Education Quality and Social Justice in the Global South Leon Tikly, Angeline M. Barrett, 2013-06-07 How we understand education quality is inextricably linked with perspectives on social justice. Questions of inclusion, relevance and democracy in education are increasingly contested, most especially in the global South, and improving the quality of education, particularly for the most disadvantaged, has become a topic of fundamental concern for education policy makers, practitioners and the international development community. The reality experienced by many learners continues to be of inadequately prepared and poorly motivated teachers struggling to deliver a rapidly changing curriculum without sufficient support and often using outmoded teaching methods in over crowded or dilapidated classrooms. Education Quality and Social Justice in the South includes contributions from leading scholars in the field of education and development. The text draws upon state of the art evidence from the five year EdQual research programme which focuses upon raising achievement in low income countries and demonstrates how systems of high quality universal education can be sustained. By exploring recent research initiatives to improve education quality, the importance of supporting local policy makers, educators and parents as agents of change and students as active inquirers is highlighted and the challenge of taking successful initiatives to scale is explained. The book is divided into three main parts: Framing Education Quality; Planning and Policies for Quality; Implementing Quality in Schools. Education Quality and Social Justice in the South argues that implementing a high quality of education using theories of social justice can inform the understanding of inclusion, relevance and democracy in education. The book should be essential reading for both students and researchers within the fields of international and comparative education along with educational policy, poverty and development studies.

Up Education Reform Russell Bishop, Dominic O'Sullivan, Mere Berryman, 2010-01-01 What is school reform What makes it sustainable Who needs to be involved How is scaling up achieved This book is about the need for educational reforms that have built into them from the outset those elements that will see them sustained in the original sites and spread to others Using the Te Kotahitanga Project as a model the authors branch out from the project itself to seek to uncover how an educational reform can become both extendable and sustainable Their model can be applied to a variety of levels within education classroom school and system wide It has seven elements that should be present in the reform initiative from the outset These elements include establishing goals and a vision for reducing disparities embedding a new pedagogy to depth in order to change the core of educational practice developing new institutions and organisational structures to support in class initiatives developing leadership that is responsive proactive and distributed spreading the reform to include all teachers parents community members and external agencies developing and using appropriate measures of performance as evidence for modifying core classroom and school practices creating opportunities for all involved to take ownership of the reform in such a way that the original objectives of the reform are protected and sustained This book is an essential read for anyone who is involved in the process of trying to achieve sustainable school reform that addresses the question of how mainstream schools can effectively address the learning needs of students currently not well served by education The authors of this book are descended from a number of Maori tribes in New Zealand They are part of the growing ethnic revitalisation movement that has seen Maori people seeking their own solutions to the ongoing social economic and political disparities that continue to plague Maori people in Aotearoa New Zealand This book focuses on their attempts to work within and change mainstream classrooms to include all children in the benefits that education has to offer

Pharmacy on a Bicycle Eric G. Bing, Marc J. Epstein, 2013-05-06 Every four minutes over 50 children under the age of five die In the same four minutes 2 mothers lose their lives in childbirth Every year malaria kills nearly 1 2 million people despite the fact that it can be prevented with a mosquito net and treated for less than 1 50 Sadly this list goes on and on Millions are dying from diseases that we can easily and inexpensively prevent diagnose and treat Why Because even though we know exactly what people need we just can't get it to them They are dying not because we can't solve a medical problem but because we can't solve a logistics problem In this profoundly important book Eric G Bing and Marc J Epstein lay out a solution a new kind of bottom up health care that is delivered at the source We need microclinics micropharmacies and microentrepreneurs located in the remote hard to reach communities they serve By building a new model that scales down to train and incentivize all kinds of health care providers in their own villages and towns we can create an army of on site professionals who can prevent tragedy at a fraction of the cost of top down bureaucratic programs Bing and Epstein have seen the model work and they provide example after example of the extraordinary results it has achieved in Africa Asia and Latin America This is a book about taking health care the last mile sometimes literally to prevent widespread unnecessary and easily avoided death and suffering Pharmacy on a Bicycle

Education Reform and the Concept of Good Teaching Derek Gottlieb,2014-08-27 In an effort to address the problems confronting the American education system the Obama administration has issued structural and systematic reforms such as Race to the Top These initiatives introduce new statistics and accountability systems to gauge what constitutes good teaching both from an administrative standpoint and the perspective of teacher training programs This volume offers a direct critique of this approach concluding that it does not respond adequately to the issues of education reform but rather raises new problems and actively stymies progress The author argues that at the heart of the confusion lies a misguided and rationalistic view of teaching and learning He draws on the philosophical strategies of Ludwig Wittgenstein to break down the guiding assumptions of Race to the Top allowing both the positive and the negative aspects of the policies to be heard The author then proposes a different view of teaching and learning which considers how to effectively address the problems Race to the Top seeks to confront      Resources in Education ,1998      Facing the Challenges of Whole-school Reform Mark
