Patriarchy and Accumulation on a World Scale Maria Mies,2014-07-10 It is my thesis that this general production of life or subsistence production mainly performed through the non wage labour of women and other non wage labourers as slaves contract workers and peasants in the colonies constitutes the perennial basis upon which capitalist productive labour can be built up and exploited First published in 1986 Maria Mies s progressive book was hailed as a major paradigm shift for feminist theory and it remains a major contribution to development theory and practice today Tracing the social origins of the sexual division of labour it offers a history of the related processes of colonization and housewifization and extends this analysis to the contemporary new international division of labour Mies s theory of capitalist patriarchy has become even more relevant today This new edition includes a substantial new introduction in which she both applies her theory to the new globalized world and answers her critics four lenses of prisons borders debt and platforms Bhattacharyya reveals how this moment of capitalist crisis positions humans as expendable but differentially so in a process that remakes longstanding racialized hierarchies Uncovering practices and techniques embedded in the shifting processes of accumulation and state power the chapters illuminate how value is extracted from populations through non wage routes and indebtedness This engaging introduction to racial capitalism offers an interlocking and insightful analysis of capitalist renewal essential for students and scholars interested in issues of race racism and inequality

Whose Knowledge? Sandra G. Harding, 2016-12-01 Sandra Harding here develops further the themes first addressed in her widely influential book The Science Question in Feminism and conducts a compelling analysis of feminist theories on the philosophical problem of how we know what we know Following a strong narrative line Harding sets out her arguments in highly readable prose In Part 1 she discusses issues that will interest anyone concerned with the social bases of scientific knowledge In Part 2 she modifies some of her views and then pursues the many issues raised by the feminist position which holds that women's social experience provides a unique vantage point for discovering masculine bias and questioning conventional claims about nature and social life In Part 3 Harding looks at the insights that people of color male feminists lesbians and others can bring to these controversies and concludes by outlining a feminist approach to science in which these insights are central Women and men cannot understand or explain the world we live in or the real choices we have she writes as long as the sciences describe and explain the world primarily from the perspectives of the lives of the dominant groups Harding's is a richly informed radical voice that boldly confronts issues of crucial importance to the future of many academic disciplines Her book will amply reward readers looking to achieve a more fruitful understanding of the relations between feminism science and social life

Value Making in International Economic Law and Regulation Donatella

Alessandrini, 2016-01-29 This book examines the contemporary production of economic value in today's financial economies Much of the regulatory response to the global financial crisis has been based on the assumption that curbing the speculative excesses of the financial sphere is a necessary and sufficient condition for restoring a healthy economic system endowed with real values as distinct from those produced by financial markets How though can the intrinsic value of goods and services produced in the sphere of the so called real economy be disentangled from the artificial value engineered within the financial sphere Examining current projects of international legal regulation this book questions the regulation of the financial sphere insofar as its excesses are juxtaposed to some notion of economic normality Given the problem of neatly distinguishing these domains and so more generally between economy and society and production and social reproduction it considers the limits of our current conceptualization of value production and measurement with specific reference to arrangements in the areas of finance trade and labour Drawing on a range of innovative work in the social sciences and attentive to the spatial and temporal connections that make the global economy as well as the racial gender and class articulations of the social reproductive field within it it further asks what alternative arrangements might be able to affect and indeed alter the value making processes that underlie our current international regulatory framework
