Red Flags And Red Tape The Making Of A Labour Bureaucracy:

Red Flags and Red Tape James Mark Leier, 1995 Labour bureaucracy has long been a subject of interest to sociologists and industrial relations specialists but it has rarely been examined by labour historians In Red Flags and Red Tape Mark Leier aims to understand how and why bureaucracy came to dominate an organization that was established to promote greater democracy for the working class The formative years of the Vancouver Trades and Labour Council from 1889 to 1910 provide the basis for his study of the interplay between bureaucracy class and ideology Leier sets himself three tasks to outline the theoretical debates on the labour bureaucracy to investigate the early history of the VTLC in order to show how and why bureaucratic structures evolve over time and to examine the ideology and personnel of the labour council in order to understand the complex relationship between bureaucrats of the left and the right and their ideologies BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved

Palmer, 2025-09-02 This second volume of Bryan Palmer's history of Canada covers 1890 to 1960 Weaving together themes that include business labour politics and social history this account brings the experiences of Indigenous peoples into the centre of the narrative Canada experienced extraordinary growth during these decades notably after the Second World War when many Canadians quickly became far better off Yet vast inequalities persisted Indigenous peoples experienced ongoing and often worsening deprivation and ordinary people saw little or no real improvement in their lives These realities set the stage for the interplay of reform resistance and reaction that followed after 1960 Palmer examines the continuing role of capitalism and colonialism in structuring Canada in the period between 1890 and 1960 from capital's conflicts and fragile ententes with labour to the struggles of Indigenous Peoples and francophone Canada and the changing role of Canadian capital internationally Relying on the work of scholars who have produced a vast academic literature on a wide range of topics in Canadian history Bryan Palmer offers a new history of Canada which reflects the knowledge and values of 21st century Canadians Infidels and the Damn Churches Lynne Marks, 2017-06-09 British Columbia is at the forefront of a secularizing movement in the English speaking world Nearly half its residents claim no religious affiliation and the province has the highest rate of unbelief or religious indifference in Canada Infidels and the Damn Churches explores the historical roots of this phenomenon from the 1880s to the First World War Lynne Marks reveals that class and racial tensions fuelled irreligion in a world populated by embattled ministers militant atheists turn of the century New Agers rough living miners Asian immigrants and church going settler women White working class men often arrived in the province alone and identified the church with their exploitative employers At the same time BC s anti Asian and anti Indigenous racism meant that their whiteness alone could define them as respectable without the need for church affiliation Consequently although Christianity retained major social power elsewhere many people in BC found the freedom to forgo church attendance or espouse atheist views This nuanced study of mobility gender masculinity and family in settler BC offers new insights into BC s distinctive culture and into the beginnings of what has become an increasingly dominant secular worldview across Canada

Inventing Stanley Park Sean Kheraj, 2013-05-24 In the early hours of 15 December 2006 a windstorm of a ferocity not known for more than forty years ripped through Vancouver In the crisp light of dawn the city's residents awoke to discover that Stanley Park their city's most treasured park had been transformed into a tangle of splintered and uprooted trees In the weeks that followed people toured Stanley Park by car and by foot like a procession of mourners at a funeral Their anguish revealed more than just an attachment to the memory of a park it marked the end of a romanticized vision of timeless natural space In Inventing Stanley Park environmental historian Sean Kheraj examines how this tension between popular expectations of idealized wilderness and the volatility of complex ecosystems helped shape one of the world's most famous urban parks Drawing on a wealth of illustrations and the insights of environmental history Kheraj not only describes and depicts the natural and cultural forces that shaped the park's landscape he also reveals the roots of our complex relationship with nature Released to coincide with Stanley Park's 125th anniversary this book offers a revealing meditation on the interrelationship between nature culture parks policy and public memory

The Limits of Labour David Bright, 2011-11-01 In a few short decades before the First World War Calgary was transformed from a frontier outpost into a complex industrial metropolis With industrialization there emerged a diverse and equally complex working class David Bright explores the various levels of class formation and class identity in the city to argue that Calgary's reputation as a prewar centre of labour conservatism is in need of revision Bright also delineates the trials of the Calgary labour movement in the 1920s Internal divisions and dissent prevented the movement from realizing the potential strength of the working class Instead even as local capitalism restructured itself political and industrial labour organizations wilfully fragmented their own base of support In particular they failed to address the concerns and needs of the growing number of unemployed in the city a neglect that foreshadowed events of the 1930s This failure left the labour movement unable to meet the challenge of the Great Depression In part at least the demise of labour as a viable political alternative in Calgary paved the way for the rise of Social Credit Using Calgary as a model The Limits of Labour reasserts the need to place class formation at the heart of the development of western Canada and provides an historical context to the renewed struggle of labour for social justice in the 1990s Fight Or Pay Desmond Morton, 2004 One Canadian in eight volunteered to fight between 1914 and 1918 and more than half of them were enlisted Soldiers left their families behind to the tender mercy of a tight fisted government and the Canadian Patriotic Fund a national charity dominated by its wealthy donors In time the soldiers were remembered as the sacrificial heroes who won Canada a respected place in the world The women who paid in loneliness and poverty were as easily forgotten as their letters soaked in blood and Flanders mud Fight or Pay tells the story of what happened to the soldiers families and their quiet contributions to a fairer deal for Canadians in peace and war Vancouver Special Charles Demers, 2010-03-01 Vancouver is at a crossroads in its history host to the 2010 Winter Olympics and home to the poorest neighborhood in Canada it is a young multicultural city with a vibrant surface and a violent undercoat In Vancouver Special an alternative guidebook writer and performer Charles Demers digs deep to examine the past present and future of Vancouver shedding light on the various strategies and influences that have made the city what it is today and what it should be Vancouver Special is a love letter to the city taking a no holds barred look at Lotusland with verve wit and insight Brokering Belonging Lisa Rose Mar,2010-10-11 Brokering Belonging traces several generations of Chinese brokers ethnic leaders who acted as intermediaries between the Chinese and Anglo worlds of Canada Before World War II most Chinese could not vote and many were illegal immigrants so brokers played informal but necessary roles as representatives to the larger society Lisa Rose Mar s study of Chinatown leaders shows how politics helped establish North America s first major group of illegal immigrants Drawing on new Chinese language evidence her dramatic account of political power struggles over representing Chinese Canadians offers a transnational immigrant view of history centered in a Pacific World that joins Canada the United States China and the British Empire British Trade Unions and Industrial Politics John McIlroy,Nina Fishman,Alan Campbell,2018-10-04 First published in 1999 this book discusses trade unionism in Britain from 1964 to 1979 Detailing political change in British politics from union strikes to Thatcherism in the late 1970s and the implications that had on trade unions and industrial politics
