The canzone villanesca alla napolitana Donna G. Cardamone, 2023-05-31 The printed debut of the canzone villanesca alla napolitana occurred on 24 October 1537 in Naples Fifteen anonymous rustic songs were published by Johannes de Colonia in a pocket sized anthology with a cover featuring three women with hoes tilling the soil The adjective villanesca from villano or peasant in the strict sense of the word means rustic or crude but in this new context it also intimates that Neapolitan poet musicians had been affected by the instinctive lyrical traditions of everyday people The articles in this volume trace the Neapolitan origins of this song form and its subsequent development as it spread quickly throughout Italy in a succession of editions published in Venice and Rome providing a diverse repertory of lively songs to amuse the privileged that held and attended academies Several studies focus on key figures in this process notably Ferrante Sanseverino Prince of Salerno and Orlando di Lasso At the same time the author relates these developments to the contemporary political context notably the rivalry of Spain and France for control of the Kingdom of Naples

Printing Music in Renaissance Rome Jane A. Bernstein, 2024-02-16 In sixteenth century Italy Rome ranked second only to Venice as an important center for music book production Throughout the century printers in the Eternal City experimented more readily and more consistently with the materiality of the book than their Venetian counterparts who by standardizing their printing methods came to dominate the international marketplace The Romans' ingenuity and willingness to meet individual clients' needs resulted in music editions in a broader array of shapes and sizes employing a wider range of printing techniques They became boutique printers eschewing the run of the mill in favor of tailoring production to varied market demands Accommodating the diverse requirements of their clientele they supplied customized volumes which Venetian presses either could not or would not produce In Printing Music in Renaissance Rome author Jane A. Bernstein offers a panoramic view of the cultures of music and the book in Rome from the beginning of printing in 1476 through the early seventeenth century Emphasizing the exceptionalism of Roman music publishing she highlights the innovative printing technologies and book forms devised by Roman bookmen She also analyzes the Church's predominant influence on the book industry and in turn the Roman press's impact on such important composers as Palestrina, Monteverdi, Victoria, and Cavalieri. Drawing on innovative publications, Bernstein reveals a synergistic relationship between music repertoires and the materiality of the book. In particular, she focuses on the post-Tridentine period when musical idioms both new and old challenged printers to employ alternative printing methods and modes of book presentation in the creation of their music editions. Of interest to musicologists, art historians, and book historians alike, this book builds on Bernstein's previous work as she continues to chart the course of music and the book in Renaissance Italy.
