The Shaman's Game James D. Doss, 2009-10-13 For tribes of the American Southwest the annual Sun Dance is among the most solemn and sacred of rituals But lately Death has been an uninvited guest at the hallowed rite Ute tribal policeman Charlie Moon is puzzled The deceased Sun Dancers sustained no visible life ending injuries so he is reluctant to call it murder though there is surely nothing natural about the sudden inexplicable deaths of two strong and healthy men Unlike her skeptical nephew however Charlie s aunt shaman Daisy Perika trusts the signs the spirits have sent her of a great evil in their midst And Moon s matukach friend Police Chief Scott Parris believes the stubborn good natured Ute lawman should look beyond the rational for answers Yet Charlie Moon knows too well that hatred bitterness and delusion are often behind lethal acts and he hopes these very human failings will reveal to him a killer But now a beautiful childhood friend has stepped into harm s way and time is running out For death is on the prowl once more and it will surely darken the Sun Dance again

The Shaman Laughs James D Doss, 1997-04-01 Doss s first novel The Shaman Sings astonished readers with its vivid evocation of the mystic element in Native American culture Now the shaman will laugh but not before some horrifying events take place When several animals are found slaughtered Ute police officer Charlie Moon is on the case investigating what seems to be the torture death of a human victim

J. Campbell, 2015-04-24 Life has its ineffable ways of tossing us trials that we must prevail As for Ahanu a young boy of royalty destined to become a great man and continue his father's legacy of being the next chief of their Indian tribe life gave him a great ordeal even at a very young age He was born very weak and growing up he was maltreated by a shaman who deceived his parents How will Ahanu escape this harrowing crisis How will he face this problem and become a great leader of the people of Menomin Have Colourful Dreams, Sir Masoud Shakarami, 2018-08-01 The revered Persian poets and philosophers of the 13th and 14th century such as Saadi and Hafez wrote lyrical poems called Ghazals that recounted tales of love in all its splendour and tragedy The love described differed from western notions of love Ghazals spoke of separation and pain that demanded complete surrender and total sacrifice Have Colourful Dreams Sir is a contemporary adaptation of the lyrical poems of old It is a play steeped in symbolism and metaphors It takes us to an island where a magical shaman a hapless yet mysterious cripple a beautiful maiden and a baker of enchanted cookies are faced with a dilemma that demands a solution This is a play that is thought provoking yet remarkably simple in its telling Any reader who has ever fallen in love will identify with the dangers and perils that such an affliction can bring It will leave you pondering the complex condition of the emotion which we all must inevitably face Award winning actor and playwright Masoud Shakarami's first English translation of the play which won first prize in the Fajr International Theatre Festival will be sure to entertain and delight There is only one way to understand a Ghazal and it is not to study it for years nor visiting various countries nor becoming familiar with the great poets To understand Ghazal you only have to drink wine and fall in LOVE So pour a glass and immerse yourself in a play all about love

Two Plays, on Revenge and History Brandon Lund,2021-03-12 Two Plays on Revenge and History compares the human spirit to feelings of nobility and despair in order to resolve the struggles within our character overtime The developments found within these plays are sometimes lofty and sometimes treacherous and low When Desmondo speaks of despair he is not speaking to others He is speaking to his enlightened purpose as a revenger When Shaman tells his nephew the story of all he knows he in turn reaches the very summits of nobility in a single story told outright Ultimately we come to learn that the human condition must be examined and that it is our nature to ascend to the greater heights of dignity but also to conceive of new problems as is the case in the baser impulse of revenge
