The mission of the International Journal of Educational Reform (IJER) is to keep readers up to date with worldwide developments in education reform by providing scholarly information and practical analysis from recognized international authorities. As the only peer reviewed scholarly publication that combines authors' voices without regard for the political affiliations, perspectives or research methodologies, IJER provides readers with a balanced view of all sides of the political and educational mainstream. To this end, IJER includes but is not limited to inquiry based and opinion pieces on developments in such areas as policy administration, curriculum, instruction, law and research. IJER should thus be of interest to professional educators with decision making roles and policymakers at all levels, turn since it provides a broad based conversation between and among policymakers, practitioners and academicians about reform goals, objectives and methods for success throughout the world. Readers can call on IJER to learn from an international group of reform implementers by discovering what they can do that has actually worked. IJER can also help readers to understand the pitfalls of current reforms in order to avoid making similar mistakes. Finally, it is the mission of IJER to help readers to learn about key issues in school reform from movers and shakers who help to study and shape the power base directing educational reform in the U.S. and the world.

Building Bridges Jack A. Culbertson, 1995. Pathways to the Humanities in Educational Administration Samuel H. Popper, 1994. Exploring the Affective Dimensions of Educational Leadership Alysha Farrell, 2019-08-22. Bridging the gap between academic parlance and arts based inquiry, this unique text presents a socio affective exploration of educational leadership. The text challenges inherited ideological and normative assumptions and invites its reader to reimagine leadership as a dynamic, emotional and relational process. Exploring the Affective Dimensions of Educational Leadership combines the ambiguity of arts based work with the interpretative power of psychoanalysis to illustrate the role of mutuality, personal interpretations and formative relations on leadership practices. By emphasizing leadership as the constant striving for recognition, the chapters expose the affective dimensions that infuse educational leadership practice and in doing so propose a new way for educational leaders to respond to complex and emotionally charged incidents in school contexts, thereby promoting democratic practice and positive collegial relations. An engaging and insightful text, this book will be of great interest to graduate and postgraduate students, researchers, academics and professionals in the fields of educational leadership, educational research and psychoanalysis. Educational Administration Fenwick W. English, 1992.

Sims's Pathway to Heaven William Z. Conway,2022-07-06 Bill Sims a highly respected college professor while working on a master s degree in religious studies had cemented in memory these poignant words of Father Earl Jones a Jesuit priest and professor True science should never conflict with true religion Science is based on measurement and observation and religion on philosophy and logic the two though based on different studies should complement each other not conflict Later in his career driven by those wise professor s words Sims made the decision to devote a major amount of time to design construct and teach a college level religious course having the express purpose of employing logic and common sense He hoped to help students and perhaps others to avoid mental physical and spiritual roadblocks caused by science vs religion controversies which have been known to freeze the paving of one s pathway to Heaven Sims asked the students to travel with him and then walked them through the Old and New Testaments alpha through omega and beyond while answering their questions and concerns His classroom discussions were full of surprises so be prepared to be pleased or annoyed depending on where you re coming from and where you hope to be in life s journey
