This work offers an interdisciplinary approach presenting insights from legal, psychological and criminological perspectives thus bypassing traditional borders and presenting a cohesive view. Issues discussed reflect the rapid advances in technology changing dynamics and behaviours in society and challenges that have been aggravated by the Covid 19 pandemic. Whilst the focus is primarily on juries in England, Wales, Scotland and across Ireland in terms of challenges and opportunities the collection also invites a comparative perspective drawing on experiences and related research in other jurisdictions. leave serve or violate the commitment to gender equality Martha Minow takes a hard look at the way our legal system functions in dealing with people on the basis of race gender age ethnicity religion and disability Minow confronts a variety of dilemmas of difference resulting from contradictory legal strategies strategies that attempt to correct inequalities by sometimes recognizing and sometimes ignoring differences Exploring the historical sources of ideas about difference she offers challenging alternative ways of conceiving of traits that legal and social institutions have come to regard as different She argues in effect for a constructed jurisprudence based on the ability to recognize and work with perceptible forms of difference Minow is passionately interested in the people different people whose lives are regularly mis shaped and mis directed by the legal system s ways of handling them Drawing on literary and feminist theories and the insights of anthropology and social history she identifies the unstated assumptions that tend to regenerate discrimination through the very reforms that are supposed to eliminate it Education for handicapped children conflicts between job and family responsibilities bilingual education Native American land claims these are among the concrete problems she discusses from a fresh angle of vision Minow firmly rejects the prevailing conception of the self that she believes underlies legal doctrine a self seen as either separate and autonomous or else disabled and incompetent in some way In contrast she regards the self as being realized through connection capable of shaping an identity only in relationship to other people She shifts the focus for problem solving from the different person to the relationships that construct that difference and she proposes an analysis that can turn difference from a basis of stigma and a rationale for unequal treatment into a point of human connection The meanings of many differences can change when people locate and revise their relationships to difference she asserts The student in a wheelchair becomes less different when the building designed without him in mind is altered to permit his access Her book evaluates contemporary legal theories and reformulates legal rights for women children persons with disabilities and others historically identified as different Here is a powerful voice for change speaking to issues that permeate our daily lives and form a central part of the work of law By illuminating the many ways in which people differ from one another this book shows how lawyers political theorist teachers parents students every one of us can make all the difference

Coercive Control and the Criminal Law Cassandra Wiener, 2022-12-30 This book considers how a phenomenon as complex as coercive control can be criminalised The recognition and ensuing criminalisation of coercive control in the UK and Ireland has been the focus of considerable international attention It has generated complex questions about the best way to criminalise domestic abuse This work reviews recent domestic abuse criminal law reform in the UK and Ireland In particular it defines coercive control and explains why using traditional criminal law approaches to prosecute it does not work Laws passed in England and Wales versus Scotland represent two different approaches to translating coercive control into a criminal offence This volume explains how and why the jurisdictions have taken different approaches and examines the advantages and disadvantages of each As jurisdictions around the world review what steps need to be taken to improve
