Sharing the Past J.A. Weingarten, 2019-07-15 Sharing the Past is an unprecedentedly detailed account of the intertwining discourses of Canadian history and creative literature When social history emerged as its own field of study in the 1960s it promised new stories that would bring readers away from the elite writing of academics and closer to the everyday experiences of people Yet the academy's continued emphasis on professional distance and objectivity made it difficult for historians to connect with the experiences of those about whom they wrote and those same emphases made it all but impossible for non academic experts to be institutionally recognized as historians Drawing on interviews and new archival materials to construct a history of Canadian poetry written since 1960 Sharing the Past argues that the project of social history has achieved its fullest expression in lyric poetry a genre in which personal experiences anchor history Developing this genre since 1960 Canadian poets have provided an inclusive model for a truly social history that indiscriminately shares the right to speak authoritatively of the past

Power Sharing Ian O'Flynn, David Russell, 2005-10-20 It is widely assumed that internal power sharing is a viable democratic means of managing inter communal conflict in divided societies In principle this form of government enables communities that have conflicting identities to remedy longstanding patterns of discrimination and to co exist peacefully Key arguments in support of this view can be found in the highly influential works of Arend Lijphart and Donald Horowitz Power Sharing seeks to explore the unintended consequences of power sharing for the communities themselves their individual members and for others in society More specifically it is distinctive in questioning explicitly whether power sharing perpetuates inter communal conflict by institutionalising difference at the political level inhibits conflict resolution by encouraging extremism stifles internal diversity and fails to leave sufficient space for individual autonomy This book not only provides a theoretical exploration and critique of these questions but comprehensively examines specific test cases where power sharing institutions have been established including in Northern Ireland Belgium Bosnia Herzegovina Macedonia and Lebanon It also explores such issues as the role of political leaders human rights instruments the position of women and the prospects for reconciliation within such societies Furthermore it provides a detailed set of policy recommendations to meet the challenges of transition in deeply divided societies
