

BASIC CONCEPTS IN POLITICAL SCIENCE

David M. E. Nwogbaga, Ph.D
Department of Political Science
Ebonyi State University, Abakaliki

Introduction

There are several other basic concepts in political science in addition to the major ones: state and power. These other concepts are very essential to the understanding and operation of state and power in politics and political science. Among these concepts are: sovereignty, legitimacy, development, underdevelopment, rule of law, public policy, influence, ideology, nation, society, constitution, constitutionalism, citizen, rights and obligation, democracy, public administration, political economy, international relations, conflict, and authority etc. Although other concepts abound, these are the concern in this context.

Sovereignty

The concept of sovereignty has recently become the focal point of an interdisciplinary debate beyond the initial meaning. The debates have revolved around the questions of “What is sovereignty?”, “Who is the sovereign?”, “Why should there be sovereignty?”, and “How can sovereignty be maintained?”. As derived from old French concept, sovereignty simply means “to rule over” (Roskin, Cord, Medeiros, and Jones, 2003). The concept of sovereignty is closely associated with the writings of Jean Bodin (1529-1596) who is regarded as the author. Jean Bodin defined sovereignty as “unconditional and unrestrained power” or “absolute and perpetual power vested in a commonwealth” (Hoffman and Graham, 2006). Gamble (1963) defined it as an “independent public power that makes organised social life possible”. Hence, sovereignty is designed to assert the character of “public power to make and enforce laws for the purpose of maintaining law and order in the society”[CITATION Gam631 \l 2057]. In line with the definition of Gamble (1963), is Alan’s (1986) submission that sovereignty is best defined as “constitutional independence of a state”. Similarly, whereas Robertson (1993) defined sovereignty as “independent rule by a country or institution over a certain territory or set of political concerns”; Rourke and Boyer (2002) describes it as “political independence from any higher authority”; while Karen (1999) explained it as “the authority of the state, based on recognition by

Managing Political Conflict Basic Concepts In Political Science:

Managing Political Conflict Dennis Pirages, 1976 Negotiation and Conflict Management I. William Zartman, 2007-12-20 This book presents a series of essays by I William Zartman outlining the evolution of the key concepts required for the study of negotiation and conflict management such as formula ripeness pre negotiation mediation power process intractability escalation and order Responding to a lack of useful conceptualization for the analysis of international negotiation Zartman has developed an analytical framework and specific concepts that can serve as a basis for both study and practice Negotiation is analyzed as a process and is linked to other major themes in political science such as decision structure justice and order This analysis is then applied to negotiations to manage particular types of conflicts and cooperation including ethnic conflicts civil wars and regime building It also develops typologies and strategies of mediation dealing with such aspects as leverage bias interest and roles Written by the leading exponent of negotiation and mediation Negotiation and Conflict Management will be of great interest to all students of negotiation mediation and conflict studies in general Managing Intercollective Conflict Anna J. Borgeryd, 1999-02 How does the state system measure up to today's realities when it comes to managing conflict To what extent are efforts to manage conflict successful and for whom Prevailing structures designed to deal with conflict between collectives sovereign states supported by militaries military industry and the United Nations operate mainly on principles that are hundreds of years old Conditions for conflict and its management have changed radically since this state system was constructed There is a risk that institutional inertia produces growing disparity between real world problems and the institutions that are supposed to manage them Realism and legalism are found to form a double ideological support for the state system The study compares the state system's realist and legalist premises to different cases of post cold war intercollective conflict the 1990-91 Gulf War the 1990-95 break up of Yugoslavia and the 1992 Los Angeles riots These cases present important challenges to the prevailing system's premises mismatches between idea and reality that are clearly connected to failures in conflict management In addition findings suggest that the state system not only fails to deal with important aspects of modern day conflict but that it increasingly produces problems that it cannot manage This suggests that the prevailing state system is not in harmony with crucial conflict related aspects of global impact indicating a serious systemic problem Conflict Management and African Politics Terrence Lyons, Gilbert M.
