Palm Island Joanne Watson, 2010 In November 2004 Mulrunji Doomadgee's tragic death triggered civil unrest within the Indigenous community of Palm Island This led to the first prosecution of a Queensland police officer in relation to a death in custody In Palm Island Joanne Watson gives the first substantial history of the island from pre contact to the present

Genocide, War Crimes and the West Doctor Adam Jones, 2013-07-04 Genocide and war crimes are increasingly the focus of scholarly and activist attention Much controversy exists over how precisely these grim phenomena should be defined and conceptualized Genocide War Crimes in most cases their contributions are specifically written for this volume In the opening and closing sections of the book analytical issues are considered including questions of responsibility for genocide and war crimes and institutional responses at both the domestic and international levels The central section is devoted to an unprecedentedly broad range of original case studies of western involvement or alleged involvement in war crimes and genocide At a moment in history when terrorism has become a near universal focus of public attention this volume makes clear why the West as a result of both its historical legacy and contemporary actions so often excites widespread resentment and opposition throughout the rest of the world

A New Species of Trouble Kai Erikson, 1995 In the twentieth century disasters caused by human beings have become more and more common Unlike earthquakes and other natural catastrophes this new species of trouble afflicts person and groups in particularly disruptive ways

Divided Province Greg Albo, Bryan M. Evans, 2019-02-28 No government jurisdiction in Canada has so radically transformed its public policies over the past decades as Ontario and yet the province has also maintained a striking degree of political stability in its party system Since the 1990s neoliberalism has been the point of reference in constructing policy agendas for all of Ontario's political parties It has guided the strategy for governance of the dominant Liberal Party since 2003 even as it divides the province between workers and employers north and south rural and urban and racialized minorities and the majority population With a focus on the governments of Mike Harris Dalton McGuinty and Kathleen Wynne Divided Province brings together leading researchers to dissect the province's public policies since the 1990s Presenting original state of the art research the book demonstrates that although the Conservative government of Mike Harris implemented the sharpest and most profound shift towards the establishment of a neoliberal regime in the province the subsequent Liberal governments consolidated that neoliberal turn The essays in this volume explore the consequences of this ideological turn across a spectrum of policies including health education poverty energy employment manufacturing and how it has impacted workers women First Nations and other distinct communities The first book to offer a comprehensive critical account of neoliberalism in Ontario Divided Province overturns conventional readings of the province's politics and suggests that building a more democratic and egalitarian alternative to the current orthodoxy requires nothing less than a radical rupture from existing policies and political alliances Without such a decisive break political space may well open up again for the populist right

Dammed Brittany Luby, 2020-10-09 Dammed explores Canada's hydroelectric boom in the Lake of the Woods area It complicates narratives of increasing affluence in postwar Canada revealing that the inverse was true for Indigenous communities along the Winnipeg River Dammed makes clear that hydroelectric generating stations were designed to serve settler populations Governments and developers excluded the Anishinabeg from planning and operations and failed to consider how power production might influence the health and economy of their communities By so doing Canada and Ontario thwarted a future that aligned with the terms of treaty a future in which both settlers and the Anishinabeg might thrive in shared territories The same hydroelectric development that powered settler communities flooded manomin fields washed away roads and compromised fish populations Anishinaabe families responded creatively to manage the government sanctioned environmental change and survive the resulting economic loss Luby reveals these responses to dam development inviting readers to consider how resistance might be expressed by individuals and families and across gendered and generational lines Luby weaves text testimony and experience together grounding this historical work in the territory of her paternal ancestors lands she calls home With evidence drawn from archival material oral history and environmental observation Dammed invites readers to confront Canadian colonialism in the twentieth century Aboriginal Populations

Brothers Guy Lanoue, 2021-01-07 A provocative analysis of a nativist movement

The creation of a huge artificial lake in western Canada led to the flooding of prime hunting and trapping territory of the Sekani Indians thus depriving them of their traditional occupations and livelihood This caused considerable social distress resulting in a drastic increase of alcohol consumption and violence and seriously disrupting social relationships Some Sekani made efforts to create new ties of solidarity through the adoption of Pan Indianism however this ideology did not prove effective The author concludes that their lack of unity stemmed from the same factionalism which characterized their personal relationships

A Town Without Steel Judith Modell, 2014-11-30 Photographs by Charlee Brodsky In 1986 with little warning the USX Homestead Works closed Thousands of workers who depended on steel to survive were left without work A Town Without Steel looks at the people of Homestead as they reinvent their views of household and work and place in this world The book details the modifications and revisions of domestic strategies in a public crisis In some ways unique and in some ways typical of American industrial towns the plight of Homestead sheds light on social cultural and political developments of the late twentieth century In this anthropological and photographic account of a town facing the crisis of deindustrialization A Town Without Steel focuses on families Reminiscent of Margaret Byington and Lewis Hine's approach in Homestead Charlee Brodsky's photographs document the visual dimension of change in Homestead The mill that dominated the landscape transformed to a vast empty lot a crowded commercial street turns into a ghost town and an abundance of well kept homes become an abandoned street of houses for sale The individual narratives and family snapshots Modell's interpretations and Brodsky's photographs all evoke the tragedy and the resilience of a town whose primary source of self identification no longer exists

Understanding and Applying Medical Anthropology Peter J. Brown, Svea Closser, 2016-07 The editors of the third edition of the seminal textbook Understanding and Applying Medical Anthropology bring it completely up to date for both instructors and students The collection of 49 readings 17 of them new to this edition offers extensive background description and exposes students to the breadth of theoretical methodological and practical perspectives and issues in the field of medical anthropology The text provides specific examples and case studies of research as it is applied to a range of health settings from cross cultural clinical encounters to cultural analysis of new biomedical technologies and the implementation of programs in global health settings The new edition features a major revision that eliminates many older readings in favor of more fresh relevant selections a new section on structural violence that looks at the impact of poverty and other forms of social marginalization on health an updated and expanded section on Conceptual Tools including new research and ideas that are currently driving the field of medical anthropology forward such as epigenetics and syndemics new chapters on climate change Ebola PTSD among Iraq Afghanistan veterans eating disorders and autism among others recent articles from Margaret Mead Award winners Sera Young Seth Holmes and Erin Finley along with new articles by such established medical anthropologists as Paul Farmer and Merrill Singer Postcolonial Theory and Organizational Analysis: A Critical Engagement A. Prasad, 2003-05-01 This book takes up a question that has rarely been raised in the field of management Could modern Western colonialism have important implications for the practices and theories that inform management and organizations Employing the frameworks of postcolonial theory an international group of scholars address this question and offer remarkable insights about the implications of the colonial encounter for management Wide ranging in scope the book covers major topics like cross cultural management control and resistance corporate culture the discourse of exoticization in museums and tourism and stakeholder issues and sheds new light on the troubling legacy of colonialism Scholars and practitioners searching for a new idiom of management will find this book's critique of contemporary management invaluable Addictions and Healing in Aboriginal Country Gregory Phillips, 2003 Working with communities Introducing illness Grog gunja and gambling Reasons for use Strategies to address use Solutions from Canada Factors involved in healing and change Serpent River Resurgence Lianne C. Leddy, 2022-01-27 Serpent River Resurgence tells the story of how the Serpent River Anishinaabek confronted the persistent forces of settler colonialism and the effects of uranium mining at Elliot Lake Ontario Drawing on extensive archival sources oral histories and newspaper articles Lianne C Leddy examines the environmental and political power relationships that affected her homeland in the Cold War period Focusing on Indigenous settler relations the environmental and health consequences of the uranium industry and the importance of traditional uses of land and what happens when they are compromised Serpent River Resurgence explores how settler colonialism and Anishinaabe resistance remained potent forces in Indigenous communities throughout the second half of the twentieth century Canada's Other Red Scare Scott Rutherford, 2020-12-17 Indigenous activism put small town northern Ontario on the map in the 1960s and early 1970s Kenora Ontario was home to a four hundred person march popularly called Canada's First Civil Rights March and a two month long armed occupation of a small lakefront park Canada's Other Red Scare shows how important it is to link the local and the global to broaden narratives of resistance in the 1960s it is a history not of isolated events closed off from the present but of decolonization as a continuing process Scott Rutherford explores with rigour and sensitivity the Indigenous political protest and social struggle that took place in Northwestern Ontario and Treaty 3 territory from 1965 to 1974 Drawing on archival documents media coverage published interviews memoirs and social movement literature as well as his own lived experience as a settler growing up in Kenora he reconstructs a period of turbulent protest and the responses it provoked from support to disbelief to outright hostility Indigenous organizers advocated for a wide range of issues from better employment opportunities to the recognition of nationhood by using such tactics as marches cultural production community organizing journalism and armed occupation They drew inspiration from global currents from black American freedom movements to Third World decolonization to challenge the inequalities and racial logics that shaped settler colonialism and daily life in Kenora Accessible and wide reaching Canada's Other Red Scare makes the case that Indigenous political protest during this period should be thought of as both local and transnational an urgent exercise in confronting the experience of settler colonialism in places and moments of protest when its logic and acts of dispossession are held up like a mirror
