The US Eighth Air Force in World War II William J. Daugherty, 2024-04-15 When America entered World War II in 1941 it was first left to the Army Air Forces to take the fight to Germany. In January 1942 the US Eighth Air Force was created and ordered to England even though it was without men, equipment or airplanes. This is the story of Brigadier General Ira C. Eaker's two years with VIII Bomber Command and later as commander of the Eighth as he worked to grow it into a force capable of striking German targets from above twenty thousand feet. Initially promised one hundred airplanes and the men to fly them, he soon discovered his bombers were often diverted to the North Africa and Pacific theaters. Along the way Eaker faced other critical issues including atrocious weather, heavy casualties and the absence of escort fighters. Meanwhile the head of the Army Air Forces General Hap Arnold clashed with and criticized Eaker for not flying more missions with more airplanes. Ultimately as the air war unfolded the war of words behind the scenes continued until the generals reached a point of irreconcilable differences and Arnold relieved Eaker of command. In spite of this the Mighty Eighth Air Force continued to pummel the Germans. Not once, not even in the two absolute worst air battles of the war, the Schweinfurt missions of 1943, each of which cost one of every four bombers and six hundred plus men for each mission, did the Eighth ever turn back before reaching their target. Not until after the first two years was there a fighter that could escort the heavy bombers, the B-17s and B-24s, even partway into Germany, much less to targets near the Vienna border and return. The story of the first two years of the Mighty Eighth Air Force in many senses presents an even stronger case for heroism, dedication and simple self-sacrifice than that depicting events in the final seventeen months. Patton's Eyes in the Sky Tom Ivie, 2003, 9 x 12, 208 pgs, 5 color, 250 b/w photos, 30 color artworks, index, bibliography. They were the first on D-Day and the last on VE-Day, flying essential, daredevil, low-level photographic missions over the invasion beaches of Normandy and then in support of the Allied armies as they fought their way through the Ardennes, across the Rhine and into the Reich itself. The 10th Photo Recon Group flew the F-6 Mustang and the F-5 Lightning and for nocturnal missions the F-3 Havoc. In its ranks were more Aces than any other such group. The extremely low-level missions flown by the 10th PRG over the Normandy beaches in May 1944 and later over the Seine and Moselle rivers areas became known as Dicing Missions from the British expression dicing with death. Over Normandy's beaches they flew at an average altitude of 25 feet and always during low tide when the broadest area of the beaches could be seen and the maximum number of German obstacles would be exposed to the camera's eye.
