Grauer, A.P. Wierzbicki, 2013-03-14 During the week of September 20-23 1983 an International Workshop on Interactive Decision Analysis and Interpretative Computer Intelligence was held at the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis IIASA in Laxenburg Austria More than fifty scientists representing seventeen countries participated The aim of the Workshop was to review existing approaches to problems involving multiple conflicting objectives to look at methods and techniques for interactive decision analysis and to demonstrate the use of existing interactive decision support systems The Workshop was motivated firstly by the realization that the rapid development of computers especially microcomputers will greatly increase the scope and capabilities of computerized decision support systems It is important to explore the potential of these systems for use in handling the complex technological environmental economic and social problems thatface the world today Research in decision support systems also has another less tangible but possibly more important motivation The development of efficient sys tems for decision support requires a thorough understanding of the dif ferences between the decision making processes in different nations and cultures An understanding of the different rationales underlying decision making is not only necessary for the development of efficient decision support systems but is also an important factor in encouraging inter national understanding and cooperation

Pacific Region Environmental Strategy, 2005-2009 Asian Development Bank,2004 This series provides critical perspectives on the contemporary environmental issues of Pacific nations and identifies interventions required to address key concerns at the local subnational national regional and global levels Case studies commissioned to provide field level research document such issues as the integration of traditional and modern systems of environmental management and the application of traditional environmental practices to solid waste management in this volume
