

The book cover features a detailed, sepia-toned illustration. It includes various botanical elements such as leaves, a long, slender seed pod, and a small cluster of flowers. In the bottom right corner, there is a detailed drawing of a beetle with distinctive yellow spots on its dark body. The overall style is reminiscent of 19th-century scientific or natural history illustrations.

Revealing New Worlds Three Victorian Women Naturalists:

Revealing New Worlds Suzanne Le-May Sheffield, 2001 Through the work of three women naturalists this book examines how women participated in many scientific endeavours during the 19th century despite being marginalized in a very masculine domain

Revealing New Worlds Suzanne Le-May Sheffield, 2013-09-05 The story of nineteenth century science often tells a tale of a masculinized professionalizing domain Scientific man increasingly pushed women out marginalized them and constructed them as naturally feminine creatures incapable of intellectual work particularly scientific work Yet many women participated in various scientific endeavours throughout the century This work asks why when the waters were so inviting did women dive deeply into the swirling maelstrom of scientific practice scientific controversies and scientific writing Victorian women certainly recognised that male naturalists were not always willing to welcome them warmly into their inner sanctum of scientific work honour and prestige Moreover they recognised the existence of a more general social stigma that thwarted any woman's participation in intellectual endeavours However their fascination with algology botany and entomology led Margaret Gatty Marianne North and Eleanor Ormerod to reach beyond acceptable gendered roles to undertake field work to paint write popularize experiment and discover Each exhibited a passion for their chosen field a need for intellectual artistic and scientific work and a desire for scientific recognition and renown This book examines the ability of women to understand themselves and respond to their needs as complex human beings Within a framework of socially and scientifically constructed norms these Victorian women used science as a path to self awareness and intellectual accomplishment

A Day in a Working Life Gary Westfahl, 2015-04-21 Ideal for high school and college students studying history through the everyday lives of men and women this book offers intriguing information about the jobs that people have held from ancient times to the 21st century This unique book provides detailed studies of more than 300 occupations as they were practiced in 21 historical time periods ranging from prehistory to the present day Each profession is examined in a compelling essay that is specifically written to inform readers about career choices in different times and cultures and is accompanied by a bibliography of additional sources of information sidebars that relate historical issues to present day concerns as well as related historical documents Readers of this work will learn what each profession entailed or entails on a daily basis how one gained entry to the vocation training methods and typical compensation levels for the job The book provides sufficient specific detail to convey a comprehensive understanding of the experiences benefits and downsides of a given profession Selected accompanying documents further bring history to life by offering honest testimonies from people who actually worked in these occupations or interacted with those in that field

Fathoming the Ocean Helen M Rozwadowski, 2009-06-30 An amiable in depth examination of the most critical era for the development of modern oceanography Publishers Weekly In a history at once scientific and cultural Helen Rozwadowski shows us how the Western imagination awoke to the ocean's possibilities in maritime novels in the popular hobby of marine biology in the youthful sport of yachting and in the laying of a trans Atlantic telegraph cable The ocean emerged as important new territory and scientific interests intersected with those of merchant industrialists and politicians Rozwadowski documents the popular crazes that coincided with these interests from children s sailor suits to the home aquarium and the surge in ocean travel She describes how beginning in the 1860s oceanography moved from yachts onto the decks of oceangoing vessels and landlubber naturalists found themselves navigating the routines of a working ship s physical and social structures Fathoming the Ocean offers a rare and engaging look into our fascination with the deep sea and into the origins of oceanography origins still visible in a science that focuses the efforts of physicists chemists geologists biologists and engineers on the common enterprise of understanding a vast three dimensional alien space Rozwadowski greatly expands our own understanding all while telling a story that is original wide ranging and illuminating Margaret Deacon Southampton Oceanography Centre author of Science and the Sea The Origins of Oceanography Required reading for anyone wanting to understand how the oceans have come to play the role that they do in Western knowledge Eric L Mills Dalhousie University and author of Biological Oceanography An Early History 1870 1960 Chronicles the birth of deep sea oceanography from early observations by Benjamin Franklin to the voyage of HMS Challenger in the 1870s Rozwadowski weaves a rich narrative from the world of renowned as well as lesser known oceanographers Nature

Claiming Indigenous Plant Knowledge Carey McCormack,2024-11-30 Claiming Indigenous Plant Knowledge From Botanical Exchanges to Resource Extraction in the Indian Ocean World examines the collection and documentation of the natural world s development over the course of the nineteenth century into a vast network of scientists who attempted to categorize and understand nature particularly in the botanically rich Indian Ocean But the process of collecting plants and exchanging knowledge about the natural world went far beyond the labor of botanists and naturalists Naturalists depended on many groups for regional knowledge and local information about the uses names and value of plants Publications and archival materials included local and indigenous knowledge of nature but as exploration led to colonial expansion and botany became a professional science local and indigenous knowledge moved to the periphery of botanical writing Local knowledge never stopped being important but the act of discovery and the claiming perhaps even colonization of botanical knowledge became the limited sphere of professional botanists Indigenous peoples involved in the early days of collecting never stopped their activities but professionals failed to acknowledge their labor and expertise By the end of the century colonial administrations used botanic information collected by professionals to convert colonies into natural resource extraction zones This shift disrupted indigenous lifeways in the Indian Ocean World and led to environmental issues facing the region today

Mary Elizabeth Barber: Growing Wild Alan Cohen,Tanja Hammel,Jasmin Rindlisbacher,2020-12-01 Mary Elizabeth Barber 1818 1899 born in Britain arrived in the Cape Colony in 1820 where she spent the rest of her life as a rolling stone as she lived in and near Grahamstown the diamond and gold fields Pietermaritzburg Malvern near Durban and on various farms in the eastern part of the Cape Colony She has been perceived as the most advanced woman of her time yet her legacy has attracted relatively little attention She was the first woman ornithologist in South Africa one of the first who propagated Darwin's theory of evolution an early archaeologist keen botanist and interested lepidopterist In her scientific writing she propagated a new gender order positioned herself as a feminist avant la lettre without relying on difference models and at the same time made use of genuinely racist argumentation This is the first publication of her edited scientific correspondence The letters transcribed by Alan Cohen who has written a number of biographical articles on Barber and her brothers are primarily addressed to the entomologist Roland Trimen the curator of the South African Museum in Cape Town Today the letters are housed at the Royal Entomological Society in St Albans This book also includes a critical introduction by historian Tanja Hammel who has published a number of articles and published a monograph 2019 on Mary Elizabeth Barber Women and museums 1850-1914 Kate Hill, 2016-07-01 This book recovers the significant contribution made by women to museums not just in obvious roles such as workers but also as donors visitors volunteers and patrons It suggests that women persistently acted to domesticate the museum by importing domestic objects and domestic regimes of value as well as by making museums more welcoming to children and even by stressing the importance of housekeeping at the museum At the same time women sought masculine careers in science and curatorship but found such aspirations hard to achieve their contribution tended to be kept within clear feminised areas The book will be of interest to those working on gender culture or museums in the period It sheds new light on women's material culture and material strategies education and professional careers and leisure practices It will form an important historical context for those working in contemporary museum studies Natural History Societies and Civic Culture in Victorian Scotland Diarmid A. Finnegan, 2016-09-12 The relationship between science and civil society is essential to our understanding of cultural change during the Victorian era Science was frequently packaged as an appropriate form of civic culture inculcating virtues necessary for civic progress In turn civic culture was presented as an appropriate context for enabling and supporting scientific progress Finnegan's study looks at the shifting nature of this process during the nineteenth century using Scotland as the focus for his argument Considerations of class religion and gender are explored illuminating changing social identities as public interest in science was allowed even encouraged beyond the environs of universities and elite metropolitan societies Women in Science Ruth Watts, 2013-05-13 The first book of its kind to provide a full and comprehensive historical grounding of the contemporary issues of gender and women in science Women in Science includes a detailed survey of the history behind the popular subject and engages the reader with a theoretical and informed understanding with significant issues like science and race gender and technology and masculinity It moves beyond the historical work on women and science by avoiding focusing on individual women scientists

Evolution and Imagination in Victorian Children's Literature Jessica Straley, 2016-06-06 Evolutionary theory sparked numerous speculations about human development and one of the most ardently embraced was the idea that children are animals recapitulating the ascent of the species After Darwin's Origin of Species scientific pedagogical and literary works featuring beastly babes and wild children interrogated how our ancestors evolved and what children must do in order to repeat this course to humanity Exploring fictions by Rudyard Kipling Lewis Carroll Frances Hodgson Burnett Charles Kingsley and Margaret Gatty Jessica Straley argues that Victorian children's literature not only adopted this new taxonomy of the animal child but also suggested ways to complete the child's evolution In the midst of debates about elementary education and the rising dominance of the sciences children's authors plotted miniaturized evolutions for their protagonists and readers and more pointedly proposed that the decisive evolutionary leap for both our ancestors and ourselves is the advent of the literary imagination
