

MONOLOGUES – MALE

Theatre II, 2013-14

BREAKING UP by Michael Cristofer. He, in a modern courtship.

HE. It's dull. Real dull. But I'm not complaining. I'm not. If this is the way it has to be then this is what it has to be. I understand all that. I could never make anything work with the ups and downs anyway. So why not try dull? Maybe dull is the answer. Except that the truth is, you see, it's going in the same direction. It's just, when it's this dull, it's a little hard to see that it's going in any direction, but all this understanding, this is not going to last. A couple of words here, a couple of words there, a couple of looks, a couple of wrong moves and all of a sudden nobody understands anything anymore and you spend all your time trying to explain what you meant and what you thought she meant and what you thought she thought you meant . . .

It has to happen. The honeymoon is over. And then you break up and you go and find somebody else and you start all over again. I can't do it. I did it with you. I can't do it again with somebody else. It could take years. All that time to get someplace with her that I'm already at with you. And then it hit me.

We can't quit. You and me. We have something now. We can't throw it away. It's a failure, okay, but it's ours. And it's not the end. That's too easy. It's the place to start from. It's two, two and a half years of our lives. It's an investment. All that pain to get to zero; well, we're here now, we've got nothing, nothing works, we're finished, total, complete, everything we had is gone, not a hope, not a prayer, not a chance This is it. (pause) I think we should get married.

manhood has shifted from embodying and enacting post colonial concerns of nationalism and national identity to performing models of masculinity that are driven and moulded by the political and cultural practices of neoliberal capitalism

Masculinities and Manhood in Contemporary Irish Drama charts this shift through chapters on performing masculinity in plays set in both the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland and through several chapters that focus on Women s and Queer drama It thus takes its readers on a journey a journey that begins with an overtly patriarchal nationalist manhood that often made direct comment on the state of the nation and ultimately arrives at several arguably regressive forms of globalised masculinity which are couched in misaligned notions of individualism and free choice and that frequently perceive themselves as being in crisis
