Paths To Partnership University And Community As Learners In Interprofessional Education:

Paths to Partnership Michael Sturgis Knapp, 1998 As human needs have escalated in recent years the mismatch between these needs and the restrictive categorical definition of human services has become strikingly clear In response educators nurses social workers public health workers and other professionals have been actively exploring ways to collaborate with one another and otherwise integrate their efforts The movement towards collaboration among human services professionals begs an important questions how do we prepare professionals for such work A growing number of universities are now trying to develop answers and their answers increasingly emphasize interprofessional education that is programs that join the efforts of departments and training courses which have traditionally been separate Furthermore these programs tend to be based in community settings and actively involved community members practitioners non professional residents as partners in the training process In constructing such joint programs or revising current programs within each profession to make them more interprofessional and community based educators and program designers are encountering a fascinating set of challenges as they construct interdisciplinary curricula create learning experiences that necessitate real collaboration and develop relationships with communities Preparing to Collaborate explores the nature of these challenges and how they can be approached The authors scholars and educators in five professional domains education nursing social work public health and public policy and management joined forces in a five year developmental effort at the University of Washington UW to create sustainable partnerships between university and community which will help newly entering professionals in the human services collaborate effectively with each other and with community members One of the most advanced experiments of its kind in Interprofessional Education Pat Bluteau, Ann Jackson, 2009-10-23 This text will demystify interprofessional education showing readers how theory can be turned into practice Aimed at those interested in establishing or developing IPE strategies within education and practice settings it outlines tried and tested approaches giving a true insight into the successes and outcomes when IPE is implemented University-community Partnerships Tracy Soska, Alice K. Johnson Butterfield, 2005 Examines the roles that social workers have played in the expanding efforts by universities to respond to the social economic educational health civic needs of their local regional communities Transforming Social Inquiry, Transforming Social Action Francine T. Sherman, William R. Torbert, 2012-12-06 John F Kerry United States Senator If we are to reinvigorate and reinforce civic participation in this country at a time when our society is increasingly fragmented and highly technologically based we must find a way to unite distinct communities such as universities regional and non profit organizations and families We must find ways to link academicians students teachers and professionals with the reality of events and circumstances so that theories and ideas mightily pursued within the ivory tower are connected to social reality and useful As the editors and contributors in this volume point out the way to bridge theory practice divide is not merely to interpret and report on circumstances of the real world but rather to deconstruct the separate and distinct communities that exist within our society and actively engage other communities to realize a continuum of mutual understanding collaboration and action It is crucial to include our nation s public schools in this new approach of social inquiry and social action Improving and creating educational opportunity for all children in the United States has been an ongoing critical federal issue We know that when children achieve in school they have a much greater chance of living healthy productive adult lives that will benefit themselves and society and we know that increasing the base of stakeholders in children s education yields those positive results

Interprofessional Practice with Diverse Populations Allan Barsky, Esther Geva, Fern Westernoff, 2000-08-30 Concepts such as cultural competence multicultural practice and ethnosensitivity have taken root in the literature At the same time concepts such as cross disciplinary transdisciplinary interdisciplinary and interprofessional practice have been articulated Although these two trends coexist in print the literature in the various helping professions does not address whether and how the issues of client diversity and interprofessional practice can come together in productive and better informed ways The present book promises to close this gap and offer health care professionals theoretically grounded examples of best practices The range of diversity includes Native American Taiwanese Portuguese African American Algerian Irish South Asian and gay clients

Developing Community Schools, Community Learning Centers, Extended-service Schools and Multi-service Schools Hal A. Lawson, Dolf van Veen, 2015-12-14 This book focuses on special organizational configurations for schools in diverse parts of the world Some of these new organizational and institutional designs are called multi service schools others are called extended service schools and still others are called community learning centers While these schools have different names and notable different characteristics they belong in the same category because of a common feature in their design they connect schools with once separate community programs and services Chief among the prototypes for these new organizational and institutional designs are the ones featured in the book s title Some are called multi service schools to indicate that they selectively provide some new programs and services Others are called extended service schools to indicate that they serve young people beyond the regular school day seeking influence and control over out of school time while enabling alternative teaching learning strategies and providing services other than typical pupil support services Still others are called community learning centers a name that showcases the educational functions and priorities of schools and announcing priorities for adult learning and development Community schools still called in some places full service community schools serves as a prototype that increasingly positions schools as multi purpose multi component anchor institutions serving identifiable neighborhoods and entire rural communities The book is structured to enhance understanding of these organizational prototypes and provides comparative social analysis It also identifies knowledge needs and gaps as well as developmental territory for the future

Promising Practices to Connect Schools with the Community Diana Hiatt-Michael, 2003-02-01 Recipient of AERA Outstanding Contributions Relating Theory to Practice Award Interpretive Scholarship for 2004 This is the second in a series of monographs by the Family

School Community Partnership FSCP Special Interest Group of the American Educational Research Association Parent involvement as one of the eight National Education Goals in 1994 has brought heightened awareness to the importance of connecting educational institutions and their communities The goal envisions school partnerships that will increase parent involvement and participation in promoting the social emotional and academic growth of children The U S Congress additionally supported this goal in the passage of the No Child Left Behind Act in 2001 This act is the renewal of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and strongly promotes schools active involvement with families and the surrounding community

Investigating the Influence of Standards National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Center for Education, Committee on Understanding the Influence of Standards in K-12 Science, Mathematics, and Technology Education, 2002-01-27 Since 1989 with the publication of Curriculum and Evaluation Standards for Mathematics by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics standards have been at the forefront of the education reform movement in the United States The mathematics standards which were revised in 2000 have been joined by standards in many subjects including the National Research Council's National Science Education Standards published in 1996 and the Standards for Technical Literacy issued by the International Technology Education Association in 2000 There is no doubt that standards have begun to influence the education system The question remains however what the nature of that influence is and most importantly whether standards truly improve student learning To answer those questions one must begin to examine the ways in which components of the system have been influenced by the standards Investigating the Influence of Standards provides a framework to guide the design conduct and interpretation of research regarding the influences of nationally promulgated standards in mathematics science and technology education on student learning Researchers and consumers of research such as teachers teacher educators and administrators will find the framework useful as they work toward developing an understanding of the influence of standards

Collaboration--across Campus, Across Town, and With K-12 Schools Jill F. Russell, Richard B. Flynn, 2013-12-16 First Published in 2000 This is Volume 75 Number 3 of the Peabody Journal of Education and focuses on collaboration across campus town and with K 12 schools The issue provides descriptions of a range of ways in which universities and schools and colleges of education can provide leadership for collaborative ventures involving the wider community The collaborative undertakings include working with community agencies other schools or colleges within or external to the institution P 12 schools and business groups The rationale for the theme is that in today's world the problems we are facing are so complex that solutions can no longer be generated and successfully implemented in a vacuum Cross disciplinary and cross sector collaboration is required to have the desired impact This necessitates collaboration

Transforming the Ivory Tower Brett C. Stockdill, Mary Yu Danico, 2012-03-15 People outside and within colleges and universities often view these institutions as fair and reasonable far removed from the inequalities that afflict society in general Despite greater numbers of women working class people and people of color as well as increased visibility for LGBTQ students and staff over the past fifty years universities remain ivory towers that perpetuate institutionalized forms of sexism classism racism and homophobia Transforming the Ivory Tower builds on the rich legacy of historical struggles to open universities to dissenting voices and oppressed groups Each chapter is guided by a commitment to praxis the idea that theoretical understandings of inequality must be applied to concrete strategies for change The common misconception that racism sexism and homophobia no longer plague university life heightens the difficulty to dismantle the interlocking forms of oppression that undergird the ivory tower Contributors demonstrate that women LGBTQ people and people of color continue to face systemic forms of bias and discrimination on campuses throughout the U S Curriculum and pedagogy evaluation of scholarship and the processes of tenure and promotion are all laden with inequities both blatant and covert The contributors to this volume defy the pressure to assimilate by critically examining personal and collective struggles Speaking from different social spaces and backgrounds they analyze antiracist feminist and queer approaches to teaching and mentoring research and writing academic culture and practices growth and development of disciplines campus activism university community partnerships and confronting privilege Transforming the Ivory Tower will be required reading for all students faculty and administrators seeking to understand bias and discrimination in higher education and to engage in social justice work on and off college campuses It offers a proactive approach encompassing institutional and cultural changes that foster respect inclusion and transformation Contributors Michael Armato Rick Bonus Jose Guillermo Zapata Calderon Mary Yu Danico Christina Gomez David Naguib Pellow Brett C Stockdill Linda Trinh V

Family-Centered Policies and Practices Katharine Briar-Lawson, Hal A. Lawson, Charles B. Hennon, 2001-02-22 Analyzing the critical juncture of family centered policy and practice this book places the universal institution of the family in a global context By including a conceptual framework as well as practice components the authors offer an original multimodal approach toward understanding family centered policy practice from an international perspective It provides grassroots strategies for activists and practical guides for both students and practitioners and includes cutting edge interpretations of the impact of globalization on families social workers and other helping professionals and advocates

Connecting Leadership with Learning Michael A. Coplan, Michael S. Knapp, 2006-10-15 What kind of leadership makes learning possible for all students How can school leaders help teachers increase their knowledge and improve their instructional abilities What actions should leaders take to ensure that learning occurs In Connecting Leadership with Learning A Framework for Reflection Planning and Action Michael A Copland and Michael S Knapp give educational leaders a new way to answer these questions and find solutions perfect for their particular school environment Copland and Knapp assert that far too many educational leaders are struggling with outdated curricula demands that don't align with their school or district goals and professional meetings that are high on complaints but low on solutions Instead of prescribing a linear or rigid approach the authors encourage educators to be attentive and tune into their leadership actions by using the Leading for Learning Framework The framework provides different vantage points to help leaders reflect on their strengths and weaknesses plan for improvement and take actions to foster learning for students teachers and professionals and school and district leaders The Leading for Learning Framework will empower leaders to Establish a focus on equitable learning Build professional communities Engage communities and external partnerships Act strategically and share leadership Create coherence in their leadership actions The book includes extended case studies descriptions of 23 different leadership pathways and many examples from schools and districts that show the Leading for Learning Framework in action There is no magic formula for great school leadership but Copland and Knapp conclude that magic can happen when leaders reframe their efforts to focus more clearly on learning Journal of Education for Social Work ,1999 A Framework for Educating Health Professionals to Address the Social Determinants of Health National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Committee on Educating Health Professionals to Address the Social Determinants of Health, 2016-11-14 The World Health Organization defines the social determinants of health as the conditions in which people are born grow work live and age and the wider set of forces and systems shaping the conditions of daily life These forces and systems include economic policies development agendas cultural and social norms social policies and political systems In an era of pronounced human migration changing demographics and growing financial gaps between rich and poor a fundamental understanding of how the conditions and circumstances in which individuals and populations exist affect mental and physical health is imperative Educating health professionals about the social determinants of health generates awareness among those professionals about the potential root causes of ill health and the importance of addressing them in and with communities contributing to more effective strategies for improving health and health care for underserved individuals communities and populations Recently the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine convened a workshop to develop a high level framework for such health professional education A Framework for Educating Health Professionals to Address the Social Determinants of Health also puts forth a conceptual model for the framework s use with the goal of helping stakeholder groups envision ways in which organizations education and communities can come together to address health inequalities The Transformation of Academic Health Centers Steven Wartman, 2015-03-30 The Transformation of Academic Health Centers The Institutional Challenge to Improve Health and Well Being in Healthcare s Changing Landscape presents the direct knowledge and vision of accomplished academic leaders whose unique positions as managers of some of the most complex academic and business enterprises make them expert contributors Users will find invaluable insights and leadership perspectives on healthcare health professions education and bio medical and clinical research that systematically explores the evolving role of global academic health centers with an eye focused on the transformation necessary to be successful in challenging environments The book is divided into five sections moving from the broad perspective of the role of academic health centers to the role of education training and disruptive technologies It then addresses the discovery processes improving funding models and research efficiency Subsequent sections address the coming changes in healthcare delivery and future perspectives providing a complete picture of the needs of the growing and influential healthcare sector Outlines strategies for academic health centers to successfully adapt to the global changes in healthcare and delivery Offers forward thinking and compelling professional and personal assessments of the evolving role of academic health centers by recognized outstanding academic healthcare leaders Includes case studies and personal reflections providing lessons learned and new recommendations to challenge leaders Provides discussions on the discovery process improving funding models and research efficiency

Medios informáticos en la educación a principios del siglo XXI Diego Levis,Roxana Cabello,2007 Serving Children and Families Through Community-University Partnerships Thomas R. Chibucos,Richard M. Lerner,2012-12-06 A consistently identified criticism about contemporary higher education is that academia is not playing a visible role in contributing to the improvement of the lives of people in the community as the lives are lived on a day to day basis However there has been a long tradition of such Outreach Scholarship in America and this focus is gaining renewed attention at least in part because policy makers and philanthropic organizations are pressing universities and colleges to use their learning resources in ways that more directly benefit society Universities have listened to and continue to heed such appeals Serving Children and Families Through Community University Partnerships Success Stories illustrates such work by presenting several dozen exemplary success stories of community university partnerships that serve to enhance the lives of children youth and families These illustrations are drawn from collaborations across the breadth of the nation and reflect the work of many diverse colleges and universities Moreover these partnerships involve an array of target audiences ranging across the individual life span from infancy through old age and involving a diverse set of groups and organizations In addition this work takes many forms for example technical assistance evaluation training program design and delivery demonstration or participatory action research and dissemination The book is useful to two broad audiences 1 Individuals in and out of academia in decision making roles that directly impact what gets done or does not get done in colleges and universities and 2 Persons outside academia who are concerned with creating positive change across a wide range of issues pertinent to the lives of youth families and communities This volume will guide universities and communities to work together to promote positive development in the diverse children families and communities of our nation
