intellectual sophistication a most persuasive work that ranks as a major contribution to the field Slavery and Abolition Rebecca Anne Goetz is an associate professor of history at New York University
