Phonétique et phonologie du grec ancien Claude Brixhe, 1996      Studies in Ancient Greek Dialects Georgios K. Giannakis, Emilio Crespo, Panagiotis Fillos, 2017-12-18 A new collective volume with over twenty important studies on less well studied dialects of ancient Greek particularly of the northern regions The book covers geographically a broad area of the classical Greek world ranging from Central Greece to the overseas Greek colonies of Thrace and the Black Sea Particular emphasis is placed on the epichoric varieties of areas on the northern fringe of the classical Greek world including Thessaly Epirus and Macedonia Recent advances in research are taken into consideration in providing state of the art accounts of these understudied dialects but also of more well known dialects like Lesbian In addition other papers address special intriguing topics in these but also in other dialects such as Thessalian Lesbian and Ionic or focus on important multi dialectal corpora such as the oracular tablets from Dodona Finally a number of studies examine broader topics like the supraregional Doric koinai or the concept of dialect continuum or even explore the possibility of an ancient Balkansprachbund which included Greek too This new reference work covers a gap in current research and will be indispensable for people interested in Greek dialectology and ancient Greek in general      The Early Greek Alphabets Robert Parker, Philippa M. Steele, 2021 The Early Greek Alphabets brings a range of perspectives to bear in revisiting the legacy of Anne Jeffreys work on archaic Greek scripts The research extends the scope of Jeffreys research by considering the fortunes of the Greek alphabet in Etruria in southern Italy and on coins      Ancient Greek Dialects and Early Authors D. Gary Miller, 2013-12-12 Epic is dialectally mixed but Ionic at its core The proper dialect for elegy was Ionic even when composed by Tyrtaeus in Sparta or Theognis in Megara both Doric areas Choral lyric poets represent the major dialect areas Aeolic Sappho Alcaeus Ionic Anacreon Archilochus Simonides and Doric Alcman Ibycus Stesichorus Pindar Most distinctive are the Aeolic poets The rest may have a preference for their own dialect some more than others but in their Lesbian veneer and mixture of Doric and Ionic forms are to some extent dialectally indistinguishable All of the ancient authors use a literary language that is artificial from the point of view of any individual dialect Homer has the most forms that occur in no actual dialect In this volume by means of dialectally and chronologically arranged illustrative texts translated and provided with running commentary some of the early Greek authors are compared against epigraphic records where available from the same period and locality in order to provide an appreciation of the internal history of the Ancient Greek language and its dialects the evolution of the multilectal artificial poetic language that characterizes the main genres of the most ancient Greek literature especially Homer epic with notes on choral lyric and even the literary language of the prose historian Herodotus the formulaic properties of ancient poetry especially epic genres the development of more complex meters colometric structure and poetic conventions and the basis for decisions about text editing and the selection of a manuscript alternant or emendation that was plausibly used by a given author      A History of the Greek Language Francisco Rodríguez Adrados, 2005 A History of the Greek Language is a kaleidoscopic collection of ideas on the development of the Greek language through the centuries of its existence      Ancient Indo-European Languages between Linguistics and Philology, 2022-04-04 Studying the Indo European languages means having a privileged viewpoint on diachronic language change because of their relative wealth of documentation which spans over more than three millennia with almost no interruption and their cultural position that they have enjoyed in human history The chapters in this volume investigate case studies in several ancient Indo European languages Ancient Greek Latin Hittite Luwian Sanskrit Avestan Old Persian Armenian Albanian through the lenses of contact variation and reconstruction in an interdisciplinary and intradisciplinary way This reveals at the same time the multiplicity and the unity of our discipline s both by showing what kind of results the adoption of modern theories on old material can yield and by underlining the centrality and complexity of the text in any research related to ancient languages      Phonetic

Causes of Sound Change Daniel Recasens, 2020-08-13 This book provides an integrated account of the phonetic causes of the diachronic processes of palatalization and assibilation of velar and labial stops and labiodental fricatives as well as the palatalization and affrication of dentoalveolar stops While previous studies have been concerned with the typology of sound inventories and of the processes of palatalization and assibilation this volume not only deals with the typological patterns but also outlines the articulatory and acoustic causes of these sound changes In his articulation based account Daniel Recasens argues that the affricate and fricative outcomes of these changes developed via an intermediate stage namely an alveolo palatal stop with varying degrees of closure fronting Particular emphasis is placed on the one to many relationship between the input and output consonant realizations on the acoustic cues that contribute to the implementation of these sound changes and on the contextual positional and prosodic conditions that most favour their development The analysis is based on extensive data from a wide range of language families including Romance Bantu Slavic and Germanic and draws on a variety of sources such as linguistic atlases articulatory and acoustic studies and phoneme identification tests

Bilingualism in Ancient Society James Noel Adams, Mark Janse, Simon Swain, 2002 Bilingualism the field of language contact has seen an explosion of work in recent years yet relatively little of this has focused on written texts This volume aims to introduce classicists ancient historians and other scholars interested in sociolinguistic research to the evidence of bilingualism in the ancient Mediterranean world Language contact intruded into virtually every aspect of ancient life and topics which have been fashionable in sociolinguistics for some time have now begun to attract the attention of scholars working in Graeco Roman studies The fifteen original essays in this collection which have been written by well regarded experts cover theoretical and methodological issues and key aspects of the contact between Latin and Greek and among Latin Greek and other languages The collection is held together by a wide ranging introduction which discusses the many important topics recurring in the volume in the light of current work in classics and sociolinguistics      A History of

Ancient Greek Anastasios-Phoivos Christidēs, Maria Arapopoulou, Maria Chritē, 2007-01-11 Publisher description

Language and Linguistic Contact in Ancient Sicily Olga Tribulato, 2012-11-29 Within the field of ancient bilingualism Sicily represents a unique terrain for analysis as a result of its incredibly rich linguistic history in which colonial languages belonging to branches as diverse as Italic Oscan and Latin Greek and Semitic Phoenician interacted with the languages of the natives the elusive Sikel Sicanian and Elymian The result of this ancient melting pot was a culture characterised by postcolonial features such as ethnic hybridity multilingualism and artistic and literary experimentation While Greek soon emerged as the leading language dominating official communication and literature epigraphic sources and indirect evidence show that the minority languages held their ground down to the fifth century BCE and in some cases beyond The first two parts of the volume discuss these languages and their interaction with Greek while the third part focuses on the sociolinguistic revolution brought about by the arrival of the Romans Negation and Nonveridicality in the History of

Greek Katerina Chatzopoulou, 2019 This book provides a thorough investigation of the expression of sentential negation in the history of Greek based on extensive data from major stages of the language It also provides a new semantic interpretation of Jespersen's cycle that explains the Greek developments and those in other languages Linguistic

Early Greek Alphabetic Writing Natalia Elvira Astoreca, 2021-10-31 Despite the flourishing of epichoric studies on the Archaic Greek scripts in the 1960s embodied by archaeologists Lilian Hamilton Jeffery and Margherita Guarducci most scholarship on early alphabetic writing in Greece has focused on questions around the origin of the Greek alphabet instead of acknowledging the diversity of alphabetic systems that emerged in Geometric and Archaic times The present book proposes to bring back the epichoric approach by focusing on the different ways in which the earliest epigraphic evidence represents the spoken Greek dialects However instead of continuing the palaeographic methodology of previous studies this analysis follows the latest trends in grapholinguistics more specifically the methodology of comparative graphematics By examining the grapheme-phoneme relationships across Greek speaking regions it is possible to recognize that diversity and to draw connections with neighboring contemporaneous alphabets such as those for Phrygian Eteocretan and Etruscan This work carried out within the Contexts of and Relations between Early Writing Systems CREWS project aims to contribute towards the conceptualization of the so called epichoric scripts as independent alphabets as well as their framing within the ecology of ancient Mediterranean writing systems Contexts of and Relations between Early Writing Systems CREWS is a project funded by the European Research Council under the European Union s Horizon 2020 research and innovation program grant agreement No 677758 and based in the Faculty of Classics University of Cambridge

Greek Historical Phonology Workbook Malte Liesner, 2015 This book uses modern methods of adult education in the field of historical linguistics It presents a variety of tasks easy to understand exercises and work instructions as well as clear tables and precise descriptions of the development of the Attic language Step by step the user is introduced deeper into the complicated developments of the Attic language By applying the structures of language development over and over again the user learns the matter by doing it The exercises in which Attic words are deduced from their Indo European pre forms are structured as puzzles that must be solved The single step method allows the user to analyze each derivation step exactly as a number always refers to an index of all the Greek sound laws which can be found at the end of the book In each teaching unit the left page contains the explanations and descriptions of Latin sound laws and the right page offers exercises to train the learning matter Sound laws which are explained in other units are additionally given on the exercise pages Answers to all the exercises are included in the book The comprehensive index includes all Greek sound laws and is referred to in every step of a phonological derivation as well as in all the explanations The index can be used for reference as well The structure of the book is intentionally identical to the Latin Historical Phonology Workbook which is also published in the Reichert Verlag In this way not only the parallelism of many developments can be compared with each other at first glance but the user can start working with the book directly without having to deal with any new types of tasks The book is suitable for use in university courses but can easily be used for self study as well based on the existing solutions in the book The language is plain intelligible and presents complex developments in a simple way so that non specialists can work with the book Previous knowledge of Greek is not needed due to the introduction in which the Greek alphabet the basics of phonology and a theoretical model of language development are presented

Syllabic Writing on Cyprus and its Context Philippa M. Steele, 2013-03-28 This volume offers a new and interdisciplinary treatment of syllabic writing in ancient Cyprus A team of distinguished scholars tackles epigraphic palaeographic linguistic archaeological historical and terminological problems relating to the island s writing systems in the Late Bronze Age and Iron Age from the appearance of writing around the fifteenth century down to the end of the first millennium BC The result is not intended to be a single unified view of the scripts and their context but rather a varied collection that demonstrates a range of interpretations of the evidence and challenges some of the longstanding or traditional views of the population of ancient Cyprus and its epigraphic habits This is the first comprehensive account of the

Cypro Minoan and Cypriot syllabic scripts to appear in a single volume and forms an invaluable resource for anyone studying Cypriot epigraphy or archaeology

Indo-European Linguistics Michael Meier-Brügger, 2013-02-06 This Textbook on Indo European Linguistics is designed as an introduction to the field It presents current topics and questions in Indo European linguistics in a clear and informative manner This is the English translation of the eight edition of the work first published by Hans Krahe and it takes account of more recent research While Krahe only considered phonology and morphology the edition also includes a comprehensive account of syntax and lexis Manfred Mayrhofer assisted with the section of phonology Matthias Fritz wrote the section on syntax and provided support for the project as a whole

Rethinking Contexts, Rereading Texts M. Daniel Carroll R., 2000-02-01 This volume brings together ten essays on the various contexts for texts that social scientific approaches invoke These contexts are the cultural values that inform the writers of texts the relationship between the text and the reader or community of readers and the production of texts themselves as social artifacts In the first predominantly theoretical section of the book John Rogerson applies the perspective of Adorno to the reading of biblical texts Mark Brett advocates methodological pluralism and deconstructs ethnicity in Genesis and Gerald West explores the graininess of texts The second part contains both theory and application Jonathan Dyck draws a map of ideology for biblical critics and then applies an ideological critical analysis to Ezra 2 M Daniel Carroll R reexamines popular religion and uses Amos as a test case Stanley Porter considers dialect and register in the Greek of the New Testament then applies it to Mark's Gospel This is an original as well as wide ranging exploration of important social scientific issues and their application to a range of biblical materials
