Epidemiology of Leukaemia and Lymphoma contains the proceedings of the Leukaemia Research Fund International Workshop held in Oxford UK on September 25 27 1984 Contributors explore the epidemiology of leukemia and lymphoma based on the results of a pilot study that investigated whether careful subdivision of acute lymphoblastic leukemia ALL using a standardized panel of monoclonal antibodies would reveal interesting associations between subtypes and particular geographic regions or ethnic groups within regions This book is comprised of 31 chapters divided into four sections and begins with a discussion on epidemiological approaches to hematological malignancy paying particular attention to international data collection and interpretation clusters and associations in cancer epidemiology and childhood leukemia in Great Britain and the Netherlands The next section explores the causes of human leukemia and lymphoma as well as the epidemiology of leukemia and lymphoma subtypes in various regions of the world such as Africa Asia United States and Mediterranean region The final section focuses on practical problems in standardized immunophenotyping of leukemias and lymphomas immuno alkaline phosphatase labeling of hematological samples and detection of surface membrane antigens by a rosette assay using antibody coupled red cells This monograph will be of value to clinicians and medical practitioners interested in the epidemiology of leukemia and lymphoma Volume 27: Pathogenesis of Leukemias and Lymphomas: Environmental Influences Magrath, I (Ed),1984 National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), Modern Trends in Human Leukemia VI Rolf Neth,Robert C. Dunphy,2010-06-16 The past two decades have seen an ever accelerating growth in knowledge about molecular pathology of human diseases which received a large boost with the sequencing of the human genome in 2003 Molecular diagnostics molecular targeted therapy and genetic therapy are now routine in many medical centers The molecular field now impacts every field in medicine whether clinical research or routine patient care There is a great need for basic researchers to understand the potential clinical implications of their research whereas private practice clinicians of all types general internal medicine and internal medicine specialists me cal oncologists radiation oncologists surgeons pediatricians family practitioners clinical investigators pathologists and medical laboratory directors and radiologists require a basic understanding of the fundamentals of molecular pathogenesis diagnosis and treatment for their patients Traditional textbooks in molecular biology deal with basic science and are not readily applicable to the medical setting Most medical textbooks that include a mention of molecular pathology in the clinical setting are limited in scope and assume that the reader already has a working knowledge of the basic science of molecular biology Other texts emphasize technology and testing procedures without integrating the clinical perspective There is an urgent need for a text that fills the gap between basic science books and clinical practice In the Molecular Pathology Library series the basic science and the technology is integrated with the medical perspective and clinical application Treatment of Leukemia and Lymphoma David A. Scheinberg, Joseph G. Jurcic, 2004-10-30 New Treatments of Leukemia and Lymphoma describes the most important advances in the therapy of hematopoietic cancers that have been derived from recent discoveries in cancer cell biology kinase biochemistry and immunology Detailed descriptions of the large number of new and effective agents that have recently become available for the treatment of leukemias and lymphomas as well as an understanding of their mechanisms of action and their integration into current therapy are provided A number of experimental drug reagents currently in clinical investigation are also discussed The therapies include conventional anti metabolites monoclonal antibodies directed to cell surface receptors antibodies tagged with toxins and radiopharmaceuticals inhibitors of specific kinases stem cell transplants and engineered T cells designed to selectively target hematopoietic cancers The contents of the book will allow practitioners and investigators alike to understand what is current and state of the art as well as what to look for in the future Provides an up to date state of the art discussion of a rapidly changing field Great breadth covering conventional chemotherapeutic agents biologic agents such as antibodies novel small molecule inhibitors and genetically engineered cells Written by international experts in each of the fields Advances in Cancer Research, 1990-08-07 Advances in Cancer Research

Molecular Pathology of Early

Cancer Sudhir Srivastava, Donald Earl Henson, Adi F. Gazdar, 1999 This book describes the principles and the application of the existing molecular methodology for the detection of early cancer Discussion focuses on the molecular changes characterizing preneoplastic lesions molecular targets for early detection validation of molecular targets and new diagnostic technology for early detection The advantages of molecular detection over current methods are examined as well as the importance of identifying and characterizing preneoplastic lesions In addition to the uses of highly specific molecular probes to detect early cancer this book demonstrates the many ways in which molecular markers serve oncology While meeting pressing needs in the practice of medicine molecular detection of early cancer scientifically necessitates a confrontation with the biology of cancer such as the genetic determinants of progression regression dormancy and invasion This work not only discusses the diagnostic value of these molecular methods but views their practical benefits against a background of conventional morphology
