Political Organization in Central Asia and Azerbaijan Vladimir Babak, Demian Vaisman, Aryeh

Wasserman, 2004-11-23 This work contains a selection of annotated documents including party platforms and declarations of the major political groupings in the Islamic republics of the former Soviet Union. The book covers primarily the period from 1991 to 1994 which can be characterized as the first stage in the formation of a pluralistic society in these emerging states. Two divergent trends of developments can be identified from the sources: the first is a tendency toward the creation of independent states based on traditional models; the other towards independent states with Western style democracies and pro Russian orientation.

Politicizing Islam in Central Asia Kathleen Collins, 2023 A sweeping history of Islamism in Central Asia from the Russian Revolution to the present through Soviet era archival documents, oral histories, and a trove of interviews and focus groups. Few observers anticipated a surge of Islamism in Central Asia after seventy years of forced communist atheism. Muslims do not inevitably support Islamism, a modern political ideology of Islam. Yet Islamism became the dominant form of political opposition in post-Soviet Uzbekistan and Tajikistan. In Politicizing Islam in Central Asia, Kathleen Collins explores the causes, dynamics, and variation in Islamist movements, first within the USSR and then in the post-Soviet states of Tajikistan, Uzbekistan, and Kyrgyzstan. Drawing upon extensive ethnographic and historical research on Islamist mobilization, she explains the strategies and relative success of each Central Asian Islamist movement. Collins argues that in each case, state repression of Islam by Soviet and post-Soviet regimes, together with the diffusion of religious ideologies, motivated Islamist mobilization. Sweeping in scope, this book traces the dynamics of Central Asian Islamist movements from the Soviet era through the Tajik civil war, the Afghan jihad against the US, and the foreign fighter movement joining the Syrian jihad.

Nationalism and Identity Construction in Central Asia Mariya Y. Omelicheva, 2014-12-17

More than two decades after the break-up of the Soviet Union, Central Asian republics Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan continue to reexamine and debate whom and what they represent. Nationalism and Identity Construction in Central Asia explores the complex and controversial process of identity formation in the region using a 3D framework which stands for Dimensions, Dynamics, and Directions of nation building. The first part of the framework, dimensions, underscores the new and complex ways in which nationalisms and identities manifest themselves in Central Asia.

The second part dynamics is premised on the idea that nationalisms and identity construction in the Central Asian republics may indicate some continuities with the past but are more concerned with legitimization of the present power politics in these states. It calls for the identification of the main actors, strategies, tactics, interests and reactions to the processes of nationalism and identity construction. The third part of the framework, directions, addresses implications of nationalisms and identity construction in Central Asia for regional and international peace and cooperation. Jointly, the chapters of the volume address domestic and international level dimensions, dynamics and directions of identity formation in Central Asia. What unites these works is their shared modern and post modern understanding of nations, nationalisms and identities as discursive, strategic and tactical formations. They are viewed as constructed and imagined and therefore continuously changing but also fragmented and contested.

Critical Approaches to Security in Central Asia Edward Lemon, 2020-05-21

Central Asia remains on the periphery both spatially and in people's imaginations. When the region does attract international attention, it is often related to security issues including terrorism, ethnic conflict and drug trafficking. This book brings together leading specialists from a range of disciplines including geography, anthropology, sociology and political science to discuss how citizens and governments within Central Asia think about and practise security. The authors explore how governments use fears of instability to bolster their rule and how securitized populations cope with and resist being labelled threats through strategies that are rarely associated with security including marriage and changing their appearance. This collection examines a wide range of security issues including Islamic extremism, small arms, interethnic relations and border regions. While coverage of the region often departs from preconceived notions of the region as dangerous, obscure and volatile, the chapters in this book all place emphasis on the way local people understand security and harmony in their daily lives. This book will be of interest to students and researchers of Central Asian Studies as well as Security Studies and Political Science. The chapters were originally published in the journal Central Asian Survey.

Semi-Presidentialism in the Caucasus and Central Asia Robert Elgie, Sophia Moestrup, 2016-05-14

This edited collection examines the politics of semi presidential countries in the Caucasus and Central Asia. Semi presidentialism is the situation where there is both a directly elected, fixed term president and a prime minister and cabinet that are collectively responsible for the legislature. There are four countries with a semi presidential constitution in this region: Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia and Kyrgyzstan. The authors introduce the concept of semi presidentialism, place the countries in a general post Soviet context and compare them with Kazakhstan. They investigate the relationship between semi presidentialism in the formal constitution and the verticality of power in reality, explore the extent to which semi presidentialism has been responsible for the relative performance of democracy in each country and chart the relationship within the executive, both between the president, prime minister and ministers, and between the executive and the legislature.

Central Peripheries Marlene Laruelle ,2021-07-01 Central Peripheries explores post Soviet Central Asia through the prism of nation building Although relative latecomers on the international scene the Central Asian states see themselves as globalized and yet in spite of or perhaps precisely because of this they hold a very classical vision of the nation state rejecting the abolition of boundaries and the theory of the death of the nation Their unabashed celebration of very classical nationhoods built on post modern premises challenges the Western view of nationalism as a dying ideology that ought to have been transcended by post national cosmopolitanism Marlene Laruelle looks at how states in the region have been navigating the construction of a nation in a post imperial context where Russia remains the dominant power and cultural reference She takes into consideration the ways in which the Soviet past has influenced the construction of national storylines as well as the diversity of each state s narratives and use of symbolic politics Exploring state discourses academic narratives and different forms of popular nationalist storytelling allows Laruelle to depict the complex construction of the national pantheon in the three decades since independence The second half of the book focuses on Kazakhstan as the most hybrid national construction and a unique case study of nationhood in Eurasia Based on the principle that only multidisciplinary can help us to untangle the puzzle of nationhood Central Peripheries uses mixed methods combining political science intellectual history sociology and cultural anthropology It is inspired by two decades of fieldwork in the region and a deep knowledge of the region s academia and political environment Praise for Central Peripheries Marlene Laruelle paves the way to the more focused and necessary outlook on Central Asia a region that is not a periphery but a central space for emerging conceptual debates and complexities Above all the book is a product of Laruelle s trademark excellence in balancing empirical depth with vigorous theoretical advancements Diana T Kudaibergenova University of Cambridge Using the concept of hybridity Laruelle explores the multitude of historical political and geopolitical factors that predetermine different ways of looking at nations and various configurations of nation building in post Soviet Central Asia Those manifold contexts present a general picture of the transformation that the former southern periphery of the USSR has been going through in the past decades Sergey Abashin European University at St Petersburg

Annual Review of the Sociology of Religion. Volume 3 (2012), 2012-08-24 This volume points to methodological innovations in social research and their potential for social scientific studies of religion Computerization has opened for both quantitative and qualitative systematic analyses of complex materials and the epistemological discourse after Positivism has opened for reconsidering the foundation of empirical social research Furthermore religion is changing and sociology of religion therefore widens its scope by including non institutional forms of religion This refocusing calls for new methodological considerations As the range of available methods expands it becomes more pressing to consider whether and how methods can be combined such as quantitative and qualitative methods Studying religion as a complex social phenomenon calls for a variety of methods but an integration of the empirical findings points back to the epistemological issue

Identity and Politics in Central Asia and the Caucasus Mohammed Ayoob, Murad Ismayilov, 2015-02-20 The multicultural region of Central Eurasia is living through its early post independence years and as such serves as an ideal case to study and analyse theories of identity and foreign policy in a non European context Looking to re introduce identity as a multidimensional factor informing state behaviour this book analyses the experiences of the different Central Eurasian states in their post independence pursuits The book is structured into two broadly defined sections with the first half examining the different ways in which the combination of domestic regional international and trans national forces worked to advance one national identity over the others in the states that comprise the region of post Soviet Central Eurasia In the second half chapters analyse the many ways in which identity once shaped affected foreign policy behaviours of the regional states as well as the overall security dynamics in the region The book also looks at the ways in which identity by doing so enjoys an intricate mutually constitutive relationship with the strategic context in which it bears its effects on the state and the region Finally given the special role Russia has historically played in defining the evolutionary trajectory of the regional states the book discusses the ways in which Russia itself and its post cold war policies towards its former colonies have been conditioned by factors associated with Russia s evolving post Soviet identity Placing the region firmly within existing theories of identity and state practices the book will be of interest to students and scholars of Central Asian Politics Security Studies Foreign Policy and International Relations
