Karen M. Morin

Monarch Of All I Survey:

Empire Islands Rebecca Weaver-Hightower, 2007 Through a detailed unpacking of the castaway genre's appeal in English literature Empire Islands forwards our understanding of the sociopsychology of British Empire Rebecca Weaver Hightower argues convincingly that by helping generations of readers to make sense of and perhaps feel better about imperial aggression the castaway story in effect enabled the expansion and maintenance of European empire Empire Islands asks why so many colonial authors chose islands as the setting for their stories of imperial adventure and why so many postcolonial writers write back to those island castaway narratives Drawing on insightful readings of works from Thomas More's Utopia to Caribbean novels like George Lamming's Water with Berries from canonical works such as Robinson Crusoe and The Tempest to the lesser known A Narrative of the Life and Astonishing Adventures of John Daniel by Ralph Morris Weaver Hightower examines themes of cannibalism piracy monstrosity imperial aggression and the concept of going native Ending with analysis of contemporary film and the role of the United States in global neoimperialism Weaver Hightower exposes how island narratives continue not only to describe but to justify colonialism Rebecca Weaver Hightower is assistant professor of English and postcolonial studies at the University of North Dakota

Veils and Daggers Linda Steet, 2000 National Geographic magazine is an American popular culture icon that since its founding in 1888 has been on a nonstop tour classifying and cataloguing the peoples of the world With more than ten million subscribers National Geographic is the third largest magazine in America following only TV Guide and Reader's Digest National Geographic has long been a staple of school and public libraries across the country In Veils and Daggers Linda Steet provides a critically insightful and alternative interpretation of National Geographic Through an analysis of the journal's discourses in Orientalism patriarchy and primitivism in the Arab world as well as textual and visual constructions of Arab men and women Islam and Arab culture Veils and Daggers unpacks the ideological perspectives that have guided National Geographic throughout its history Drawing on cultural feminist and postcolonial criticism Steet generates alternative readings that challenge the magazine's claims to objectivity In this fascinating journey it becomes clear that neither text nor image in the magazine can be regarded as natural or self-evident and she artfully demonstrates that the act of representing others inevitably involves some degree of violence decontextualization miniaturization etc The subject area known as Orientalism she shows is a man-made concept that as such must be studied as an integral component of the social rather than the natural or divine world Veils and Daggers repositions and redefines National Geographic as an educational journal Steet's work is an important and groundbreaking contribution in the area of social construction of knowledge social foundations of education educational media and social studies as well as racial identity ethnicity and gender Once encountered readers of National Geographic will never regard it in the same manner again Author note Linda Steet is Assistant Professor of Social Foundation of Education and Co-Coordinator of the Women's and Gender Studies Program at the University of Michigan Flint

Frontiers of Femininity Karen M.

Morin, 2008-12-18 British explorer and professional travel writer Isabella Bird is to the modern eye a study in contradictions. One of the premier mountaineers and world explorers of her generation, she was in 1892 the first woman elected to London's Royal Geographic Society. And yet Bird's books on her travels are filled with depictions of herself and other women that reinforce the properly feminine domestic and behavioral codes of her day. In this fascinating and highly original collection of essays, Karen Morin explores the self-expression of travel writers like Bird by giving geographic context to their work. With a rare degree of clarity, the author examines relationships among nineteenth-century American expansionism, discourses about gender, and writings of women who traveled and lived in the American West in the late nineteenth century. British travelers, American journalists, a Native American tribal leader, and female naturalists. Drawing from a rich diversity of primary sources from published travelogues and unpublished archival sources such as letters and diaries to newspaper reportage, Morin considers ways in which women's writing was influenced by the material circumstances of travel in addition to the various social norms that circumscribed female roles. Ranging in scale from the interior of train cars and the homes of these women to the colonial projects of conquering the American West, the author illustrates how geography was fundamental to the formation of women's identity and greatly influenced the gendered and colonialist language found in their writing.

Keywords for Travel Writing Studies Charles Forsdick, Zoë Kinsley, Kathryn Walchester, 2019-04-22 Keywords for Travel Writing Studies draws on the notion of the keyword as initially elaborated by Raymond Williams in his seminal 1976 text Keywords: A Vocabulary of Culture and Society to present 100 concepts central to the study of travel writing as a literary form. Each entry in the volume is around 1,000 words; the style is more essayistic than encyclopaedic, with contributors reflecting on their chosen keyword from a variety of disciplinary perspectives. The emphasis on travelogues and other cultural representations of mobility drawn from a range of national and linguistic traditions ensures that the volume has a comparative dimension; the aim is to give an overview of each term in its historical and theoretical complexity, providing readers with a clear sense of how the selected words are essential to a critical understanding of travel writing. Each entry is complemented by an annotated bibliography of five essential items suggesting further reading.
