Terrorism, Asymmetric Warfare, and Weapons of Mass Destruction Anthony H. Cordesman,2001-11-30 There is a wide spectrum of potential threats to the U S homeland that do not involve overt attacks by states using long range missiles or conventional military forces Such threats include covert attacks by state actors state use of proxies independent terrorist and extremist attacks by foreign groups or individuals and independent terrorist and extremist attacks by residents of the United States These threats are currently limited in scope and frequency but are emerging as potentially significant issues for future U S security In this comprehensive work Cordesman argues that new threats require new thinking and offers a range of recommendations from expanding the understanding of what constitutes a threat and bolstering Homeland defense measures to bettering resource allocation and improving intelligence gathering and analysis No pattern of actual attacks on U S territory has yet emerged that provides a clear basis for predicting how serious any given form of attack might be in the future what means of attack might be used or how lethal new forms of attack might be As a result there is a major ongoing debate over the seriousness of the threat and how the U S government should react This work is an invaluable contribution to that debate Countering Weapons of Mass Destruction Albert J. Mauroni,2016-10-12 The Cold War phrase weapons of mass destruction continues to be used despite significant changes in international political cultures military concepts of operation and technology advances Today the term weapons of mass destruction WMD is used to address many things from grams of ricin and barrels of industrial chemicals to megaton nuclear weapons As a direct result of the decision to refer to all nuclear biological and chemical NBC weapons as well as biological chemical and radiological CBR hazards as WMD we have lost the ability to accurately develop assess and discuss policy concerns relating to the contemporary use of unconventional weapons on the battlefield and within the homeland This book uses a public policy framework to examine how the U S government and in particular the U S military should address the potential use of unconventional weapons in the 21st century It defines the problem identifies the policy actors and reviews policy options It discusses past policy efforts before offering a critical review of current strategies and how WMD issues are integrated into the current military Joint Operating Concepts deterrence cooperative security major combat operations irregular warfare stability and homeland security and proposes new national framework for countering WMD The aim is to answer such questions as what does counterproliferation mean and whether the U S government is adequately prepared to protect U S citizens and its armed forces from adversaries developing unconventional weapons

Army RD & A Bulletin ,2000 Preparing for Terrorism Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Sciences Policy,Committee on Evaluation of the Metropolitan Medical Response System Program,2002-07-11 The Metropolitan Medical Response System MMRS program of the U S Department of Health and Human Services DHHS provides funds to major U S cities to help them develop plans for coping with the health and medical consequences of a terrorist attack with chemical biological or radiological CBR agents DHHS asked the Institute of Medicine IOM to assist in assessing the effectiveness of the MMRS program by developing appropriate evaluation methods tools and processes to assess both its own management of the program and local preparedness in the cities that have participated in the program This book provides the managers of the MMRS program and others concerned about local capabilities to cope with CBR terrorism with three evaluation tools and a three part assessment method The tools are a questionnaire survey eliciting feedback about the management of the MMRS program a table of preparedness indicators for 23 essential response capabilities and a set of three scenarios and related questions for group discussion The assessment method described integrates document inspection a site visit by a team of expert peer reviewers and observations at community exercises and drills
