Communities of Health Care Justice Charlene Galarneau, 2016-11-03 The factions debating health care reform in the United States have gravitated toward one of two positions that just health care is an individual responsibility or that it must be regarded as a national concern Both arguments overlook a third possibility that justice in health care is multilayered and requires the participation of multiple and diverse communities Communities of Health Care Justice makes a powerful ethical argument for treating communities as critical moral actors that play key roles in defining and upholding just health policy Drawing together the key community dimensions of health care and demonstrating their neglect in most prominent theories of health care justice Charlene Galarneau postulates the ethical norms of community justice In the process she proposes that while the subnational communities of health care justice are defined by shared place including those bound by culture religion gender and race that together they define justice As she constructs her innovative theorization of health care justice Galarneau also reveals its firm grounding in the work of real world health policy and community advocates Communities of Health Care Justice not only strives to imagine a new framework of just health care but also to show how elements of this framework exist in current health policy and to outline the systemic conceptual and structural changes required to put these justice norms into fuller practice

The Earth Memory Compass Farina King,2018-10-01 The Din or Navajo have their own ways of knowing and being in the world a cultural identity linked to their homelands through ancestral memory The Earth Memory Compass traces this tradition as it is imparted from generation to generation and as it has been transformed and often obscured by modern modes of education An autoethnography of sorts the book follows Farina King s search for her own Din identity as she investigates the interconnections among Navajo students their people and Din Bik yah or Navajo lands across the twentieth century In her exploration of how historical changes in education have reshaped Din identity and community King draws on the insights of ethnohistory cultural history and Navajo language At the center of her study is the Din idea of the Four Directions in which each of the cardinal directions takes its meaning from a sacred mountain and its accompanying element East for instance is Sis Naajin Blanca Peak and white shell West Dook o oos d San Francisco Peaks and abalone North Dib Nitsaa Hesperus Peak and black jet South Tsoodzi Mount Taylor and turquoise King elaborates on the meanings and teachings of the mountains and directions throughout her book to illuminate how Navajos have embedded memories in landmarks to serve as a compass for their people a compass threatened by the dislocation and disconnection of Din students from their land communities and Navajo ways of learning Critical to this story is how inextricably Indigenous education and experience is intertwined with American dynamics of power and history As environmental catastrophes and struggles over resources sever the connections among peoplehood land and water King s book holds out hope that the teachings guidance and knowledge of an earth memory compass still have the power to bring the people and the earth together
