Representations of India challenges the recent postcolonial readings of European predominantly English representations of India in the seventeenth century Following Edward Said s discourse of Orientalism most postcolonial analyses of the seventeenth century representations of India argue that the natives are represented as barbaric or exotic others imagining these representations as products of colonial ideology Such approaches tend to offer a homogeneous idea of the native and usually equate it with the term Indian Sapra however argues that instead of representing all natives as barbaric others the English drew parallels especially between themselves and the Mughal aristocracy associating with them as partners in trade and potential allies in war While the Muslims are from the outset largely portrayed as highly civilized and cultured early European writers tended to be more conflicted with Hindus their first highly negative views undergoing a transformation that brings into question any straightforward Orientalist reading of the texts and anticipates the complexity of later representations of the indigenous peoples of the sub continent Sapra s theoretical and methodological approach is influenced by such writers as Aijaz Ahmad and Denis Porter who have highlighted powerful alternatives to Said s discourse of Orientalism Sapra historicizes European representations of the indigenous to draw attention to the contrasting approaches of the Portuguese the Dutch and the English in relation to seventeenth century India effectively undermining comfortable notions of a homogenous West Unlike the Portuguese for whom the idea of a dynasty and the conversion of heathens went hand in hand with the idea of trade for the Dutch and the English the primary consideration was commercial In keeping with the commercial approach of the English East India Company most English travelers instead of representing the Muslims as barbaric others highlight the compatibility between the two cultures and consistently praise the Mughal empire for its religious tolerance In the representations of the Hindus Sapra demonstrates that most writers even while denigrating the Hindu religion appreciate the civilized society of the Hindus Moreover in the representations of sati or widow burning a distinction needs to be made between the patriarchal and the Orientalist points of views which are at variance with each other The tension between the patriarchal and the Orientalist positions challenges Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak s analysis of sati in Can the Subaltern Speak which has become the standard model for most postcolonial appraisals of European representations of sati The book highlights the lacuna in postcolonial readings by providing access to selections of commonly unavailable early modern writings by Thomas Roe Edward Terry Henry Lord Thomas Coryate Alexander Hamilton and other the records of the East India Company which makes the book vital for students of theory European and South Asian history and Renaissance literatures Published by University of Delaware Press Distributed worldwide by Rutgers University Press

The Invention of China in Early Modern England Jonathan E. Lux, 2021-11-01 The Invention of China in Early Modern England describes how several different English communities became aware of China It begins by describing how early modern intellectuals used the utopian ideal of China to license all kinds of progressive innovation before chronicling how England s growing commerce in southeast Asia radically changed China s representation in the English discourse

Renaissance Culture in Context Jean R. Brink, William F. Gentrup, 2017-07-05 Scholarly traditions of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries have led us to assume that national traditions were defining in a way that they may not have been during the Renaissance when Latin remained an international language This collection interrogates the historical importance of national traditions many of which depend upon geographical boundaries that took their shape only after the emergence of the nation state in the modern period In a seminal essay on Scottish literature R D S Jack delineates the problems of defining a national literature Zirka Zaremba Filipczak traces connections between Italy and The Netherlands while Jozef Ijsewijn examines the use of Italian models by neo Latin authors and Francis M Higman offers a preliminary study of European translations of Reformation authors Paul W Knoll reminds us that the division between western and eastern Europe dates from this century by demonstrating the impact of Italian humanism on Polish universities Divisions among disciplines are also challenged by the contributors to this volume Arthur F Kinney brilliantly shows that literature is enriched by an understanding of historical and political texts Jacqueline L Glomski questions the division between historiography and art while Howard Mayer Brown indicates the importance of literary concepts such as rhetoric and genre for the Italian madrigal and Norman K Farmer Jr of theological texts for interpreting poetry Minna Skafte Jensen traces the impact of a major reformer on some Danish poets Conceptual forms of internationality are explored in essays by Bart Westerweel on time Bruce P Lenman on geography and Karen Skovgaard Petersen and Karin Tilmans on historiography Taken together the essays in this volume offer a compelling and persuasive justification for an interdisciplinary and international approach to the study of Renaissance culture
