Scholarly World, Private Worlds Karl Dietrich Fezer, 2001-12-24 BLUE INK Review STARRED REVIEW Scholarly World Private Worlds Thinking Critically About Science Religion and Your Private Beliefs Karl D Fezer Xlibris 434 pages paperback 24 99 9781401034146 Reviewed March 2014 Informal logic is a discipline that examines the validity of the arguments we encounter in everyday discourse from political speeches to editorials to posts on social media Karl D Fezer's work is nothing less than a tour de force of informal logic This important book investigates under what conditions our beliefs are warranted and the limits of the methods by which we derive them The author is not concerned with validating or debunking any particular worldview religious or scientific but with examining the grounds on which we form the views that we do in fact hold The book's first part discusses the distinction between the views we harbor in our inmost hearts and their extension into the social realm where we encounter a multiplicity of views different from our own In the second part Fezer presents good reasons why we might doubt the beliefs we hold In his third section he discusses methods by which we might form views that are worthy of being called rational The final section covers the differences between science and religion and the limitations inherent in attempts to reconcile competing worldviews Fezer also contributes to the debate around teaching Creationism in schools He makes an argument for limiting the curriculum to accounts of the natural world that do not introduce supernatural principles However Fezer is not anti religion and he discusses both religious and humanistic viewpoints neutrally The author notes that he is attempting to fill a void in university liberal arts curricula As such the book has the structure of a textbook complete with questions for further study in an appendix However it is written in crisp readable prose Readers who aren't intimidated by the textbook style will find a cogent forceful presentation that is likely to challenge his or her convictions in a non threatening and highly impressive manner

Lewis Mumford and Patrick Geddes Frank G. Novak Jr.,2014-04-23 I am a disciple of Patrick Geddes and I am an abject admirer of everything he has said and done The tantalising nearness of everything we most want were it not for some fatal stubborn grain in both of us Geddes and I linked together intellectual and emotional might still conquer the world For lack of this he will be imperfectly articulate and I perhaps will have nothing to say These two comments by Lewis Mumford written at either end of his largely epistolary relationship with Patrick Geddes frame an astonishing correspondence between two of our century s greatest thinkers on Western civilisation Mumford was the versatile New York cultural critic famous for his writings on architecture the city and technology His master Geddes was the Scots biologist sociologist and planner the professor of things in general The letters reveal much about the intellectual culture of the first half of the Twentieth Century as they chart an extraordinary Anglo American relationship between very different men this friendship initially of master and disciple even father son was based on a shared intellectual quest and inspired the work of both All that exists of those letters and much previously unpublished material besides has been meticulously collected and edited by Frank G Novak Jr

Miller,1990-01-01 This book follows the shared journey of five classroom teachers and a university professor as they together examine the possibilities and dilemmas of collaborative inquiry and teacher empowerment Teachers voices in spite of their similarities and differences still are not heard in the clamor for educational reform nor are they recognized on the national agendas for research on teacher education Miller and her colleagues articulate and question the contexts and assumptions that influence and frame teaching practice as they explore the constraints and the possibilities of defining and thus empowering teachers as teacher researchers Here the multiple and changing voices of teachers are clearly heard and Miller shares their experiences their frustrations their hopes and their issues By grounding these concerns within the particularities of their teaching Miller and her colleagues explore concrete situations in which they challenge and support one another Through these stories of collaborative efforts others are invited to join together in the continuous process of creating those spaces in which all teachers voices may be acknowledged and valued Shakespeare's Restless World Neil

MacGregor,2012-10-04 From Neil MacGregor the acclaimed creator of A History of the World in 100 Objects and the Director of the British Museum comes a unique enthralling exploration of the age of William Shakespeare to accompany a new BBC Radio 4 series Shakespeare lived through a pivotal period in human history With the discovery of the New World the horizons of Old Europe were expanding dramatically and long cherished certainties were crumbling Life was exhilaratingly uncertain What were Londoners thinking when they went to see Shakespeare s plays What was it like living in their world Here Neil MacGregor looks at twenty objects from Shakespeare s life and times and uncovers the fascinating stories behind them The objects themselves range from the grand such as the hoard of gold coins that make up the Salcombe treasure to the very humble like the battered trunk and worn garments of an unknown pedlar But in each case they allow

MacGregor to explore issues as diverse as piracy and Islam Catholicism and disguise MacGregor weaves the histories of objects into the words of Shakespeare s plays themselves to suggest to us where his ideas about religion national identity the history of England and the world human nature itself may have come from The result is a fresh and thrilling evocation of Shakespeare s world

Distant Publics Jennifer Rice,2012-08-19 Urban sprawl is omnipresent in America and has left many citizens questioning their ability to stop it In Distant Publics Jenny Rice examines patterns of public discourse that have evolved in response to development in urban and suburban environments Centering her study on Austin Texas Rice finds a city that has simultaneously celebrated and despised development Rice outlines three distinct ways that the rhetoric of publics counteracts development through injury claims memory claims and equivalence claims In injury claims rhetors frame themselves as victims in a dispute Memory claims allow rhetors to anchor themselves to an older deliberative space rather than to a newly evolving one Equivalence claims see the benefits on both sides of an issue and here rhetors effectively become nonactors Rice provides case studies of development disputes that place the reader in the middle of real life controversies and evidence her theories of claims based public rhetorics She finds that these methods comprise the most common though not exclusive vernacular surrounding development and shows how each is often counterproductive to its own goals Rice further demonstrates that these claims create a particular role or public subjectivity grounded in one's own feelings which serves to distance publics from each other and the issues at hand Rice argues that rhetoricians have a duty to transform current patterns of public development discourse so that all individuals may engage in matters of crisis She articulates its sustainability as both a goal and future disciplinary challenge of rhetorical studies and offers tools and methodologies toward that end
