

School Counseling for the 21st Century: Challenges and Opportunities

Pamela O. Paisley, Ed.D., is a professor and coordinator of the School Counseling Program, HL.

George McMahon is a doctoral student. Both are in the Department of counseling and Human Development Services, University of Georgia, Athens. E-mail: ppaisley@coe.uga.edu

The history of school counseling as a specialty of the counseling profession has been well documented in the literature (Baker, 2000; Gysbers & Henderson, 2000; Herr, 2001; Myrick, 1997; Paisley & Borders, 1995). The specialty was initially shaped by the social reform movement during the late 19th Century and has evolved from an early focus on career and moral development to today's comprehensive, developmental, and collaborative school counseling programs. During the intervening years, school counseling programs and their particular areas of emphases have alternated based on the social, political, economic, and psychological issues facing schools, communities, families, children, and adolescents. At times, school counselors have worked more exclusively in educational and career arenas while at other times, much more attention has been paid to the personal and social development of students.

Most recently, the National Standards for School Counseling Programs (Campbell & Dahir, 1997) adopted by the American School Counselor Association have outlined a balanced approach to school counseling, including support for student development in three domains: academic, career, and personal/social. Programs based on the National Standards employ several intervention strategies, including individual counseling; small group counseling; classroom interventions; consultation with parents, teachers, and outside agencies; and coordination of certain related whole-school activities. These strategies may be appropriate as crisis interventions or for remediation as well as for preventative

School Counsel in 21st Century Report Stanley B. Baker,1995-10-01 School Counseling in the 21st Century Sejal Parikh Foxx,Stanley B. Baker,Edwin R. Gerler, Jr.,2016-07-01 School Counseling in the 21st Century brings the theoretical aspects of school counseling to life As they move through the book school counselors in training will begin to identify and develop the significant pieces of a comprehensive school counseling program They will also experience through real and relevant case studies how school counselors are using technology assessment data and leadership skills to implement effective programs aimed at serving their students Each chapter reflects on how the national model for school counseling standards of practice multicultural skills and ethical guidelines are the foundation of building comprehensive programs School Counseling in the 21st Century comprehensively addresses the 2016 CACREP Standards the beginning of each chapter outlines which core and school counseling standards are addressed and chapters support CACREP s requirement for material on multicultural counseling ultimately enhancing readers knowledge and effectiveness in working with diverse populations Research Anthology on Navigating School Counseling in the 21st Century Management Association, Information Resources,2021-04-16 School counseling in the 21st century requires a new set of skills and practices than seen in past decades With a sharper focus on social justice the experiences and challenges for marginalized groups and more open discussions as to issues students face school counselors must be best equipped to handle all types of diverse students and situations School counselors and guidance programs must address multicultural needs underserved populations and students with issues ranging from mental illness to family issues to chronic illnesses and LGBTQ identities Moreover they must be prepared to guide students to learning success and adequately prepare them for future careers The challenges students face in the 21st century lead to new ways to prepare support and educate school counselors in modern educational atmospheres with student bodies that are handling vastly different challenges identities and lifestyles School counselors must navigate the profession with information on best practices techniques and 21st century skillsets that can adequately support and help all students The Research Anthology on Navigating School Counseling in the 21st Century provides emerging research on the best practices in school counseling along with methods techniques and professional development initiatives to better understand diverse student populations needs and challenges This book will not only focus on how school counselors must adapt and learn in their own professional careers but also how school counseling is functioning in the 21st century with the new concerns and obstacles students must face and overcome The chapters provide a holistic view of how counselors are navigating their positions to best serve their students through effective practices programs and new tools and technologies This book is ideal for school counselors therapists school psychologists counseling educators administrators practitioners researchers academicians and students who are interested in school counseling in the 21st century 21st Century Education: A Reference Handbook Thomas L Good,2008-10-02 Via 100 entries or mini chapters the SAGE 21st Century

21st Century Students for Optimal College and Career Readiness Corine Fitzpatrick,Kathleen Costantini,2022-02-17 This second edition presents an updated action based curriculum for high school counselors that will meet the needs of 21st century students helping to foster their growth and engage them in learning what they need to succeed beyond high school This book takes a comprehensive developmental approach focusing on 9th 12th grade students rather than solely on those in 11th and 12th grade It provides a model for developing and enhancing a successful college advising office as well as essential advice on methods of working with parents Specific topics discussed include successful transition to 9th grade using technology in the college and career advising process assisting and advising students in college research and application and helping seniors make successful transitions to college There is also a special focus on students in urban and rural schools to enable them to have the same enriched experiences in their college and career advising program as those students in private and suburban schools The curriculum is geared for use by school counselors college advisors and readers in graduate counseling student courses Ethical Decision Making for the 21st Century Counselor Donna S. Sheperis,Stacy L. Henning,Michael M. Kocet,2015-09-16 Ethical practice is an essential aspect of counselor training In order for counselors to competently work with clients they must be well versed in ethical codes ethical decision making and legal issues impacting the profession Ethical Decision Making for the 21st Century Counselor provides the fundamentals of ethical practice with emphasis on ethical decision making and is structured to facilitate the development of these skills Authors Donna S Sheperis Stacy L Henning and Michael M Kocet move the reader through a developmental process of understanding and applying ethical decision making Individuals will be able to incorporate ethical practice into their understanding of the counseling process and integrate ethical decision making models into their counseling practice This unique approach differs from existing texts because of its strong emphasis on practical decision making and focus on understanding the process of applying a standard ethical decision model to any ethical scenario Students build a foundation in how to evaluate an ethical situation and feel confident that they have applied a set of decision models to reach the best decision School Counseling for Black Male Student Success in 21st Century Urban Schools Malik S. Henfield,Ahmad R. Washington,2015-11-01 Discussions and research related to the salience of Black male student needs and development in relation to their general success and well being is well documented in many fields Indeed many studies have found that healthy masculine identity development is associated with a number of positive outcomes for males in general including Black males In school counseling literature however this discussion has been relatively absent particularly regarding those students living in urban contexts Indeed research devoted to the study of Black males in the school counseling literature focuses almost exclusively on race and issues associated with its social construction with only cursory if any attention given to their masculine identity development as a function of living in urban communities and attending urban schools Based on this lack of information it is probably a safe assumption that intentional systematic culturally relevant efforts to assist Black males in developing healthy achievement and masculine identities based on their unique personal social academic experiences and future career goals are not being applied by school counselors concerned with meeting students needs School counselors are in a unique position nonetheless to lend their considerable expertise insights training and skills to improving life outcomes among Black males a population who are consistently in positions of risk according to a number of quality of life indicators Without knowledge and awareness of Black males masculine identity development in urban areas coupled with the requisite skills to influence the myriad factors that enhance and impede healthy development in such environments they are missing out on tremendous opportunities which other professions appear to understand and quite frankly seem to take more seriously As such this book proposes to accomplish two specific goals 1 Highlight the plight of Black males with specific emphasis on the ecological components of their lives in relation to current school culture and trends 2 Encourage school counselors to give more thought to Black male identity development that takes into consideration differential experiences in society as a whole and schools in particular as a function of the intersection of their race as well as their gender The first rationale for this book then is to highlight the plight of Black males with specific emphasis on the ecological components of their lives in relation to current school culture and trends e g standards based accountability practices in urban environments However I recognize the role of school counselors has never been fully integrated into educational reform programs As such their positions are often unregulated and determined by people in positions of power who do not understand their training job specific standards and thus potential impact on the lives of Black male students As a result their vast potential to develop strong interventions designed to address the myriad racial and masculine factors that serve to enhance and impede Black males academic achievement is often unrealized Therefore the second reason for this special issue is to include the scholarship of professional school counselors and counselor educators with policy change in mind Scholars will be invited to contribute manuscripts that explore race masculinity and academic achievement in relation to the role of school counselors This is designed to encourage school counselors and counselor educators to give more thought to Black male identity development that takes into consideration differential experiences in society as a whole and schools in particular as a function of the intersection of their race as well as their gender
