Making New Words Robert M. W. Dixon, 2014 Making New Words provides a detailed study of the 200 or so prefixes and suffixes which create new words in today's English Alongside a systematic discussion of these forms Professor Dixon explores and explains the hundreds of conundrums that seem to be exceptions to general rules Why for instance do we say undistinguished with prefix un but indistinguishable with in why unceasing but incessant Why alongside golden do we say silver not silveren Why is it wooden not woodic but metallic not metall en After short preliminary chapters which set the scene and outline the criteria employed there are accounts of the derivation of negative words of other derivations which do not change word class on making new verbs new adjectives new nouns and new adverbs The final chapter deals with combinations of suffixes of prefixes and of the two together Within each chapter derivational affixes are arranged in semantic groups the members of which are contrasted with respect to meaning and function for example childless and childfree For each affix there is an account of its genetic origin from Old English Greek Latin French and so on its phonological form and implications for stress placement the roots it can be attached to and why and how its range of meanings has
