Revisioning History

Robert A. Rosenstone

Revisioning History:

Revisioning History Robert A. Rosenstone, 2020-03-31 In Revisioning History thirteen historians from around the world look at the historical film on its own terms not as it compares to written history but as a unique way of recounting the past. How does film construct a historical world? What are the rules, codes and strategies by which it brings the past to life? What does that historical construction mean to us? In grappling with these questions each contributor looks at an example of New History cinema. Different from Hollywood costume dramas or documentary films these films are serious efforts to come to grips with the past they have often grown out of nations engaged in an intense quest for historical connections such as India, Cuba, Japan and Germany. The volume begins with an introduction by Robert Rosenstone. Part I: Contesting History comprises essays by Geoff Eley on the film Distant Voices Still Lives, Nicholas B. Dirks on The Home and the World, Thomas Kierstead and Deidre Lynch on Eijanaika and Pierre Sorlin on Night of the Shooting Stars. Contributing to Part II: Visioning History are Michael S. Roth on Hiroshima Mon Amour, John Mraz on Memories of Underdevelopment, Min Soo Kang on The Moderns and Clayton R. Koppes on Radio Bikini. Part III: Revisioning History contains essays by Denise J. Youngblood on Repentance, Rudy Koshar on Hitler: A Film from Germany, Rosenstone on Walker, Sumiko Higashi on Walker and Mississippi Burning and Daniel Sipe on From the Pole to the Equator.

Mia Treacey argues that historical engagement with film and television should be reconceptualised as Screened History, an interdisciplinary international field of research to incorporate and replace what has been known as History and Film. It draws from the fields of Film, Television and Cultural Studies to critically analyse key works and connect past scholarship with contemporary research. Reconsidered as Screened History, the works of Pierre Sorlin, Marc Ferro, John O'Connor, Robert Rosenstone and Robert Toplin are explored alongside lesser known but equally important contributions. This book identifies a number of common themes and ideas that have been explored by historians for decades: the use of history on film and television as a way to teach the past; the challenge of filmic and televisual history to more traditional historiography; and an ongoing battle to find an appropriate historical way to engage with Film Studies and Theory. Screened History offers an approach to exploring History, Film and Television that allows room for future developments while connecting them to a rich and diverse body of past scholarship. Combining a narrative of historical research on film and television over the past century with a reconceptualisation of the field as Screened History, Reframing the Past is essential reading both for established scholars of History and Film, Film History and other related disciplines and to students new to the field. Google Apps: The Missing Manual Nancy Conner, 2008-05-27
