Constructing a Language Michael Tomasello, 2005-03-31 The author presents a comprehensive usage based theory of language acquisition based on evidence that children possess a linguistic ability interwoven with other cognitive abilities rather than a self contained language instinct

Linguistic Analyses of Aphasic Language Wolfgang U. Dressler, Jaqueline A. Stark, 2012-12-06 Linguistic Analyses of Aphasic Language represents results from linguistic and neurolinguistic research on aphasic language performance The contributions encompass all linguistic levels ranging from phonetics to discourse and present results on languages other than English The findings and applied methods are both relevant to the study of aphasia in general and to cross linguistic analyses Furthermore they have clear implications for language and speech therapy and thus show the importance of linguistic concepts for language testing and therapeutic intervention

Beginning to Spell Rebecca Treiman, 1993 This study on the psycholinguistics of spelling supplies the theoretical framework necessary to understand how children's ability to write is related to their ability to speak a language The importance of learning to spell is highlighted and the findings presented outline the implications for how spelling should best be taught
