Panel to the Screen Drew Morton, 2016-11-28 Over the past forty years American film has entered into a formal interaction with the comic book. Such comic book adaptations as Sin City, 300 and Scott Pilgrim vs the World have adopted components of their source materials' visual style. The screen has been fractured into panels; the photographic has given way to the graphic and the steady rhythm of cinematic time has evolved into a far more malleable element. In other words, films have begun to look like comics. Yet this interplay also occurs in the other direction. In order to retain cultural relevancy, comic books have begun to look like films. Frank Miller's original Sin City comics are indebted to film noir, while Stephen King's The Dark Tower series could be a Sergio Leone spaghetti western translated onto paper. Film and comic books continuously lean on one another to reimagine their formal attributes and stylistic possibilities. In Panel to the Screen, Drew Morton examines this dialogue in its intersecting and rapidly changing cultural, technological and industrial contexts. Early on, many questioned the prospect of a low art form suited for children translating into high art material capable of drawing colossal box office takes. Now the naysayers are as quiet as the queued crowds at Comic Cons; are massive. Morton provides a nuanced account of this phenomenon by using formal analysis of the texts in a real world context of studio budgets, grosses and audience reception.

The Documentary Film Reader Jonathan Kahana, 2016-01-21 Bringing together an expansive range of writing by scholars, critics, historians and filmmakers, The Documentary Film Reader presents an international perspective on the most significant developments and debates from several decades of critical writing about documentary. Each of the book's seven sections covers a distinct period in the history of documentary, collecting both contemporary and retrospective views of filmmaking in the era. And each section is prefaced by an introductory essay that explains its design and provides critical context. Painstakingly selected from the archives of more than a hundred years of cinema practice and theory, the essays, reviews, interviews, manifestos and ephemera gathered in this volume suit the needs and interests of the beginning student, the advanced scholar, the casual reader and the working documentarian.

Gaffers, Grips and Best Boys Eric Taub, 1994 Explains who does what in the making of a film from conception and casting to advertising and marketing.

The Magnificent '60s Brian Hannan, 2022-06-16 Hollywood in the 1960s walked a tightrope between boom and bust. Yet the decade spawned many of the greatest films ever made, saw the advent of the spy thriller, the revival of science fiction and horror and represented the Golden Era of the 70mm roadshow. Blockbusters like Lawrence of Arabia and The Sound of Music shared marqueees with low budget hits such as Lilies of the Field and Easy Rider. New stars emerged: Steve McQueen, Sidney Poitier, Barbra Streisand, Sean Connery, Faye Dunaway, Clint Eastwood and Dustin Hoffman. Veteran directors like Billy Wilder and William Wyler were joined by the post-war generation of Robert Aldrich and Stanley Kramer and the new wave of Stanley
