Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher-Learner Partnerships Nair, Pradeep, Keppell, Michael James, Lim, Chee Leong, Mari, TamilSalvi, Hassan, Nurhanim, 2020-12-11 Empowering learners for life requires a fundamental shift in higher education curriculum design New priorities pedagogies technologies spaces and assessment strategies are required to enable learners to take ownership of their learning Student centeredness concepts are still prescriptive in nature as most decisions on curriculum assessment teaching and learning approaches are still teacher centric Teachers are developing student centered learning environments without the involvement of the learners in the planning decision making and or design process In addition some lecturers are still practicing the traditional approaches of content delivery and conventional assessment methods rather than experimenting with innovative practices suited for student centered approaches Therefore there is an ongoing need for research focused on the importance and effectiveness of a paradigm shift in education that involves student teacher partnerships fueled by innovative teaching and learning designs where students take an active role and contribute as partners in learning Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher Learner Partnerships captures experiences and evidence among teachers in exploring the possibility of active student participation in curriculum design delivery and assessment through teacher learner partnership The chapters address issues of teacher learner partnerships in designing the learning environment and how student centered methods create resilient adaptable and future capable learners While highlighting topics within this scope such as learner autonomy learning performance self efficacy and teaching pedagogy this book is ideally intended for teachers administrators teacher educators practitioners stakeholders researchers academicians and students interested in issues related to the teacher learner partnership

Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning Sanna Jarvela, 2011-01-07 Social and emotional aspects of schooling and the learning environment can dramatically affect one's attention understanding and memory for learning This topic has been of increasing interest in both psychology and education leading to an entire section being devoted to it in the third edition of the International Encyclopedia of Education Thirty three articles from the Encyclopedia form this concise reference which focuses on such topics as social and emotional development anxiety in schools effects of mood on motivation peer learning and friendship and social networks Saves researchers time in summarizing in one place what is otherwise an interdisciplinary field in cognitive psychology personality sociology and education Level of presentation focuses on critical research leaving out the extraneous and focusing on need to know information Contains contributions from top international researchers in the field Makes MRW content affordable to individual researchers

Teacher Motivation Paul W. Richardson, Stuart A. Karabenick, Helen M.G. Watt, 2014-05-30 Teacher Motivation Theory and Practice provides a much needed introduction to the current status and future directions of theory and research on teacher motivation Although there is a robust literature covering the theory and research on student motivation until recently there has been comparatively little attention paid to teachers This volume draws together a decade of work from psychological theorists and researchers interested in what motivates people to choose teaching as a career what motivates them as they work with students in classrooms the impact of intrinsic and extrinsic forces on career experiences and how their motivational profiles vary at different stages of their career With chapters from leading experts on the topic this volume provides a critical resource not only for educational psychologists but also for those working in related fields such as educational leadership teacher development policy makers and school psychology
