entrepreneurial activity and success and a carefully devised solidly grounded theory to explain why his observations are true. He also discusses the implications for personal career development, entrepreneur selection, entrepreneurship development programs, the assessment of entrepreneurial talent and related topics crucial not only to entrepreneurs and would-be entrepreneurs themselves but to their various stakeholders including those with investments in them. Part I of the book reviews the typologies used in the entrepreneurship literature and the various opinions on the value of psychological factors in predicting entrepreneurial success. It then sets forth the four-way psychological typology underpinning Miner's research and the various theoretical extensions of that typology. This section of the book closes with a chapter presenting case examples of the various types and the ways they can achieve or fail to achieve success. Part II deals with measurement and design considerations and with the two primary research tests of the theory: a seven-year predictive study of established entrepreneurs and a six-year predictive study of graduate business students enrolled in entrepreneurship classes. Part III reports on three studies dealing with women entrepreneurs in contrast to men. It also describes an extensive six-year predictive study of high technology entrepreneurs and international research dealing with entrepreneurs in Italy, Israel, Sweden, and post-communist Poland. Part IV considers ways the typology may be used to create entrepreneurship development programs and describes a comprehensive regional development effort extending over seven years. Particular attention is given to methods of assessing entrepreneurial talent in existing as well as in prospective entrepreneurs not only to help select them but also to aid in the investment decision. The book closes with predictions for the future for entrepreneurial practice and for entrepreneurship theory and research.

Management and Visualisation Gordon Fletcher,2022-12-27 As organisations of all sizes become increasingly digitalised a core management challenge remains unresolved The ability to successfully and sustainably connect the stated vision of an organisation with its strategic plans and in turn with the reported reality of day to day operations is largely an elusive ambition despite the many stated advantages provided by contemporary technologies In this book the case is made for visual management as a method of communications planning learning and reporting that connects the organisation in a single meaningful and seamless way Throughout this book visual management is theorised around the position that all forms of management documentation are an artefact of human construction and of the organisation itself that reflect learned patterns of activity The book places visual management as a more intuitive and seamless method of coordinating learning and communicating across an organisation than more traditional formats of presenting management documents Consciously assembling the artefacts of an organisation in order to manage it introduces a layer of criticality that encourages reflection and consistency that is often absent from current management practice The benefits that a visual approach brings to organisational management are an increasing necessity as machine learning robotics and process automation remove traditional roles from organisations and necessitate new views on how individuals now fit into a data informed business The book contributes to the academic debate regarding resource based and knowledge based views of the organisation by advocating a different more holistic viewpoint and will thus appeal to academics and researchers in this area It would also benefit students across business disciplines whilst the practical models and tools offered will benefit directors and managers looking to implement their own visual organisational language Information Technology for Management: New Ideas
