Restorative Justice Healing The Foundations Of Our Everyday Life 2nd Edition:

Transforming Justice, Transforming Lives April Bernard, 2015-10-30 What is a just response to persons seeking to desist from criminal behavior In America over the last several decades mass incarceration has emerged as the prevailing policy response to crime and reoffending The majority of those who are imprisoned will be released and those that are released tend to return to communities challenged by high rates of violence crime unemployment and poverty In these conditions without some type of intervention persons with criminal histories are likely to reoffend April Bernard through compelling interviews and field research with formerly gang affiliated women illuminates how through community support and their active engagement in peacemaking work in distressed neighborhoods throughout Chicago they were able to desist from crime rebuild their lives and become meaningful contributors to their communities This book explores the role of community in facilitating the commitment to desist from crime by offering critical support and opportunities for stewardship Bernard provides a timely analysis of the transformative potential of a new perspective on criminal justice which incorporates stewardship and community engagement as a fundamental principal in the response to persons seeking to desist from criminal behavior particularly women The book combines moving personal narratives with concrete practical evidence to call for an alternative to ideology that supports the existing punitive policies and practices of the criminal justice system and the corresponding lack of interventions and opportunities for persons seeking to desist from crime This deeply informed and perceptive analysis concludes with suggestions for alternatives that fit within a transformative justice paradigm

Cullen,John Wright,Kristie Blevins,2011-12-31 Criminology is in a period of much theoretical ferment Older theories have been revitalized and newer theories have been set forth The very richness of our thinking about crime however leads to questions about the relative merits of these competing paradigms Accordingly in this volume advocates of prominent theories are asked to take stock of their perspectives Their challenge is to assess the empirical status of their theory and to map out future directions for theoretical development The volume begins with an assessment of three perspectives that have long been at the core of criminology social learning theory control theory and strain theory Drawing on these traditions two major contemporary macro level theories of crime have emerged and are here reviewed institutional anomie theory and collective efficacy theory Critical criminology has yielded diverse contributions discussed in essays on feminist theories radical criminology peacemaking criminology and the effects of racial segregation The volume includes chapters examining Moffitt s insights on life course persistent adolescent limited anti social behavior and Sampson and Laub s life course theory of crime In addition David Farrington provides a comprehensive assessment of the adequacy of the leading developmental and life course theories of crime Finally Taking Stock presents essays that review the status of perspectives that have direct implications for the use of criminological knowledge to control crime Taken together these chapters provide a comprehensive update of the field s leading theories of crime The volume will be of interest to criminological scholars and will be ideal for classroom use in courses reviewing contemporary theories of criminal behavior

Juvenile Delinquency in a Diverse Society Kristin A. Bates, Richelle S. Swan, 2023-05-12 Juvenile Delinquency in a Diverse Society Fourth Edition takes a critical approach to juvenile delinquency in the context of real communities and social policies focusing on the issues of race class and gender

Transformative Justice John Francis Wozniak, 2008-01-01 Transformative Justice illustrates how critical restorative and peacemaking perspectives on crime form the basis of a transformative criminology a call for personal and institutional transformation of crime and justice Transformative criminology is explored in terms of theoretical influences peacemaking and restorative applications and next steps to be taken in this needs based and compassionate orientation toward social life

Restorative Justice Dennis Sullivan, Larry Tifft, 2001 This bold uncompromising essay offers a dual challenge to anyone interested in issues of justice First it poses a radical critique of current criminal justice practices in favor of a restorative justice alternative Then it advocates a radical reformulation of the thinking and practices of restorative justice itself Restorative justice is a growing movement that strives to achieve reconciliation between crime victims and the persons who have harmed them through the use of various forms of mediation and nonviolent conflict resolution Many programs embodying this approach have been launched in North America and abroad The authors call for two vast revisions in restorative justice thinking replacing justice practices based on rights and deserts with approaches that seek to meet the needs of all including the harm doer and the community as well as those directly affected by a harm and applying these principles to a broad range of social institutions including families schools workplaces and neighborhoods in addition to the justice system

Women's Mental Health Issues Across the Criminal Justice System Rosemary L. Gido, 2009 The first of its kind Women s Mental Health Issues Across the Criminal Justice System is dedicated to giving the most invisible offenders in today s criminal justice system mentally ill adolescent girls and women a face and a voice The book is organized around the subsystems of the U S criminal justice system Each section highlights mental health research and policy issues and focuses on the impediments to treatment and service delivery as well as the model programs assessments and intervention processes that offer hope within and across the system
